HOUSE ECONOMY PROGRAM READY FOR CONGRESS

Differs with Hoover in Many Points.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 24.—[Special.] — The long heralded economy program, designed to save 250 millions of dollars in government expenditures, was completed today by the house economy committee. It will be introduced in the house tomorrow by Chairman John McDuffie [Dem., Ala.], who plans to call it up for passage on Wednesday.

The bill is the product of the joint efforts of President Hoover and the house committee. The President's plan for an omnibus measure incorporating all the changes in organic law necessary to effect the economies contemplated was accepted by the committee, but the Hoover scheme to reduce the item of government pay by a five day week and enforced furloughs was rejected.

The house will be given the choice between the President's plan and the committee proposal to reduce government pay 11 per cent in the case of all salaries above $1,000.

Split on Consolidation.

Another point of difference between the executive and the committee is involved in the consolidation of the war and navy departments into a department of national defense, as provided by the committee bill. Mr. Hoover is opposed to this consolidation.

Of the 250 millions the committee claim would be saved by the provisions of its bill $100,000,000 is attributed to this consolidation. This claim is disputed by some authorities who assert the consolidation of the two departments would save not more than 20 millions. On the basis of this latter estimate the bill would save not more than 170 millions, of which 67 millions would be in the 11 per cent pay cut.

Pay Reduction Provisions.

The provision for reduction of pay of government officials and employés follows:

"During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933, the compensation for each civilian and noncivilian office, position, employment, or enlistment in any branch of service of the United States government or the government of the District of Columbia is hereby reduced as follows: Compensation at an annual rate of $1,000 or less shall be exempt from reduction, and compensation at an annual rate in excess of $1,000 shall be reduced by 11 per centum of the amount thereof in excess of $1,000."

The provision does not apply to the President and judges, the reduction of whose salaries the constitution prohibits during their terms of office, but the bill authorizes the secretary of the treasury to accept voluntary remittances from such officials of 11 per cent of their compensation in excess of $1,000.

Hoover Offers Refund.

Thus the treasury would be authorized to accept a contribution of $8,140 from President Hoover. Incidentally, the President, who is a millionaire, told members of the economy committee he would be willing to serve for $1 a year and turn $74,999 back to the treasury.

In the case of the Reconstruction finance corporation, the Agricultural stabilization and numerous other corporations, a majority of the stock of which is owned by the United States, the officers are required to apply the 11 per cent salary reduction to the employés.

If at any time the wholesale commodity price level should rise to within ten points of the 1926 level in the bureau of labor index the President is directed to proclaim the restoration of the pay reductions. The present level is 66, compared with 100 in 1926.

Some Permanent Cuts.

Some salaries are permanently reduced. The pay of the members of the international joint commission is cut from $10,000 to $6,000 beginning July 1 next. Members of the shipping board are to receive $10,000 instead of $12,000. A similar cut is

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

About $189,500,000 in 1930 taxes are still due and the penalty date is next Sunday. Judging by past performances, County Collector McDonough will probably collect in the neighborhood of $25,000,000 during the week, leaving about $165,000,000 still unpaid. This is more than twice the unpaid taxes of 1929.

The rosy predictions of huge tax payments, after the state Supreme court outlawed "tax strikes," found little indication of fulfillment in the five days which have elapsed since the ruling. Instead, the payments supplement the growing evidence that the people do not have the money to pay the taxes levied.

On March 13, the payments were running at a rate which forecast a total payment of $107,500,000 on an aggregate tax bill of $290,283,770 for 1930. A week later the payments were at the rate of $113,000,000, and since then the payment rate indicates a total collection of $124,821,000. That is approximately 43 per cent of the taxes levied.

On the 1929 taxes the collection was less than 70 per cent of the bill and on the 1928 taxes the percentage of collection was around 83.

Of the taxes now in collection—those of 1930—the railroads have paid about 63 per cent of their assessments, the personal property owners have paid about 17 per cent of their share, and the real estate owners have paid approximately 37 per cent. So far the real estate owners have paid about four and a half times as much as the railroads and owners of personal property combined.

Division of Payments Shown.

Property—	Taxes levied.	Taxes paid.
Railroads	$ 13,339,415	$ 5,444,061
Personal	55,492,275	9,823,236
Real estate	221,452,080	82,426,614
Totals	$290,283,770	$100,693,911

At the same relative date last year, the tax collections for 1929 were 54 per cent higher than they are this year. Instead of the $100,693,000 collected this year, there was $155,636,000 collected last year at the same time.

The totals presented in the foregoing table include all of the taxes gathered in by the town collectors and $6,516,401 collected by County Collector McDonough on Saturday and yesterday. The tax office has been kept open Sundays for more than a month, in the hope of accommodating the public.

Payments Due This Week.

During this week, on the basis of past performances, there should be a considerable amount of personal property taxes paid, because three-fourths of the $9,823,000 in hand from this class of property has been paid by the utilities and banks, and the amount paid so far is 40 per cent short of last year's collections on penalty date.

The railroads, it is believed, will pay close to $4,000,000 this week. Of this the North Western's share is $1,188,000, the share of the Chicago, Lake Shore and Eastern is $225,000, the Grand Trunk's part is $197,000 and the Central Terminal's portion is $140,000.

But the railroads are protesting 7½ per cent of their taxes as illegal, as is indicated by the fact that the roads which have paid $8,444,061 have at the same time withheld $695,854.

What the owners of real estate will do this week is uncertain, but the treasurer's office expects about $16,000,000 from this source before Sunday.

Tax Spenders Are Warned.

On Feb. 23 George O. Fairweather of the joint tax commission cautioned against budgets of the major local governments totaling more than $180,000,000. He said that was the maximum the property owners could pay.

On March 1 D. F. Kelly said for the citizens' committee, of which he was chairman, that the people could not stand more than $178,000,000 and the amount they would pay would probably be very much less.

On April 1, the committee on public expenditures, headed by Fred Sargent, estimated the tax payments at $146,452,000 during the current year. If the total paid by the penalty date next Sunday is $125,000,000, the Sargent estimate is that there will be about

BLAST LOOSES 30,000 GALLONS OF WATER ON TOWN

Triadelphia, W. Va., April 24.—(AP)—A terrific dynamite explosion early today wrecked a large water tank on a hillside above Triadelphia and sent 30,000 gallons of water swirling down into the mining village.

The blast was attributed by police to strike sympathizers.

No one was injured, but the water caused considerable damage, undermining foundations of several dwellings and throwing the Triadelphia mine of the Elm Grove Mining company into darkness.

Deputy sheriffs, hurrying to the scene from Wheeling, reported they were fired upon from a hillside. No arrests were made. State troopers are searching the hills for the vandals.

Bomb Blast at Garage; Employes Escape Injury

A dynamite bomb was exploded last night in the rear of the Vincennes Auto Laundry and Garage, 7818 Vincennes avenue, causing damage estimated at $1,000. Rollins Berry and Elmer Miller, Negroes, both of 5208 Prairie avenue, employés in the garage, were not injured. The owners of the garage are Edwin Blom, 5916 South Sangamon street, and Charles S. Anderson, 5945 South Sangamon street. They told Lieut. James Day of the Gresham police that they knew of no reason for the attack. They said they took over the business four months ago after it had gone into receivership. The place was damaged by a small bomb on Feb. 9.

'The Woman' in Kreuger's Life Reveals Self

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 24.—(AP)—A romance of many years' standing with the late Ivar Kreuger, the Swedish match king, was hinted at today by Mrs. Ingeborg Eberth, Stockholm society woman, who was bequeathed 500,000 kroner [currently about $93,000] in Kreuger's will.

The sum will not be available, since the suicide and subsequent investigation into the financier's affairs showed no cash among his assets, but Mrs. Eberth said Kreuger made a last promise to her which leads her to believe a half million kroner are on deposit for her somewhere.

Calls Him "Noble Man."

The woman described the financier, whose business methods have been questioned since his death, as a "fine, noble man."

Asked if she was "the woman" in Kreuger's life, she replied:

"If I answer that question it will be telegraphed all over the world. I will only say that he willed me the most."

Mrs. Eberth told a correspondent of Politikken Copenhagen that Kreuger's death was a complete mystery with unanswered questions in every direction.

[Paris police certified that Kreuger killed himself in an apartment in that city, and every rumor that he was not a suicide, or that he was not dead at all but in hiding, has been met with official and direct denials.]

"Why had Kreuger's coffin not been opened in Stockholm?" she asked. "What was all this talk about a glass window in the coffin? One did not use such things in Sweden. And what was this rumor that the body had been embalmed?"

Convinced There Is Secret.

Mrs. Eberth said she was convinced there was some secret in connection with the financier's death.

"Why did his brother and sister, Torsten and Greta, announce they were going to Paris, and then not do so?" she queried.

Mrs. Eberth said the last time she saw her late friend was before his departure for America this year, and he seemed nervous, smoking many cigarets. She first met him in 1913.

Carter Harrison Ill; Can't Attend Birthday Party

Carter H. Harrison, mayor of Chicago for five terms, was confined to his bed yesterday with a severe cold and was unable to attend a family party at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edson Manierre of Lake Forest, given in honor of his 72d birthday anniversary. Although his birthday fell on Saturday, Mrs. Manierre held the observance yesterday. Mr. Harrison lives in the Parkway hotel.

SNIPERS SHOOT, TROOPS REPLY IN STRIKE ZONE

Cadiz, O., April 24.—(AP)—Shots were exchanged by National Guardsmen and a group of snipers in the eastern Ohio bituminous strike zone late today as the state withdrew approximately half of the troops placed on duty during the recent disorders.

Capt. Joseph Parilla of Youngstown, commanding the 145th infantry troops at the Tasa mine, six miles east of here, reported that the snipers opened fire on his troops shortly after 5 p. m. The soldiers returned the fire, sweeping the ground with machine gun bullets.

No one was injured and the attackers escaped. Capt. Parilla expressed a fear of further trouble and requested National Guard headquarters here to have reënforcements ready for action if they are needed.

Withdrawal of the troops was ordered by Gov. George White Saturday in the belief that the remaining guardsmen, about 350, could handle the situation.

Police Elevator Sticks; 15 Get Out Through Roof

An elevator in the central police building at 11th and State streets became stuck yesterday afternoon between the second and third floors and fifteen passengers were trapped there for twenty mintues. These passengers, five of whom were women, got out through a hole in the elevator roof, clambering up a ladder that was thrust down to them by the police. All had attended the showup of prisoners in the building.

Crowd Breaks Windows of Japanese Building in Cuba

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, April 24.—The chamber of deputies last night rejected a clause establishing a surtax on wealthy bachelors who, according to the socialists, are "pests and dangerous to society." The chamber then approved a surtax on absentee landed proprietors, but did not include companies whose directorates reside abroad.

Kills Himself Before a Taxi Dancer's Door

In a 2,000 word letter addressed to the coroner, and one of several farewell notes in which he condemned taxi dance halls as "dens of vice," Clark sketched his romance with the girl. He wrote that he had given her money and gifts and had planned to marry her on April 15. Two days before that date, he said, she called off the marriage and then, he added, his hopes crashed into one million pieces.

Clark lived at 56 West Elm street. He came to Chicago from Oil City, Pa. In recent years he had worked as a telegrapher and signal man for the Chicago and North Western railroad.

Taxi Dancer Is Questioned.

The taxi dancer, whom he knew as Sally Kane, is Mrs. Charlotte Krupka, 26 years old. She told the police last night that no serious romance existed between her and Clark. She had known him since November, she said.

After telling how he met "Sally" in the Midwest Dancing academy at 334 South Wabash avenue, Clark wrote:

"I took a liking to this girl, and she seemed to like me. She had no paint on, and did not use bad language. She said she could not get a job at anything respectable, and had to take this job as much as she deplored it. Ninety-nine per cent of the girls at taxi dance halls paint like Indians. I believed I had found a good girl. I was longing for a home and never could find a good girl, but I believed I had found one at last."

Buys Her Some Clothes.

Clark wrote that Sally's clothing was tattered when he met her, and that he took her to a loop store and spent $47 to outfit her in decent garments. After that he met her twice weekly, he said, and occasionally gave her money. She needed the money, he explained, "for her little sister who was ill."

In March Clark became suspicious. "I discovered she was telling lots of lies," his letter said. "I began wondering how a girl could stay in a vice den like she was working in, and stay good, but I thought I had got one before she got bad, and I was ready to marry her."

At her request, the letter went on, Clark gave her $20 for her wedding gown. Then, on April 13, she wrote to him, pleading illness in her family, and calling off the wedding. It was shortly after this, Clark indicated, that he traced the girl to the Harper avenue address and discovered she was Mrs. Krupka.

His Hopes Are Blasted.

"What could I do?" said Clark's letter. "I was longing for a home, and thought I had won my girl at last, but my hopes were blasted into one million pieces. I can't stand it any longer. I am broken hearted."

While he was planning his marriage, Clark made "Mrs. Sally Clark" the beneficiary of his $500 insurance. In his letter he canceled this provision.

Two friends, Victor Pierson, a roomer at the Elm street address, and Mrs. Marguerite Airth of 714 Main street, Evanston, whom he mentioned in his notes, said last night that they did not know of Clark's romance with the taxi dancer.

Control of Prussia in Balance.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 25 [2 A. M. Monday.]—Election returns for the state of Prussia at 1 a. m. today indicated that the new state diet faces parliamentary chaos due to the large vote polled by the forces of Adolf Hitler, leader of the National Socialists (Fascists).

An absolute majority is needed to nominate a new premier and cabinet and this, it is felt, cannot be attained by either the Republican or Hitlerite groups in the Prussian diet of 422 newly elected members.

Dr. Alfred Hugenberg's Nationalists, with 31 seats, are counted upon to support the 162 National Socialists. Hitler will also receive support from several smaller parties.

202 Votes for Hitlerites.

The total forces favoring Hitler are 202. The Republicans are worse off. The Socialists' allies, the Catholic Centrists, have retained most of their deputies, but the Democrats have dwindled down to two, leaving the Republican combination with only 163 deputies.

"Our victory justified the great efforts we have made to spread the new faith in Germany's future," Hitler said last night, refraining, however, to explain what he intends to do with his newly acquired power.

Socialist leaders professed to believe that Hitler will not succeed in drawing all the conservative parties to his side, and thus make it possible for the Republican forces to remain in control of the Prussian government and keep their majority in the reichsrat, or national council. This optimism was not shared, however, by political experts.

Fails to Obtain Power.

BERLIN, April 24.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler's National Socialists (Fascists) became the strongest political party in four of the five German states where diet elections were held today, including Prussia, which alone constitutes two-thirds of Germany, but nowhere did they prove strong enough to take over the government alone.

While in Anhalt, and possibly in Württemberg, they were almost certain to head rightist coalitions, they apparently failed to gain a place in the cabinets of Prussia, Bavaria, and Hamburg.

A bitter campaign for supremacy between the republican government factions and the Fascist legions of the fiery Hitler, who only two weeks ago failed to win the German presidency from President Paul von Hindenburg, ended with three fatalities, a number of other casualties, and minor disorders.

Concentrate on Prussia.

All parties concentrated their efforts on Prussia, on the theory that "whoever controls Prussia controls the reich." Here the Fascist Nazis made a gain from nine neats to 162 at the expense of the German Nationals, People's, and States' [Democratic] parties, which suffered crushing defeats.

The only other party gaining in Prussia was the Communist, which now has 57 seats, as compared to its former 48. The Social Democrats [Socialists] were heavy losers, dropping from 137 to 93. Even the Catholic Centrists lost four seats.

The Hitlerites polled 8,008,000 votes in Prussia; the Socialists, 4,675,000; Centrists, 3,374,000; Communists, 2,820,000; German Nationals, 1,525,000; People's party, 331,000; Christian Socialists, 255,000; States' party, 332,000; Economic, 191,000; Farmers', 177,000; smaller parties, 714,000.

How Other States Voted.

WUERTTEMBERG—National Socialists, 328,000; Social Democrats, 206,000; Centrists, 254,000; Communists, 116,000; German Nationals, 354,000.

BAVARIA—Bavarian People's party, 1,272,000; National Socialists, 1,271,000; Social Democrats, 604,000; Communists, 259,000; Bavarian Farmers, 253,000; German Nationals, 128,000; smaller parties, 122,000.

HAMBURG — National Socialists,

234,000; Social Democrats, 266,000; Communists, 119,000; States' party, 84,000; German Nationals, 32,000; People's party, 24,000; Centrists, 10,000; Economic party, 5,000; Christian Social, 8,000.

ANHALT—National Socialists, 90,000; Social Democrats, 75,000; Communists, 20,000; German Nationals, 13,000; People's party, 8,000; Real Estate Owners' party, 6,000; Centrists, 3,000; States' party, 3,000; Socialist Labor, 1,000.

Allottment of Seats.

WUERTTEMBERG—National Socialists, 23; Centrists, 17; Social Democrats, 14; Farmers, 9; Communists, 7; State's party, 4; German Nationals, 3; Christian Peoples' party, 3.

HAMBURG—National Socialists, 51; Social Democrats, 49; Communists, 26; State's party, 13; German Nationals, 7; Peoples' party, 5; Centrists, 2; Economic party, 1; Christian Social, 1.

Two Coalition Governments.

As a result of their gain of 14 seats in the Anhalt diet, where before they had only one, the Hitlerites were expected to form a state government with the Nationalists and Peoples' party.

Another coalition government in Wuerttemberg, with the Nazis in control, was a strong likelihood if the Centrists were at least neutral, but on the other hand the Centrists, Socialists, and Democrats might form a cabinet if the Communists were neutral.

In Bavaria, however, the Hitlerites held exactly the same strength they had in the presidential election two weeks ago and there all the other parties are bitterly opposed to them. Therefore, some form of coalition excluding the National Socialists seemed most likely.

Hamburg Régime Wins.

In Hamburg, the present minority government of Socialists and Democrats is likely to continue in office.

When the new Prussian diet assembles it will probably bring about an immediate fall of the presena coalition headed by Premier Otto Braun and Minister of Interior Karl Severing.

Then it real troubles—how to form a new workable coalition—will begin.

The National Socialists, with four minor opposition parties, command only 203 out of the 422 seats. Only if the Centrists' 67 members joined in such a combination could a majority be effected, leaving 93 Socialists and 57 communists as the opposition.

Holds on for Time Being.

If the Centrists refuse to ally themselves with the Nazis, then Premier Braun may be able to continue, with the aid of benevolent neutrality on the part of the communists. At any rate, the present cabinet will continue to function until a new cabinet, supported by 51 per cent of the diet, has been evolved.

Premier Braun and Severing, social Democrats, were among prominent candidates successful in today's election. The Centrirts returned Henrich Steiger, Prussian minister of agriculture. Joseph Goebels, Hitler lieutenant, was elected to the Prussian diet, as were also the prominent National Socialists, Count Wolf Helldorff and Gen. Karl Litzmann. The communists elected their party secretary, Wilhelm Pieck. Prince August Wilhelm, fourth son of the former kaiser, was also elected to the Prussian diet.

Two men were killed last night in factional fights in Berlin, and 225 were arrested. One was fatally knifed and fourteen were wounded at Duisberg-Hamborn. Twenty-four were injured at Bernau, near Berlin, in fights at voting booths today. The ringleaders were arrested.

POLICE BULLET PROVES FATAL.

Thomas Hebbron, 21 years old, 3552 Rhodes avenue, a Negro, died yesterday in the county hospital of a wound received Saturday when he was shot by Patrolman Frank Riley of the Stanton avenue police station, after he had resisted arrest and attacked Riley with a knife.

STATE WILL ASK DEATH AGAIN FOR YOUTHFUL KILLER

McWilliams Case Ruling Is Called Unusual.

Rockford, Ill., April 24.—[Special.]—State's Attorney William D. Knight of Winnebago county said tonight that he intended to demand a death sentence a second time for Russell McWilliams, 17 year old killer who was saved from the electric chair by a state supreme court decision yesterday.

WM. D. KNIGHT. [Herzog Photo.]

The supreme court reversed the death sentence of McWilliams and ordered that a rehearing on his plea of guilty to murder be held. In the high court's opinion Judge Arthur E. Fisher erred in not permitting testimony to be brought in to show the youth's habits of industry and frugality and the fact that he turned his money over to his mother.

Calls Decision Unusual.

"Such a decision as that of the supreme court is so unusual as to be almost unheard of," said Mr. Knight. "However, there is nothing in it to prevent the imposition of the death penalty again. Judge Fisher is not ordered to reduce the sentence, but only to take a more extended line of testimony before reaching a sentence.

"If attorneys for McWilliams bring in his record as a wage earner and a supporter of his mother, we can bring in damaging evidence of his other robberies. There were previous holdups. Judge Fisher was right in giving McWilliams a death penalty and I shall certainly ask that the same sentence be given again."

Parole Board Inquiry.

It was pointed out that the state board of pardons and paroles made a close investigation of all angles of the McWilliams case and then refused to do anything toward delaying or doing away with the death sentence. Also, it is understood that the parole board found no evidence to justify the contention of the defense in the trial to the effect that McWilliams was intoxicated when he shot and killed William Sayles, a Rockford street car conductor, for the money he had.

McWilliams was originally scheduled to die in the chair on Dec. 11, but a reprieve was granted to permit the appeal to the Supreme court after Clarence Darrow had taken charge of his case. He is now in the Joliet penitentiary, but will be brought back to Rockford for the second hearing on the degree of punishment.

Judge Fisher had no comment to make on the Supreme court's decision tonight, stating that he had not yet seen a copy of it.

"ARMY" LEADER IN CITY

"Gen." Jacob S. Coxey, who in 1894 led an "army of the unemployed" to Washington, only to be arrested for walking on the capitol grass, arrives on lecture tour. He is now mayor of Massillon, O., and a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

WETS TO SWEEP PENNSYLVANIA IN G. O. P. PRIMARY

Davis to Win; Hoover Delegates Anti-Dry.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 24.—[Special.]—Pennsylvania Republicans in the primary election tomorrow will renominate Senator James J. Davis for the United States senate and select seventy-five delegates to the national convention, who will support President Hoover and a wet plank.

Jay Cooke, national committeeman and banker friend of President Hoover and Senator Reed, will be among the seven delegates at large who under force of an increasing sentiment will stand forcibly for a liberal plank on prohibition.

May Dominate Convention.

It is the belief here that Senator Reed and Mr. Cooke will be dominant members of the convention, with the former probably chairman of the resolutions committee and the latter presenting to the leaders the views of the President on the 18th amendment and economic questions.

The only national issue involved has been prohibition. Gov. Gifford Pinchot, seeking to control the state organization, marshaled the Anti-Saloon league and the independents behind Gen. Smedley D. Butler, a dry, as a candidate for the United States senate. Senator Davis became a wet convert on the eve of his campaign after extreme political pressure exerted by William S. Vare.

As the campaign progressed Senator Davis emphasized prohibition, while Gen. Butler, devoting himself chiefly to attacks on the machine, sought to strengthen himself by advocating politics that appealed to the unemployed. He has had large meetings, attracted perhaps by his dynamic personality and his reputation as a marine officer and son of one of Pennsylvania's eminent members in the house of representatives.

Dry League Backs Butler.

It has been a fight between the old disorganized machine and the dry forces, with the 18th amendment standing out as the one question commanding genuine interest. The Anti-Saloon league of the state, in an effort to maintain its prestige, has supported the marine officer. The result of the primary, from a national viewpoint, turns on the wet problem, with Republican leaders predicting Davis' nomination by majorities reaching as high as 350,000.

Pennsylvania Republicans are sullen. This state has suffered greater economically than many other states. More than 175 banks have failed, involving the largest losses to depositors of any other state. More than 1,000,000 men are without employment and the steel mills and the industries that have made Pennsylvania prosperous under a protective tariff are idle. This condition undoubtedly will be reflected in the November election with present indications that many Democratic members of the house will be elected and the normal Republican majority reduced to a minimum.

KILLED BY GAS FROM AUTO.

Theodore King, 35 years old, 6334 South Peoria street, was overcome yesterday by carbon monoxide when he started the motor of his automobile in a closed garage, and died a short time later in the county hospital.

Going to Omaha

Jacob S. Coxey, "general" of the unemployed "army" which marched on Washington in the 'nineties, and present mayor of Massillon, O., passed through Chicago yesterday on his way to Omaha, Neb. He is a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, and will attend the convention of the Farmer Labor party at Omaha.

FASCISTS MAKE BOW TO AUSTRIAN VOTERS AND WIN

Capture Diet Elections; Lose Only in Vienna.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, April 24.—Hitlerism, fanned by the strong breezes from across the border in Germany, spread through Austria like prairie fire in the municipal and provincial elections today.

Vienna, last stronghold of the Socialists, remained in the hands of the Marxists, who captured 66 out of 100 seats in the city council. But the National Socialists [Fascists], in the first test of their strength in this country, captured a huge bourgeois vote. The Nazis annihilated two old parties, the Pan-Germans [supporters of former Chancellor Schober's foreign policy] and Agrarians, reducing the clerical Christian Social party, which controls the Austrian federal government, to impotence.

Nazis Win 15 Seats.

In the Vienna municipal elections the Christian Social representation in the city council was reduced from 34 to 19 seats. The Nazis, who had none before, won 15 seats. The Communists received no mandates and the monarchists, who want the Hapsburgs back, got but a few hundred votes.

In the provinces the Hitlerites celebrated their first elections with a surprising showing. In Salzburg the Nazis bagged six seats, taking away mandates from both the Socialists and Christian Socials, who received 8 and 12 seats, respectively.

In elections for the Lower Austrian diet the Hitlerites won ten seats, taking one from the Socialists, three from the Christian Socials and six from the Pan-Germans. Here the Christian Socials lost their majority, receiving but twenty-eight seats. The Socialists captured twenty, leaving the Nazis holding the balance of power.

Schober's Party Wiped Out.

The Pan-German party was wiped out in today's elections by the Hitlerites, who not only promised Austrian voters quick realization of the Pan-German goal but added an inducement to put down the Jews who control a large part of Austrian industry.

The Socialists held their two-thirds majority in Vienna, even adding one seat. The victory gives them complete control of the capital for another five years. They lost strength, however, in the provinces.

The Austrian Nazis, who were hardly known to the public a few weeks ago, conducted a whirlwind campaign in the last five days, heavily financed from Germany.

TRAGEDY VISITS A JOLIET PARTY; ONE SLAIN, 3 HURT

Shooting and Crash End Fete.

An uninvited and intoxicated visitor at a Joliet wedding anniversary celebration possessed himself of a policeman's revolver early yesterday, when he was urged to leave the gathering. He killed one guest and wounded two others. Hurrying away from the disturbance in an automobile, another guest and his wife were hurled 25 feet into the bottom of an abandoned quarry, when the car skidded. The wife was critically injured.

The uninvited visitor was Fritz Whitney, 30 years old, 1001 West Jefferson street, Joliet. He went with an invited guest to the party which Mr. and Mrs. William Bailey, 405 Theodore street, were holding in celebration of their fifteenth wedding anniversary.

Seizes Policeman's Gun.

Gaylord and Robert Hauk, 1204 Kelly avenue, brothers, friends of the Baileys, tried to lead the tipsy Whitney from the house. While they were looking for an automobile to take him home he broke away from them and reëntered the house.

He ran to a bedroom on the second floor. There Henry Schelling, a Joliet policeman, had taken off his revolver and holster belt and hung it on a chair while he was dancing. Whitney grabbed the gun.

He ran to the street again and shot Gaylord Hauk in the heart, killing him. Robert Hauk grappled with his brother's slayer. Whitney shot him in the leg.

Shoots Another Pursuer.

Whitney then fled into an alley behind the house and across a vacant lot. Randall Bailey, a brother of the host, pursued him. When Bailey overtook him, Whitney turned and fired three shots, one of which struck Bailey in the hip. Whitney then made his escape.

The automobile accident followed almost immediately. James Kaye, 1417 Wilcox street, took his wife and drove hurriedly away from the party. At Theodore street and Broadway the car skidded, left the street, and dropped into the old quarry. Mrs. Kaye was taken to St. Joseph's hospital with a possible skull fracture and internal injuries. Kaye's injuries were minor.

Gunman Caught at Home.

Sheriff Oliver Flint of Will county and Deputy Sheriff Sam Bailey, another brother of the party host, waited at Whitney's home and arrested him when he appeared there at daybreak. Several hours later it was stated that Whitney was still too much under the influence of liquor to give an intelligible statement of what had happened.

A fourth Bailey brother, who was also a guest at the party, is Lincoln, a pitcher with the Chicago Cubs in 1921.

THIRD ALIENIST TO COMBAT PLEA OF LIEUT. MASSIE

San Francisco Expert Reports Findings.

HONOLULU, April 24.—(AP)—Dr. Joseph Catton, San Francisco alienist, who is expected to be the final prosecution rebuttal witness in the trial of four persons charged with the revenge murder of Joseph Kahahawai, submitted a report on his findings in the case today.

DR. JOSEPH CATTON. [Acme Photo.]

While both Catton and attorneys refused to divulge the contents of the report, it was learned authoritatively that Catton's findings support the prosecution contention that Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., one of the defendants was not insane when he held the pistol that killed the young native.

Combats Massie's Plea.

Catton will be the third alienist to combat the claim of the defense that the lieutenant was mentally deranged when he shot the accused rapist of the young wife, Thalia.

Co-defendants with Massie are Mrs. Granville Fortescue, his mother-in-law, and E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, enlisted men.

The prosecution already has entered the testimony of two alienists, Dr. Paul Bowers of Los Angeles and Dr. Robert Faus, city and county physician here. Dr. Bowers said he believed the whole affair premeditated. Dr. Faus said he believed Massie never was insane.

Completion of testimony in the case of the four defendants, who are charged with second degree murder, was postponed yesterday until tomorrow to permit Catton to finish his study of the testimony to date.

Massie's "Mental Bomb."

Previously Clarence Darrow, chief of defense counsel, introduced two California alienists for the defense. They were Dr. J. Thomas Orbison and Dr. Edward Huntington Williams. Both testified a "mental bomb" went off in the mind of Massie when Kahahawai confessed he attacked Mrs. Massie.

A member of the defense counsel today pointed out the four defendants are jointly indicted for murder and that Massie has explained the circumstances of the slaying for the defense.

"If he was insane when the shot was fired, then no crime was committed and Massie is innocent," the defense attorney said. "If Massie is innocent, then the other three are innocent too."

Counsel for both sides worked today over mass instructions to hand the court tomorrow morning, from which Judge Charles S. Davis will select the jury's orders.

Meanwhile, with the climax of the hearing reached and passed in the testimony of Lieut. and Mrs. Massie, the city of Honolulu picked up the subject of visiting and local alienists as the main topic of conversation.

LIQUOR DEALERS HOVER; BELGIUM MAY EASE LAW

(Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.)

ANTWERP, April 24.—It is confidently expected in trade circles that Belgium will soon revise its blue laws. The port of Antwerp especially is swarming with dealers in French liquors and agents of champagne manufacturers, all eager to have a share in the good times they hope are coming to the licensed victualers' trade.

The Belgian government is taking a serious view of the increase in the drinking of strong alcoholic beverages under partial prohibition. Official figures show the annual consumption of liquors, which averaged 11,097,850 gallons before 1930, in the latter year reached 109,853,500 gallons, without taking into account bootlegged spirits. The authorities admit smuggling is increasing.

Under the existing blue laws no hotel, café, or restaurant may keep strong alcoholic beverages on the premises. Should the laws be revised, this would cause a rush to buy liquors, the dealers declare. Antwerp shippers are also expecting the United States to go wet and are stocking liquors to be ready.

CENSUS OF COOK COUNTY INDUSTRY GETS UNDER WAY

Work Will Be Completed by May 15.

H. L. Rockhill, chief special agent for the federal census bureau, and a corps of assistants working in the federal building, expect to complete about 85 per cent of the 1931 biennial census of manufactures in Cook county by May 15, he said yesterday. The office has been functioning here about ten days.

As an economy measure, the director of the census, William M. Steuart, tried this year to conduct the census through the mails, but after three months only about one-third of the schedules had been returned. So Mr. Rockhill was sent to Chicago, where he is functioning with a staff of eight workers who call manufacturers on the telephone for the information desired.

The questions on the schedules are divided into three main groups—wages paid, cost of materials, and value of the product or products manufactured. There is a separate schedule for every industry.

After he has completed the telephone work, Mr. Rockhill will send field deputies to canvass the county for new concerns not listed in the telephone directory. He estimates that this work will take a week. The next step will be the taking of the census in surrounding counties, after which, the agent believes, he will be transferred to the territory embodying the southern halves of Illinois and Indiana.

YOUTH NAMED AS BANDIT.

George Serocke, 19 years old, 1843 Oakdale avenue, was identified at the detective bureau yesterday as a bandit who specialized, police say, in robbing store drivers.

TREASURY SEEKS 450 MILLIONS BY SECURITY ISSUES

Bear 3 and 2 Per Cent Interest.

Washington, D. C., April 24.—[Special.] — Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills announced today that he is borrowing 450 millions more on short term securities to finance the treasury in meeting the deficit for the current fiscal year which already exceeds 2 billions.

A few weeks ago the treasury borrowed close to 1 billion dollars for this purpose. "The present offering of certificates and notes," said Mills, "is made in accordance with the financial program of the treasury projected in January when it was estimated that the amount which would be required to be borrowed during the remainder of the fiscal year, in addition to amounts for refunding, would be approximately $1,500,000,000. The estimate then made appears to have been substantially correct."

Interest Varies With Terms.

The treasury offering for subscription at par and accrued interest, through the federal reserve banks is 225 million dollars or thereabouts of 3 per cent two year treasury notes of series A-1934, and 225 million dollars or the reabouts of 2 per cent one year certificates of indebtedness of series B-1933.

The treasury notes will be dated May 2, 1932 and will bear interest from that date at the rate of 3 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually. They will mature on May 2, 1934, and will not be subject to call for redemption prior to that date.

The certificates of indebtedness will be dated May 2, 1932, and will bear interest from that date at the rate of 2 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually. They will mature on May 2, 1933.

The principal and interest of the treasury notes and treasury certificates of indebtedness will be payable in United States gold coin of the present standard of value.

Exempt from Taxation.

The treasury notes and treasury certificates of indebtedness will be exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all taxation [except estate of inheritance taxes] now or hereafter imposed by the United States, any state or any of the possessions of the United States, or by any local taxing authority.

Applications will be received at the federal reserve banks.

The treasury notes will be issued in bearer form only, in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, and $100,000, with interest coupons attached payable semi-annually on Nov. 2 and May 2 in each year. The certificates of indebtedness will be issued in bearer form only, in denominations of $50, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000 and $100,000, with two interest coupons payable Nov. 2, 1932, and May 2, 1933, respectively.

WHAT AUSTRALIANS MAY NOT LOOK AT IN MOVIE THEATERS

"Red Guards" Set Up to Fight for Head of New South Wales

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, April 24.—Two political armies, each 100,000 strong and each invisible yet ready to exert physical pressure if called upon today, stand opposed in the growing heat which has developed over the government of Premier John T. Lang of New South Wales, Australia's wealthiest and strongest state, even though it is practically bankrupt.

The "Red Guard," or workers' defense army, is growing fast. It represents the trades hall labor council's scheme to support Lang's socialistic Labor government against Col. Eric Campbell's "New Guard," which was formed in 1931 to "combat communism, Langism, and bolshevism."

75,000 Volunteers Pledged.

The nucleus of the "Red Guard" is a force of 25,000 war veterans. Added to these, the trades hall council promises 75,000 more volunteers from trade unions, "all with working class views." To these men Lang looks for the support of his program to socialize industry and agriculture, the principal issue in the next state election. Secretaries of the various labor unions are the powers behind the "Red Guard," as they are the prime movers in Lang's extremist labor rule which broke from the federal Labor party about a year ago.

"The 'New Guard,' too, means business," Col. Campbell said in referring to the rival political army. "We must get rid of Lang and his communistic followers. If he will change his policies to sane government we will be for him, but we are determined to fight bribery and corruption in office as well as socialism and communism. The 'New Guard' is a moral force with fighting forces. It is a nonparty organization. Our members comprise men of both the Labor and United Australian parties. Seventy per cent of the 'New Guard' members are workers, and we are ready for any emergency if the red elements take control of things."

Roughly, "New Guard" resembles Adolf Hitler's Nazi military organization. It is divided into three groups. The first comprises fighting forces, the second, technical units, such as operators of public utilities, and the third members who would serve as police officers.

Back All Lang Proposals.

The "Red Guard" has not revealed the secrets of its organization, but it is assumed to be along similar lines. Simply, the organization's aim is to support and control all Lang proposals favorable to the autocratic Labor régime.

In contrast, the "New Guard" stands for loyalty to the British crown, sane and honorable government for all Australia, abolition of machine politics and maintenance of political liberty.

The "New Guard's" petition with 500,000 signatures is now on its way to England, asking King George to dissolve the New South Wales parliament, due to the "grave condition of affairs in this state and because the government of the state, controlled by communists and revolutionaries, is carrying out a policy of destruction."

Forced to Sign Lang Plan.

The grave condition referred to began three months after Lang took office in October, 1930. Every Labor member of the state assembly was forced to sign the Lang plan for "socialization of production, distribution, and exchange in industry." It called for state control of all major industries, adoption of an arbitration bill compelling every employé to join a union, repudiation of overseas debts, a moratorium and reduction of interest on internal debts, abandonment of the gold standard and adoption of the "goods standard" of money.

The "New Guard" first came into prominence by breaking up meetings of "disloyal assembly and utterances" during the bitter federal elections last December. Col. Campbell was arrested for calling Lang a "tyrant and a scoundrel." Fined, Campbell won an appeal on the ground that he had not been allowed to "prove justification."

The "New Guard" had vowed that Lang should not open the $50,000,000 Sydney harbor bridge. On March 19 Capt. F. C. De Groot galloped before an assemblage of 100,000 and slashed the ribbon with a sword. Last December the "New Guard" mobilized 2,000 men and rushed them 300 miles in trucks to extinguish brush fires in western New South Wales.

WAGE EARNERS TAKE UP FIGHT ON U. S. WASTE

Employes of Many Companies Enlist.

Officials of commercial concerns and their employés throughout the middle west are responding to the plea of the midwest tax conference for a concentrated drive to curtail government waste, George W. Rossetter, chairman of the conference and president of the Association of Commerce, said yesterday.

Two thousand executives and supervisors of Montgomery Ward & Co. alone have written to the company's field representatives, urging their cooperation in soliciting volunteers to send demands for reduced expenditures to congressmen.

"This mass protest by the employés of one company is indicative of the support being given by countless wage earners to the drive against tax waste in," said Mr. Rossetter. "During the last week we received letters from scores of companies, stating that not only the organizations themselves, but their employés and stockholders, are carrying the fight to Washington.

Further impetus for the middle west drive begun in Chicago is expected on May 4, when Mayor William B. Harrison of Louisville, Ky., will address the Chicago Association of Commerce. His subject will be "Municipal Management Takes the Rap."

Since Mayor Harrison assumed office in 1928 Louisville has introduced a city plan, erected millions of dollars worth of municipal improvements and still has won a national reputation for its fiscal stability, according to Mr. Rossetter.

Ohio business leaders, joining in the movement begun by the Association of Commerce, are recommending that the federal budget be reduced to its 1926 level. They urge the elimination of all expenses that should be carried by the local governments, the curtailment of all but essential new projects, and the continued vacancy of all unfilled positions in the federal service not necessary for the proper functioning of government.

HONOR SLAIN OF 1916 IRISH EASTER WEEK REBELLION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, April 24.—A ceremony commemorating the Easter week rebellion of 1916, organized by the Clann na Gaedheal, was held in Dublin today. Neither President Eamon de Valera, who had been expected to attend, nor any member of his government, was present.

A procession formed and marched to Glasnevin cemetery where wreaths were laid on the graves of Michael Collins and the men who died during the rebellion.

Frank Thornton, the speaker, referring to the aims of the Clann, declared they have not reached the destination marked out for them by Patrick Pearce and other valiant men who signed the proclamation of the Irish republic on April 24, 1916. But they will not be deterred, no matter what threats come from the outside, he said. As long as they stand shoulder to shoulder no power on earth can prevent them from reaching their goal, he declared.

Engineer Knocked Off Locomotive; Is Killed

Fred R. Crandall, 60 years old, 1118 Woodbine avenue, Oak Park, a locomotive engineer for the North Western railroad, died last night in St. Luke's hospital of injuries received earlier in the day. He was knocked from the running board of his moving engine by a switch lever and thrown to the ground in the yards of the railroad at Kinzie street and Oakland avenue.

BIND 2; ESCAPE WITH $1,000.

Gretna, Neb., April 24.—(AP)—Two robbers last night looted the home of Bill, Jim and Dennis Murphy in the Platte river hills south of here of $1,600 in negotiable bonds and cash. After binding the brothers, all of whom are more than 60 years old, with baling wire, the robbers fled.

Pastor Denied Permission to Found a New Church

The petition of the Rev. Paul E. W. Luecke and some 100 of his followers to establish a new Lutheran church near the Bethlehem Lutheran church of Evanston was rejected last night by the congregation of Bethlehem church. The Rev. Mr. Luecke resigned as pastor of the church several weeks ago, giving lack of harmony as his reason. Under the church law a portion of a congregation cannot withdraw and form a neighboring church without the permission of the parent congregation.

"WHY DIDN'T I SAVE $27.23 On My Automobile Insurance?"

CONSIDER THESE SAVINGS in this $23,000,000 Company

This chart shows how much the Liberty Mutual dividend has reduced the cost of complete insurance on cars in Chicago and vicinity. Liberty Mutual has paid 20% dividends off standard rates to every policyholder every year for 20 years.

	Lincoln Cadillac Packard Class	Buick Chrysler Class	Ford Chevrolet Plymouth Class
	UP TO	UP TO	UP TO
Chicago	$27.23	$21.95	$16.14
Chicago(suburbs)	19.18	15.41	12.08
Gary & Hammond	20.10	16.10	12.77

Monthly payments, if desired

"WHY SHOULD I pay $27.23 more for my car insurance than my friends who buy their insurance direct from Liberty Mutual?

"My broker doesn't like it. That's natural because the Liberty won't pay him a commission. They sell direct and pass along the savings to you in dividends. Liberty Mutual spends only one-third as much as other companies spend to sell a dollar's worth of automobile insurance.

"Liberty Mutual has no stockholders. It pays all dividends to its policyholders in cash.

"This plan would have saved me $27.23 on the insurance of my Cadillac in 1931.

"Liberty Mutual has an unbroken record of earning and paying 20% dividends off standard rates to its policyholders for 20 years and has added substantial sums to surplus and reserves each year. The company has assets of $23,262,045; reserves of $19,335,858 and a surplus of $3,926,177 (December 31, 1931). It is the largest mutual liability insurance company in the country. 99% of its cases are settled without trial in court, which proves that Liberty Mutual must be fair and prompt in making settlements.

"Liberty Mutual has more than 100,000 policyholders—responsible, careful driving car-owners. They have saved over $32,000,000 for their policyholders—and I could just as well have had my share of it."

Congress Party Manages to Convene on Street.

BY EGBERT SWENSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DELHI, India, April 24.—Delhi was the scene of intense activity today as police arrested more than 400 members of Mahatma Gandhi's Nationalist Congress party in a determined effort by the government to prevent the party's annual convention from opening today. The arrests in the last four days total more than 700, of which about 200 were of Congress party delegates.

Twenty-three of the forty members of the party's resolutions committee selected from all parts of India by Mme. Sarojini Naidu before her arrest at Bombay Friday managed to meet to formulate five resolutions approving the civil resistance struggle and directing its determined continuance.

Meet in City Square.

The resolutions are being circulated secretly among those delegates who have thus far avoided arrest and the majority of votes necessary for adoption are said to have been secured.

Seth Amritlal of Ahmedabad presided at a massmeeting at 9 a. m. beneath the clock tower in the city square at which five resolutions were read and approved by acclamation.

An address by Pandit Peareial Sharma, who automatically succeeded the arrested Pandit Malaviya as chairman of the convention, was then read, after which the annual report of the Congress party and the resolutions of Mme. Naidu's committee were freely distributed among those who had gathered in the street. This gathering was proclaimed the "opening session" of the Congress party. A strong police detachment then arrived, formed a cordon, and arrested 150.

Thirteen Women Captured.

Later in the forenoon ninety Sikhs were similarly surrounded while they were marching down the main street. Another procession of thirteen women were captured in the same street and placed in jail.

The city was crisscrossed by police patrols on horse and on foot tonight and the number of arrests steadily mounted.

Gangadhrao Deshpande, 60 year old landowner from Belgium, has been appointed Mme. Naidu's successor as president of the Congress party, but he is still at large.

The situation became increasingly tense toward midnight as procession after procession marched down Delhi's main street and police resorted to "lathi" charges. Wholesale arrests were made. Rebels sat down in the streets and had to be removed bodily. A mob finally dumped the municipal dust bins onto the street car tracks, stopping traffic. A local municipal commissioner was among those arrested.

YOUTH INDICTED AS POLICE KILLER RETURNED HERE

George Copley, 24 years old, who has been indicted for the murder of Policeman James L. Kelly in Oak Park on March 31, was brought back to Oak Park yesterday from Newark, O., where he was arrested a week ago.

Kelly was a member of the Gary police force. With Policeman Milton Larsen of Oak Park he went to a house at 37 Harrison street, Oak Park, after receiving information that a gang which had been robbing Gary merchants had headquarters there. The two policemen arrested four men, one of them Copley, and after taking a pistol from each started to march them to a corner patrol box.

On the way, it is alleged, Copley drew a second pistol he had concealed, shot and killed Kelly and wounded Larsen. He then fled, as did one of his companions. One member of the gang, Richard Fredericks, was wounded as he tried to escape and the fourth was held. Copley was arrested in Newark after a theater robbery.

Taxi Driver Gives Blood to Save Fellow Worker

Pedro Fascino, 32 years old, of 3301 Broadway, a driver for the Checker Taxi company, was stabbed below the heart by an unidentified men during an altercation in a waffle shop at 800 Grace street last night. He was taken to the Lake View hospital. A call for volunteers for a blood transfusion was sent out. Fourteen Checker drivers and one woman, Mrs. Ruth Wessinger, 32, mother of two children, responded. Charles Greenberg, a driver was chosen, and the transfusion was performed by Dr. E. B. McDonald, aided by Drs. Theodore Hudson and A. F. Barnett.

John, Circus Tickets Await You If You'll Come Home

There are a couple of circus tickets waiting at home for John Zengel, 14 years old, student at St. Patrick's high school, his father, Albert Zengel, 5942 North Paulina street, told police yesterday in asking them to search for the boy. John disappeared on March 29, the day before he was to have appeared as a boxer in a tournament staged by the Catholic Youth organization. Zengel told police that his wife is on the verge of a breakdown as the result of their son's disappearance.

DEADLINE IS SET FOR WORLD'S FAIR PHOTO CONTEST

Entries for Salon Must Be In by March 1, 1933.

All prints for the fifth Chicago international photographic salon at the 1933 World's Fair must be in by March 1, 1933, it was announced yesterday. The work will be judged by an international jury of camera artists.

GEORGE HIGH.

The salon will be held under the auspices of the Chicago Camera club and the Photographers' International Association of America. It will take place in the Graphic Arts building of the Century of Progress exposition.

Chairman of Committee.

George Henry High is chairman of the committee in charge of the salon. Other members include W. C. West, secretary; F. M. Tuckerman, treasurer; Joseph E. Otis, Burton Holmes, Mrs. Jacob Baur, George Daniels Stafford, John Lavecchia, Elmer E. Zuegel, Joseph Simons, C. W. Mogg, and Alfons Weber.

The best of the world's photography will be shown at the exposition, according to the committee.

Photographs will be placed in four classifications: (A) Pictorial, general subjects; (B) portraiture; (C) commercial [any photographs made primarily for advertising illustration, press, architectural, merchandise, and pattern], and (D) technical, including microscopic, astronomical, X-ray, aerial, medical, and other scientific subjects. The contest is open to any photographer, professional or amateur. The prints are to be sent to the Chicago Camera club at 137 North Wabash avenue.

Sponsors of the Event.

Among the organizations sponsoring the salon are THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the Chicago Daily News, the Photographers' International Association of America, Camera Club of New York, the Royal Photographic Society of Great Britain, Societe Française de Photographie de Paris, Photographie Societe de Picardy, and the Eastman Kodak company.

SHIP BRINGING TRIBUNE RECORD LOAD OF PAPER

No race was in progress yesterday when the ship Joliet left the dock at Thorold, Canada, bound for Chicago, more than 800 miles away, but a record was being broken in the trip. The Joliet was carrying more than 6,300 tons of newsprint for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the largest amount of newsprint ever carried in a single ship.

Recently, at the opening of navigation, four vessels raced to Chicago with cargoes of the paper that is part of the "Trees to Tribunes" and the combined loads amounted to 14,706,000 pounds—not so much more than the Joliet is carrying alone. The Joliet is owned by the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Company of Cleveland, O., and is an oil carrier of immense cubical capacity.

Surplus Put on Ships.

At the close of navigation last Nov. 30 she was stationed at Thorold, where the Ontario Paper company—a TRIBUNE subsidiary—has its mills. The surplus production of paper was loaded into it, as well as into other ships, so that THE TRIBUNE'S reserve of paper stock was held at Thorold, instead of Chicago, during the winter while the lakes are closed to navigation and the regular supply of white paper comes to THE TRIBUNE by train.

"The Joliet carries five times as much as either the Chicago Tribune or the New York News, ships of THE TRIBUNE fleet," said H. A. Laird, traffic manager of THE TRIBUNE. "It is 504 feet long and has a 54 foot beam. It draws 18 feet 9 inches and will have to come through only one lock, that at Port Colbourne, which is 600 feet long and has a 24 foot depth.

Will Dock on Wednesday.

"It will travel about 12 miles an hour and is expected to reach Chicago in seventy-five hours, so that it will probably dock some time on Wednesday and will be unloaded Thursday morning. After this supply is received, which is enough for three weeks, THE TRIBUNE will require only what the Thorold, making a round trip every ten days, will bring."

DEAD BREWERIES REMIND CITY OF LOST TAX SOURCE

Stand in the Background of World's Fair.

Visitors to the World's Fair next year may view the remains of three of Chicago's larger pre-prohibition breweries, just across the Illinois Central tracks from the exposition grounds. Decaying inside from rust, and crumbling outside from the action of the elements, they stand abandoned except by the sparrows—monuments to Volsteadism.

They are the Keeley brewery at 516 East 28th street, the adjacent Conrad Seipp brewery at 27th street and Brewery avenue, and the McAvoy at 23d street and South Park way. Their massive brick structures, which will contrast with the modernistic edifices of the world's fair, represent original investments totaling $3,000,000.

Would Give Work to 2,000.

Thomas F. Keeley, head of the old Keeley brewery, which was smaller than Seipp's, larger than McAvoy's and an average for the three, explained yesterday what an exposition of progress these breweries could provide if legal beer were restored. To begin with, they would afford six month's employment for at least 2,000 men—boilermakers, coopers, carpenters, brick masons, painters, glaziers, tin and coppersmiths—who would be needed to put them in operating shape. About $250,000 would have to be expended on each brewery, according to Mr. Keeley.

Once in operation, they would provide permanent employment for 200 men each, including an average of 40 drivers each. This would necessitate the purchase of 120 new trucks, at around $1,000 each.

The average output of the three breweries before prohibition was 200,000 barrels of beer a year. A bushel and a half of grain, mostly barley, but also corn, is needed to make the malt for a barrel of beer. This would afford a market for 900,000 bushels of grain, all grown in the middle west, each year. A pound and a half of hops is needed for a barrel, and this would mean 900,000 pounds of hops, coming from Oregon, California and New York.

Six Dollars Tax on a Barrel.

Before prohibition beer wholesaled at $10 the 32 gallon barrel in Chicago, and out of the $10 the brewer paid the government $6 in excise taxes. Since the United States adopted prohibition, England has doubled its beer taxes. Chicago beer drinkers now pay a bootleg price of 25 cents a small stein, whereas it was only 10 cents a stein, or 5 cents a glass, in the old days. A simple arithmetical computation shows the tax could be raised two and a half times, and beer still sold for 15 cents a stein, with a fair profit for the retailer and the brewer, for grain is now much cheaper than it was when the country went dry.

Before prohibition, the records show, these three breweries paid the government about $3,600,000 a year in taxes. At $15 a barrel they would pay $9,000,000.

There were 25 large breweries with an average output of 100,000 barrels a year in Chicago before prohibition. This would mean 2,500,000 barrels. Chicago consumed about 3,000,000 barrels a year, much of it being shipped in from Milwaukee and St. Louis.

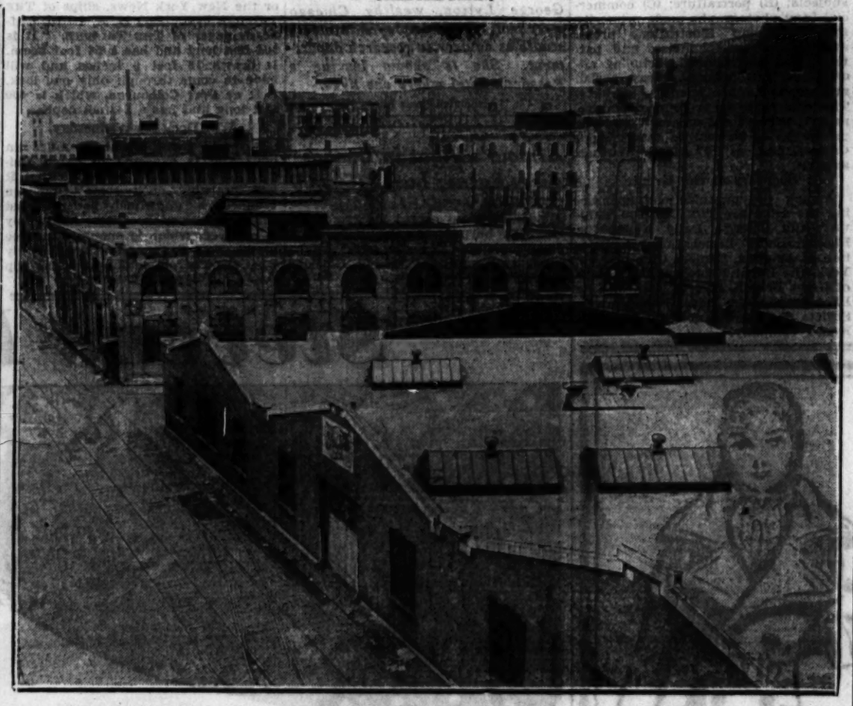
Would Pay $37,500,000.

With a production of 2,500,000 barrels, 3,750,000 bushels of grain would be used each year, and the 25 breweries would afford employment for at least 2,500 men. On the 2,500,000 barrels the government would collect $37,500,000 in taxes each year, more than one-fourth of all the federal income taxes paid in the First district of Illinois for a year.

Profits from the beer business now go to the bootleggers, who pay no taxes. The Capone price for beer is $55 a barrel, which is the reason for its retailing at 25 cents for an 8 ounce glass. The government's investigation into the Capone beer trust, which led to the indictment of Al Capone and 68 of his henchmen last June, disclosed that they manufactured 1,000 barrels a day, so that their gross receipts were $55,000 a day.

THREE LARGE EXHIBITS JUST OUTSIDE THE FAIR GROUNDS

The deserted Keeley brewery (left) at 516 East 28th street and the McAvoy brewery at 2349 South Park avenue, which with the Seipp brewery nearby are plainly visible across the Illinois Central tracks from the Century of Progress exposition grounds. If the breweries were reopened they would give temporary employment to 2,000 men and permanent employment to 600 men, provide the government with from $3,000,000 to $9,000,000 a year in revenue and consume 900,000 bushels of grain and 9,000 pounds of hops.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]



The deserted Conrad Seipp brewery at 27th street and Brewery avenue, which with the neighboring Keeley and McAvoy breweries comprise an unadvertised exhibit for the 1933 World's Fair which tells a story of loss of millions of revenue, a market for millions of bushels of grain and permanent positions for 600 men and temporary employment for at least 2,000 more. BRITISH "PUBS" TO STRIKE AGAINST HIGH BEER TAX

May Shut Taps for One Week.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 24.—Saloon keepers of Great Britain today began making strong efforts to organize a lockout strike against what they regard as the destructive beer tax.

It is planned to keep the saloons open to retain their licenses, but they will only sell whisky and wines which few would drink during the duration of the strike. Every beer tap in London would be stopped for a week or so to let John Bull know what the tax, amounting to half the price of each tankard, costs the beer drinking public.

The industry was looking forward to a reduction of the tax in Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain's new budget, but the chancellor let it and the host of drinkers down by asserting that a decrease amounting to two cents a pint would cost the treasury $40,000,000 annually and that it could not be done.

Now warfare against the tax is to be organized in real earnest. Representatives of brewers and landlords met secretly in London during the week-end to prepare preliminary plans for a general agreement refusing to sell beer. A tour of saloons showed that the publicans are anxious to suspend trade of the most popular drink of Britain, provided all houses are brought into the movement.

"I can't refuse to sell beer if my competitors do not refuse," one said, "but I hope the others will join. We may as well pack up with business as it is. It is the most foolish tax ever known. Beer costs the working man 12 cents a pint, which he can't afford."

It is confidently predicted in one quarter that the provisions of the tax will be changed before the finance act implementing the budget is passed in the house of commons this week.

As an example of hardship, a 150 year old brewing firm which formerly boasted that it never had discharged an employé, has closed down half of its huge factory. Railroads, too, are losing business. Seventy thousand barmen and barmaids have been discharged and 200,000 workers depending upon beer for a livelihood have been thrown on the dole.

PREDICT ONLY 43 PCT. OF TAXES WILL BE PAID

Budgets on a 90 Per Cent Basis.

Most of the major local governments made budgets and spent money in 1930 on the assumption they would get 90 per cent of the $290,283,000 taxes levied, or more than $260,000,000. The present prospect is for the payment of about half that amount.

Of the $100,693,913 in 1930 taxes collected, $59,017,883 has already been turned over to the tax expending bodies and spent either in the retirement of tax anticipation warrants or in salaries. Another distribution of tax money, probably in excess of $6,000,000, will be made by County Treasurer McDonough today, according to announcement yesterday.

The town collectors have distributed to the suburbs $11,575,286. Of the collections made by the county treasurer, he has distributed $47,442,597.

So the local governments have absorbed the $59,017,883 in taxes already distributed, and a third of the year has not yet elapsed.

5 SPANISH ART WORKS SLASHED; BLAME STUDENTS

MADRID, Spain, April 24.—(AP)—Five valuable paintings displayed by the academy of the San Fernando Art school were found slashed or otherwise destroyed today.

The director said he believed students were responsible because the pictures represented the conventional work of artists who had received prizes in Rome.

The paintings were José Garuelo's "El Centauro," Morcillo's "La Virtud," Chicharro's "Trabajo Eygento," Oliva's "Cain y Abel," and Argela's "Las Lavanderas."

Girl Holds Rifle Title After Beating Boy Rivals

Miss Caroline Yerkes, 16 year old senior at New Trier High school, will be in a position to crow over the boy members of the high school R. O. T. C. unit when she returns to her classes today. On Saturday she obtained permission to compete in the interscholastic rifle matches and turned in a better score than any of her boy competitors to win the individual title. Her home is at 985 Vine street, Winnetka.

PUT TO SEA WITH NEW LINDBERGH RANSOM CASH

Believed to Have Made Contact with Kidnaper.

Norfolk, Va., April 24.—[Special.]—Acting on instructions from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and with the cooperation of the United States naval air and surface craft under secret orders, John Hughes Curtis of Norfolk, and Edwin B. Bruce, Elmira, N. Y., are tonight putting to sea for the second time in forty-eight hours in what is authoritatively described as a final effort to close negotiations for the return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, now missing 55 days.

It was regarded as highly probable that Curtis reported a satisfactory identification of the child, and that an initial payment on a ransom or reward is being carried with them.

Curtis, Bruce and an unidentified man, believed to be a personal representative of Col. Lindbergh, were aboard the yacht Macon, prepared, it is believed, to contact the master mind of the kidnaping syndicate, thought by federal authorities to be on a foreign ship well outside the 12-mile limit.

This move followed a series of conferences with high naval officers held aboard the craft during the afternoon, while communication was established and report made to Col. Lindbergh on the results of the 36-hour trip of the craft, which left Norfolk Friday night and returned this morning.

SEEKS UNDERWORLD HELP

BY TOM PETTY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 24.—[Special.]—Certain curious developments in the Lindbergh kidnaping case indicated today that members of the family of the abducted child had again turned to the underworld in their hopes for the safe return of the baby. Refusing to accept the growing outside belief that Charles Jr. is dead, at least two members of the immediate family are doing all in their power to quietly cooperate with highranking gangland chiefs in an intensive search.

There is a persistent report here that a nationally circulated offer of $150,000 has been made in racketeering circles for information that will permit underworld bosses themselves to recover the child and return him to his parents.

This benevolent action on the part of the gangsters coupled with their strangley pious rage at the audacity of the kidnapers is the result of cause and effect rather than any birth of sentimental weakness or touch of human kindness. Gangland, acording to THE TRIBUNE'S informant, is quite willing to pay all the costs for the return of the child. Col. Lindbergh need not put up another penny. In fact, it would be better if he did not.

Reacts Against Crime.

The reasons, one investigator explains, are these:

"The Lindbergh kidnaping has grown into the most serious threat the underworld has ever faced. It has caused a great deal more trouble and financial loss than all the work of the income tax collectors.

"Gangland throughout the country has been ransacked and prodded by federal, state and local law enforcement operatives in the search for the child. There has been an active espionage maintained by each gang on rival gangs and in several instances even members of the same mob have spied on one another. The haphazard search of police and detectives has been utilized by many underworld characters to obtain the arrest and embarrassment of rivals.

"In addition to the loss of security protection and ease of operation all of which have been seriously handicapped by the intensive hunt for the child, there has been a tremendous financial loss.

Hinders Rum Traffic.

"The Lindbergh kidnaping, unreasonable as it may sound, has had a direct effect on illicit transportation of beer and liquor. Trucks and false bottomed touring cars which use to lumber easily across borders, up and down Long Island and other shore roads or through city streets, now have to proceed more carefully and the way has to be well greased for vehicle that is above suspicion.

"The kidnaping racket itself, known to the underworld as the 'snatch business,' once was one of the most profitable sidelines in the racketeering world. Today, due to the Lindbergh case, it is too hot to be thought of by a professional, although still alluring to the younger mobsmen.

"On the other hand," it was pointed out to this reporter, "the recovery of the kidnaped child by the underworld and the subsequent return of the baby would create a sentimental reaction worth millions of dollars to the larger mobs. It would be vastly beneficial to gangland, for it would show the underworld virtually an invisible government in itself."

The name of Al Capone has been frequently drawn into the case, correctly or incorrectly, as one who could find the child in a few days. Owney Madden, New York underworld boss, has been actively engaged in the search.

Differs with Hoover on Many Points.

Beginning July 1, 1933, the salaries of appointive members of the federal reserve board, interstate commerce commission and tariff commission are reduced to $10,000.

Another permanent reduction applies to the salaries of judges which exceed $10,000, the bill providing that after July 1, 1933, such salaries shall be $10,000. Under the constitutional inhibition this reduction will not apply to judges now in office. But if the provision becomes law the successor of Chief Justice Hughes will receive $10,000 instead of $20,500 and future associate justices half of their present $20,000 stipend.

Automatic pay increases and administrative promotions are suspended for the 1933 fiscal year and vacancies are not to be filled except by order of the President in emergency cases. Retirement of employés for age is also made compulsory. Travel allowances are reduced all along the line. Overtime pay is suspended.

Limits Double Compensation.

A retired army or navy officer holding a civil office will not be allowed to receive both retired and civilian pay in excess of $3,000 combined. This does not apply to the emergency officers' retired list or persons retired for disability in line of duty.

In making dismissals department heads are instructed to begin with a husband or wife when both are in the government employ.

After July 1 next the expense of the Philippine scouts is to be charged to the Philippine government.

The bill provides for the gradual reduction of federal aid to the states for vocational education over a period of ten years. This expense now approximates 9 millions a year.

Reduce Printing Costs.

The expenditures on printing and binding by congress and the administrative departments which now aggregate $14,500,000 a year are to be held down to 9 million by another provision of the bill.

The stationery allowance for 96 senators is cut to $16,000 and for 435 congressmen to $44,000.

Construction of a large central heating plant for government buildings which was to cost $750,000 is temporarily suspended.

The war and navy departments are instructed to discontinue their ocean transport services and transfer the ships to the shipping board. The committee is convinced that private shipping lines can transport army and navy personnel and effects for 2 millions a year less than it costs the government with the 60 transports in service.

A similar provision requires the Panama Railroad company to discontinue operation of its line of ships between the Canal Zone and New York, the object being to transfer this business to private ship lines.

The shipping board is reorganized with four members, salaries in both the board and the merchant fleet corporation limited to $10,000 and various allotments of funds aggregating several millions of dollars lopped off.

Cleveland-New York—Overcast, followed by rain Monday; moderate northeast winds, fresh near Cleveland, up to 1,000 feet and fresh to strong west shifting to west southwest at 5,000 feet.

The bill would increase numerous charges and fees for government services. Government publications are to be sold at 30 per cent above cost. Patent fees are raised from $25 to $30. The commerce department is directed to make charges for statistic services, special commodity, technical and regional news bulletins and periodical services, lists of foreign buyers, and world trade directory reports. The bureau of mines is directed to collect full costs from all industries for tests and investigations. Similar fees are to be exacted by the bureau of standards for tests and other services to industries.

The government is authorized to transfer fish hatcheries to the states in which they are situated upon application by the state and without cost to the state.

Upon application by any state the government is authorized to transfer any agricultural experiment station located therein.

"[a] To group, coördinate, and consolidate executive and administrative agencies of the government as nearly as may be, according to major purpose;

"[b] To reduce the number of such agencies by consolidating those having similar functions under a single head;

"[c] To eliminate overlapping and duplication of effort, and

The President is authorized to carry out these rearrangements by executive order except that when he concludes that any government agency should be abolished he is required to report his conclusions to congress with his recommendations. His executive orders are not to become effective for 60 days, in which time they may be nullified by either house of congress.

The bill creates a public works administration which will take over the construction of waterways, public buildings and other public works. Army engineers now detailed to river and harbor work will be assigned to the public works administration.

New Cabinet Officer.

A secretary of national defense is to be the head of the combined war and navy departments. Under him will be three assistant secretaries, one for the army, one for the navy and one for aviation. The secretary is authorized to reorganize and coördinate all the activities of the two existing departments.

GENTZEL WARS ON TAXI DANCES; WANTS 16 SHUT

City Lawyer Is Puzzled at Judge's Attitude.

Superior Judge Robert E. Gentzel yesterday declared war on taxi dance halls. He announced he will send a list of sixteen of the resorts to State's Attorney Swanson with the request that they be put out of business.

With the announcement of his intention to end this racket of hoodlums and gangsters, the judge said he had been put in the wrong light by the corporation counsel's office. The judge had issued temporary injunctions permitting the Club Floridan, 676 West Madison street, and the Colonial Dancing school, 1705 West Madison street, two of the most notorious halls, to operate.

One Injunction Dissolved.

In the drive against the resorts by Assistant Corporation Counsels Otto F. Weiner and William V. Daly, Judge Gentzel dissolved his restraining order which had prevented police from raiding the Club Floridan for 18 months. Tomorrow he will act on a recommendation of Master in Chancery Adolph Easter that the injunction protecting the Colonial Dancing school also be dissolved.

"I have been put in the wrong light by the corporation counsel's office," Judge Gentzel said yesterday. "I have been criticized because I have issued several temporary injunctions. Now, I am told, sixteen of the dance halls are operating. I will ask the state's attorney to close them.

"The corporation counsel's office could have brought the matter to a head at any time by moving to dissolve the injunctions. It filed only an answer, so the matter was referred to a master in chancery."

City Lawyer Tells Side.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Weiner said his office had moved to have the cases heard immediately after issuance of the restraining orders and had objected to submission of them to a master. He said the court's records substantiate his contention.

"I am mystified in attempting to understand why Judge Gentzel is so interested in closing sixteen dance halls now that the Club Floridan is closed and a master has recommended the removal of the restraining order on the Colonial Dancing school. He never said anything about these resorts when the Club Floridan was operating.

Can't Understand Judge.

"Presentation of the matter to the state's attorney is entirely unnecessary. The police are fully capable of acting and would have closed the Floridan and Colonial had not Judge Gentzel's order stood in the way. This is another action of the judge's I am unable to understand."

Mr. Weiner also said he doubted whether there are sixteen resorts now operating. He said some had closed voluntarily and that he believed the judge's list includes reputable dancing schools.

The return of daylight savings time to Chicago yesterday was marked by the resumption of 18 hour service to New York by the extra fare trains of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads. The two roads ran 18 hour limited trains to New York from 1902 to 1912, but lengthened their schedules to 20 hours in the latter year.

Mayor Cermak and Anne Forrest, the actress, each broke a bottle containing water from the various lakes and rivers along its route on the pilot of the Twentieth Century limited as it pulled out over the New York Central at 2:30 o'clock.

The Broadway limited, 18 hour train of the Pennsylvania, left at the same time, after Jackie Cooper, boy movie actor, had cut the ribbons barring its path. On the train were Charles A. Pinney, conductor, and F. B. Brobst, dining car steward, who traveled on the Pennsylvania Special, as the Broadway was known when it traveled on its previous 18 hour schedule two decades ago. Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, on her way to France to play tennis, was a passenger on the initial run.

The coming of daylight saving time was marked by one fatality in Chicago. Mrs. Anna Larson, 52 years old, ascended a stepladder in her home at 949 North Parkside avenue to turn the clock ahead, fell, and broke her neck.

HODES TO URGE COUNCIL ACTION ON UTILITY PROBE

Aim to Put Program Before Assembly.

Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th], sponsor in the city council of a resolution for an inquiry into the effectiveness of present public utility regulation in Illinois, declared yesterday that he will urge action this week in gathering the needed facts.

ALD. HODES.

The resolution is pending before the council committee on judiciary and state legislation, which is expected to hold hearings, inviting to its sessions specialists and university authorities to give information concerning regulatory practices and principles to the aldermen.

The committee has been specifically directed to lend its efforts to compile reports for the council for the purpose of submitting to the legislature a concrete program in connection with the city's home rule bill. The reports will deal with the advantages or disadvantages of state over local control and the effectiveness of the Illinois commerce commission as compared to other state commissions.

Aimed to Relieve Cities.

"Although the creation of the state commerce commission was intended in the main to relieve municipalities of the burden of prosecuting rate proceedings and other public utility litigation," said Ald. Hodes, "the city recently has been compelled to engage experts to procure lower gas, telephone, and elevated rates.

"In Indiana, Michigan, Idaho, Ohio, Kansas, and Wisconsin, the state commissions are permitted to compel utilities to bear the cost of investigations and appraisals of their properties. It is necessary to have appraisals on which to base rates, but many municipalities have no funds with which to make appraisals.

Try Cases in State Courts.

"Three states, Arizona, Wisconsin, and New York, provide that litigation affecting rate orders of their commissions is to be tried in the state instead of the federal courts. Other states prosecute all rate and valuation cases in the courts, relieving the municipalities of the cost of employing special attorneys."

See Ball Game

H. Gordon Selfridge, London department store owner formerly of Chicago, arrived here yesterday from New York to visit with friends. He was accompanied by his daughter, Vicomtesse Violette de Sibour. Mr. Selfridge said he is not here on business reasons. In the afternoon he took his daughter to see her first baseball game.

STREET CAR MAN SHOT AS HE TRIES TO SEIZE ROBBER

John Taylor, 3539 North Damen avenue, conductor on a Lincoln avenue street car, was shot in the arm yesterday when he tried to catch a bandit whom he saw robbing a milk wagon driver. The bandit, Russell Kawell, 21 years old, 1432 Fletcher street, was captured by police as he fled from the scene of the shooting.

Kawell first tried to rob Albert Bellows, conductor of a northbound Lincoln avenue car, at Webster avenue. Bellows pushed him off the platform of the moving car. On meeting Taylor's car, which was southbound, Bellows warned Taylor regarding the robber.

When Taylor's car reached Webster avenue he saw Kawell robbing Carl Roll, 1828 Burling street, the milk wagon driver. He went to Roll's rescue and was shot. After Kawell was captured by policemen he was found to be intoxicated. He admitted that he was granted probation a year ago after being convicted of robbery. Two victims besides Roll identified him at the Hudson avenue police station.

TWO YOUTHS HURT AS AUTO PLUNGES IN DITCH, UPSETS

Three Others Injured in Another Crash.

Charles Merrell, 23 years old, 3345 Green street, Steger, and Raymond Burton, 22 years old, 1908 Chicago road, Chicago Heights, were seriously injured last evening when an automobile driven by Burton plunged into a ditch and overturned at the Lincoln highway and Cottage Grove avenue, east of Chicago Heights. Both men were taken to the St. James hospital in Chicago Heights.

Three men were seriously injured at Kedzie and Archer avenues when a car in which they were riding crashed into a post. They are Stanley Sefranski, 6142 Ogden avenue; John Maiceak, 3733 West 63d street, and Steve Viske, who resides near 65th street and Ridgeland avenue. The youths, all between 21 and 23 years old, were taken to St. Anthony's hospital.

Louis Schroeder, 70 years old, who was struck near his home in Monee, Will county, on Friday by an automobile driven by C. N. Rognlien of Milwaukee, died last night in the St. James hospital, Chicago Heights.

Louis Whitlow, 6 years old, colored, 331 North Western avenue, died yesterday at the county hospital of injuries sustained Friday when he rode his tricycle into the side of a moving truck. August Cheney, 1733 Sheffield avenue, driver of the truck, was not held by police.

An unidentified man, 60 years old, was seriously injured last night when he was run down at Douglas boulevard and Spaulding avenue by an automobile driven by Ralph Iasillo, 22 years old, of 250 West 24th street. Iasillo took him to Mount Sinai hospital.

SIX ARE KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO IN INDIANA

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 24.—[Special.]—Six persons were killed at 5 o'clock this afternoon when the eastbound Liberty Limited of the Pennsylvania railroad demolished an automobile at a crossing 18 miles southeast of this city near the Indiana-Ohio state line. The dead are:

Mrs. Mollie Kraus, 38 years old, who resided on a farm a few miles east of Fort Wayne.

Three in Rumble Seat.

The women and baby were riding in the driver's seat of a coupe, while the three children were in the rumble seat. The crossing permits a clear view of the track for some distance, and no reason for the accident is known. No one witnessed the accident.

The party was returning from Payne, O., after visiting the mother of Mrs. Kraus and Miss Ott.

The automobile was demolished, and the bodies of the victims were hurled out. The body of the machine was thrown 300 feet.

Four Brothers Killed.

Canton, N. Y., April 24.—(AP)—Four brothers, one a Methodist Episcopal minister on his way to preach his first sermon in a new charge, were killed as a train struck their car at a grade crossing here today.

The dead, all from Gouverneur, were the Rev. Otto Helvie, 34; Zachariah Helvie, 35; Louis, 37, and Charles A., 40.

A friend riding with them, James E. McPherson, 50, also of Gouverneur, was severely injured, but is expected to recover.

The Rev. Otto Helvie was transferred to Constable, N. Y., near Malone, at the recent Methodist conference here. It had been the custom of his brothers to go with him to a new charge for his first sermon.

Four Killed in Ohio.

Akron, O., April 24.—(AP)—Four persons were killed and five injured in an automobile accident here early today when an unidentified automobile driver forced another driver to the left side of the street and collision with a third car.

The dead, all of Akron, are: Miss Ivy Miller, 24; M. H. Voehler, 29; Miss Dolly Poole, 26; Mrs. Anna Lloyd, 25. One of the injured, C. E. Cable, 32, is not expected to live.

Police are seeking the driver of the first car, who disappeared without stopping after the accident.

Mail Carrier Killed.

Evansville, Ind., April 24.—[Special.]—Edward Gray, age 54, Otwell mail carrier and husband of Beulah Gray, editor of the Otwell Star, was fatally injured last night in a four car auto accident. J. Lee Chaille, a teacher, was severely cut about the face. The other eight persons figuring in the accident were not injured.

CRIME VICTIMS VIEW 11 SEIZED IN GANG ROUNDUP

Eleven members of an alleged bank bandit and kidnaping gang, seized Friday night in Chicago Heights, were in the showup before crime victims at the detective bureau yesterday.

No identifications for local crime were established. Chief Investigator Pat Roche of the state's attorney's office predicted, however, that different results might be attained at a special showup today for witnesses of Indiana bank holdups.

Roche asserted last night that some of the men were responsible for the kidnaping last fall of Howard A. Woolverton of South Bend, a manufacturer, who reputedly paid $50,000 for his release.

THE MOONEY CASE.

On July 22, 1916, the people of San Francisco were gathered in the streets of that city to take part in and witness a preparedness parade, or demonstration in favor of strengthening the national defense. As the parade was passing the intersection of Steuart and Market streets a bomb placed in a suitcase exploded, killing ten persons, men, women, and children, and wounding about fifty others.

For this crime Thomas J. Mooney and his wife, Warren K. Billings, Israel Weinberg, a taxi driver, and Edward Nolan, president of Machinists' lodge No. 68, were arrested and charged with the crime. In the following September Billings was tried, found guilty of murder in the second degree and sentenced to life imprisonment. In January and February, 1917, Mooney was tried, found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged.

Pending Mooney's appeal, during the months following his conviction, agitation was organized by labor and by radical organizations throughout the United States, in Europe and South America. Boycott of California products and sympathethic strikes were threatened in this country and there were protests and demonstrations abroad, especially in Russia.

In April one of the witnesses, Oxman, an Oregon cattleman who had sworn he saw Mooney and Billings at the scene of the crime, was charged with perjury, and Judge Griffin, the trial judge, requested the attorney general to have the case sent back for retrial. The attorney general complied with this request and so stipulated to the Supreme court. But in May Oxman was brought back and upon his trial for perjury was acquitted. Shortly after this Mrs. Mooney and in October Weinberg were tried and acquitted.

In January, 1918, a mediation commission which had been appointed by President Wilson reported expressing doubt of the fairness of Mooney's trial and the President requested Gov. Stephens to grant Mooney a new trial. But in March the Supreme court of California affirmed the conviction of Mooney, holding that it was without power to review the question of perjury alleged after the trial.

In September and October the United States director general of employment secretly investigated the case, but a demand for disclosure of his activities was denied.

In November the United States Supreme court refused to entertain Mooney's application for review and ten days later President Wilson sent two telegrams to Gov. Stephens urging him to take action. The governor commuted Mooney's sentence to life imprisonment, but denied his application for pardon.

In February, 1921, John McDonald, a witness against Mooney and Billings, repudiated his testimony and charged that he was coached by the prosecution. The state Supreme court later in a proceeding for pardon of Billings said the repudiation was not convincing and that his first testimony gave the impression of truth.

In October, 1926, Mooney applied for pardon to Gov. Richardson. In December, 1927, he repeated the application to Gov. Young. In August, 1928, Frank Walsh, a New York attorney, appealed to Gov. Young to review the Mooney case and the governor consented. In the following November he announced his inability to come to a satisfactory conclusion and referred the case to the pardon board. In July, 1930, the Supreme court refused to recommend a pardon for Billings and in the same month the pardon board refused to recommend Mooney's pardon. Gov. Young thereupon refused Mooney's application, accepting the Supreme court's decision in refusing Billings' application as conclusive. In July of 1930 a reward was offered by certain newspapers to discover the witness McDonald, who was found in Baltimore and taken to California. The California Supreme court at once reopened the Billings case and examined McDonald, other witnesses and Billings. In December following the court again refused to recommend a pardon for Billings.

In February, 1931, Mooney petitioned Gov. Rolph for pardon and in November of that year Mayor Walker of New York announced that he would go to San Francisco to plead with the governor for Mooney's pardon. He went.

On April 21 of this year Gov. Rolph announced his refusal of the Mooney application, basing his decision on the findings and recommendation of two legal advisers, Judge Sullivan, former chief justice of the California Supreme court, and Lewis F. Byington, an attorney of San Francisco. This report of 25,000 words has been made public, but is not yet available to THE TRIBUNE. A thousand word statement by Gov. Rolph declares his belief in the guilt of Mooney, and a letter of his advisers, transmitting their report, is as follows:

"We have made a careful examination of all records relative to the conviction of Thomas J. Mooney. We have also sought and obtained information from various other sources to enable us to arrive at a just conclusion as to the guilt or innocence of the petitioner and the propriety of granting or withholding your executive clemency. We, therefore, recommend that Thomas J. Mooney's application for unconditional pardon be denied."

No finding against Mooney will be acceptable to those citizens who have been active during nearly sixteen years or more in his behalf. They have carried on an agitation in which the question whether an individual has been unjustly convicted of a crime has retreated into a dim background. They have created a legend in which Mooney is the martyr of capitalist conspiracy, and that is too much to their purpose to be surrendered because of any survey of the facts, however conscientious or however conclusive to the unprejudiced mind. It is significant of the real inspiration of the organized propaganda for Mooney's release, as distinguished from the efforts of individuals moved by the conviction that he was the victim of injustice, that these organizations have made no respectable attempt to discover who, if not Mooney, was guilty of an outrage singularly cruel and detestable. That would have been the best method of establishing Mooney's innocence, but it would have stopped the hue and cry against capitalist tyranny and cheated them of a martyr. Their indifference to the disclosure and punishment of the offenders, if they were not Mooney and Billings, must impress the nonpartisan public with a strong suspicion that their purpose has been not to establish innocence but to advertise the power which radicalism can exert to protect even the most ruthless of its agents.

Meanwhile the dead are silent and the tragedy of which they were the victims has been made by Mooney propagandists only an incident in the political drama they have put and kept upon the stage of public discussion for half a generation. The American people are sensitive to the appeal of real innocence, but they will review the long record, which we have outlined above, and they will not miss, we trust, its real significance. Mooney has had the benefit of the intervention of many responsible officials from a President down. The latest review of the claims for him has taken place years after the public indignation created by the San Francisco outrage has abated. Its findings will not touch propaganda or move prejudice, but it will and ought to impress the nonpartisan mind of the nation. And we hope it will do more, for it should direct attention to the influences at work in this country to discredit the agencies of justice whenever they deal with radical violence.

A BAD BILL AND A GOOD ONE.

The state legislature has under consideration a bill concerning the salaries paid in Cook county to judges of the Circuit and Superior courts and the state's attorney. These salaries are now $15,000. The law as it stands at present provides that the county must pay the difference between the amount granted these officials from the state treasury and $15,000. The proposed amendment would leave the payment of the balances to the discretion of the county board.

This proposal is advanced in the interest of economy, and on that ground it might deserve support if the measure did not inevitably entail the most unfortunate political consequences. If the proposal becomes law, the state's attorney and every judge of the Circuit and Superior courts, including those in the criminal branch, would be subject to the discipline of the politicians who constitute the county board. If the judges and the state's attorney did what the politicians wanted, they could expect to be paid for their subservience, and contrariwise, if the politicians' will was crossed the judges might suffer. It is difficult to conceive of a measure which is aimed more directly at achieving a subservient judiciary. Such a measure would be vicious at any time and in any place. In Cook county today, when the gangster influence in politics is strong, there is more need than ever for guarding the independence of the judiciary at every point.

The bill is thoroughly unsound and ought to be defeated. If the legislature wishes to reduce the costs of government in Cook county, as it seems genuinely determined to do, it can accomplish much more by approving Representative Church's bill for the reduction of the sanitary district board from nine members to three. This bill, in effect, would set up the three trustees to be elected in November as the board. If this measure is adopted, responsibility for the conduct of the board's affairs would be narrowed and there would be a saving of more than $200,000 in the next four years in the salaries of six trustees. This saving would be augmented by elliminating the perquisites of the six trustees. This is a bill which every member from Cook county who wishes to make a record for economy can support.

Editorial of the Day

[New York Herald Tribune.]

Psychologically and materially the greatest drag on the American people today is prohibition. There can be no question of this obvious fact. Congress at the moment is wrestling with a tax measure whose Spartan schedules would be wholly superfluous were it not for the absence of excise revenue outlawed by the eighteenth amendment. No other civilized country is so handicapped. As Prof. Seligman of Columbia has pointed out, every modern nation, with the conspicuous exception of our own, relies upon its liquor tax as one of the mainstays of its governmental income. We alone prefer to hand over this huge flow of money to the underworld, to be used not in balancing our public budgets but in adding to them. The situation is so grotesque that it appears pathological, especially in light of the returns from the Literary Digest poll, showing that an overwhelming majority of the electorate desires repeal.

A subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee listened yesterday to the appeals to common sense of Senator Bingham, former Senator Wadsworth, and Mrs. Charles H. Sabin. "Prohibition repeal is the win-the-depression issue," said Senator Bingham. "It would bring immeasurable encouragement to a sorely harassed people and work wonders in the restoration of that confidence which is so necessary to our emergence from this depression," said Mr. Wadsworth. Can any one with the slightest appreciation not only of the revenue problem but of the defeatist spirit engendered by this unpopular straitjacket doubt their words? Imagine a condition which would permit us to balance the federal budget without further punishment [Prof. Seligman has estimated that more than $1,000,000,000 could be realized from liquor taxes] and which at the same time would release us from the feeling of paralysis which now attends every attempt to square our conduct of public affairs with our traditional standards. What an enormous lift toward self-confidence this would provide! And what else do we need to floor the bogies of our present nightmare? Really nothing. As a country, under the spell of an arrogant group of fanatics, we are hobbling about on crutches when we might be dancing.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

DELEGATES BY AND LARGE.

The Illinois Democrats in state convention assembled decided that instead of sending eight delegates-at-large (that's the number they're allowed) to the national convention they would do much better than that and horn in thirty-two, each with a fourth of a vote. They could have got more delegate badges and pleased a larger number of the Jefferson lads if they had sent ninety-six delegates-at-large, each with one-twelfth of a vote. Or they might have sent one hundred and sixty delegates-at-large, each with one-twentieth of a vote. Or they could have sent—but, you see how it goes, so you can roll your own. At least they showed great self-control in sending only thirty-two delegates-at-large and thirty-two alternates. Of course, the thirty-two must remember that each one is only the fourth of a delegate and has only a one-fourth vote. Also he is entitled to make only one-fourth as much noise as a delegate-at-large with a whole vote. When the cheering comes he must cheer only one-fourth as much as a regular delegate-at-large, and in the demonstrations lasting forty minutes he can last only ten minutes. As a matter of fact, he is only entitled to one-fourth of a chair in the convention, but Democrats are often so big and fat that it's going to be quite impossible to get any four of our thirty-two delegates-at-large into one small convention seat. And when it comes to the routine proceedings of the convention the chairman will very likely allow only one-fourth of the Illinois delegates-at-large to view with alarm at one time and only eight of them can stand up at one and the same moment and point with pride. It's a matter that requires extreme delicacy of handling, but it can be done. For, suppose one of the Illinois delegates hops up and shouts, "Mr. Chairman, I move we adjourn," what's to prevent the chairman getting sarcastic and saying, "You and who else?" Gosh! Anyhow, it's a grand idea.

RENAISSANCE.

Let night's blue petals fall
Gently, one by one.
Out of the golden pollen of the dawn
Shall bloom the sun.

Mister Snowshoe Al: Of all tha dumb clucks you win tha fur-lined shaving mug! Juss cause I said we wood revisit you again on the next Sunday didn' mean you shood expect us then or any uther time in the far future. Tha minute we steps back in the car Burton (tha darling) says "See Pa, your nertz again, whadid I tell ya, we got no cookies and I wood rather have gone to tha park an seen tha new baboon." To which Patricia (Papa's angel child) says in her dear sweet childish way, "Hell, wasn't that tha baboon what we sawn in their bed-room?" What's tha idea Al of saying one of tha kids ripped up a hole 3 feet square in your kitchen? You know damwell tha whole kitchen aint that big. Also that dirty crack about that 6 buck radio of yourn. If ya ask me, it sounded a damn site better after it woodn' play. And another thing Al, why don't you teach that bride of yoors some decent manners. After I hands her tha exquisite bib tha least she cood of said was "Oh, how darling" or "You shoodn't have done that," but no, she stands there with a look on her map as much as to say "If he goes out tha frunt way, tha bib goes out tha back." (Such breeding, phooey!) As far as dumping your gold fish on tha floor, I wanna tell ya Patricia wasn't near tha damn fish. I distinkly remember seein tha fish bump his head against tha bowl an knock it over hisself. Seems he saw a cockroach out for an airing an not having had any meat during Lent he juss coodn' stand it any longer. By tha way, I certainly want to thank you for serving that beautiful tray of Horse de Oovers. Between the caviar and tha anchovys an tha breast of turkey I just didn' know when to stop, and Al where did you pick up those luscious alligator pears? That sure was a surprise, didn't they taste good with the bar-le-duc and roquefort? Oh yes! Al, knowing you haven't any head for bizness on account of being a humor-rust, I wood advise not charging 50c to see Junior, you know tha depression is still on and Ringling Bros. are only charging 10c to see tha dead whale. When we got home I was telling tha B. and C. what a darling apt. you had. You and Gertie shure have splendid taste. That yellow rug sure sets off your oak furniture nicely, that picture of the cow you got over the fire-place is also very smart, and those purple carnations shure show up nice on your red window curtains. If I had your taste I'd go in for interior decorating or perhaps sewer digging. I didn't have the heart to tell tha Mama that you didn't even offer us as much as a piece of bread but I did tell her that I invited you folks over for a week from Sunday and she tells me that that is impossible as we're going to leave town Saturday and come back Monday morning.

"HOOVER COOLS OFFICE on Hottest Spring Day."—Headline. Maybe there were some of those insurgent Republicans standing around. Or maybe that's just his way. Anyhow, it doesn't seem quite nice to have a headline commenting on it.

THE CHICAGO POLICE say they are simply appalled at the large number of motorists who continue gayly to drive past "STOP" signs without even hesitating. There's only one thing left to do; have a constitutional amendment put through in Washington requiring car drivers to STOP at a STOP sign. Write to your congressman today.

CARE OF THE EXPECTANT MOTHER.

CANADIANS are driving to save some of the mothers lost by reason of maternity. Statistics show that more than 1,300 Canadian women die yearly because of accidents during pregnancy and childbirth. Dr. Helen MacMurchy thinks one thousand of these lives could be saved. She estimates that one mother dies for each eighteen babies born, and that more than three-fourths of this loss could be prevented.

There can be no question that becoming a mother is hazardous—too much so in all parts of America—but it has been proved that our record is not as bad as it is usually painted. We keep these books differently from the way they are kept in other parts of the world, and some of the bad record charged against us is because of the bookkeeping methods we use. Be that as it may, the record is bad enough, and Dr. MacMurchy is right. It should be improved.

Dr. MacMurchy thinks a woman should be on her guard as soon as she learns that she is to become a mother and she should not overlook the pitfalls along the way. She should know the significance of everything that happens in a way different from the usual, and she should know whether it means anything.

For instance, does she notice that her wedding ring is too tight? That is a sign that she is accumulating fat or water in her tissues. It calls for periodic weighing and systematic keeping of the record. It may call for tests of the urine. The Canadian government publishes the "Canadian Mother's Book" and offers it free to every Canadian mother in need of it. It is one of a series of booklets written for prospective mothers and mothers of young children given away by the Canadian government.

These books are supplemented by others given by the provincial and local governments. Books of a similar character are given away in the United States by the federal and city governments.

"Every woman should have ten days' rest in bed after the baby comes," Dr. MacMurchy says. "She needs help in the home for about a month. She should have some sort of health supervision for about eight months before the baby comes and for a like period of time afterwards."

One of the doctor's novel suggestions is that every woman's club should have one or two layettes always ready and available to homes where no proper provision has been made for the baby's clothes.

There are four groups of suggestions for prospective mothers not wholly covered in Dr. MacMurchy's booklet. They are: Protection against eclampsia by watching the weight, the blood pressure, and the urine. Protection against venereal disease by blood testing and appropriate treatment. Protection against birth accidents by good hospital, medical, and nursing service. Protection against a deficiency of vitamins and minerals by proper dieting.

OPERATION NEEDED.

Mrs. B. writes: Is there any way in which to cure a fistula without an operation? I have been told that it can be dried up and that it will not come back. Is this true?

REPLY.

AN ANNOYING SYMPTOM.

B. F. H. writes: What is the cause of continuous ringing in the ears, which started about two months ago? I used to have this trouble when taking quinine to excess, but in this case I have not taken it. I am worried.

REPLY.

As a rule, ringing in the ears does not mean that one is in danger of losing his life. It is an unpleasant symptom and one that is not easily remedied.

KNOW AND FEAR THEM.

S. T. P. writes: Is the common expression, "growing pains in childhood," recognized at all by the medical world? Whether recognized or not, what is generally the condition that is so characterized?

REPLY.

Physicians not only recognize "growing pains" but they have a deep fear of them. They call them rheumatism, and they hold them responsible for some St. Vitus dance, and a great deal of heart disease.

DIVERSEY BUS EXTENSION.

Chicago, April 17.—[Friend of the People.]—According to recent newspaper articles the Illinois commerce commission has ordered the extension of the Diversey avenue bus line from Narragansett to Harlem avenue. Could you tell me at what time the line will be extended?

E. S. H.

On March 22 the Illinois commerce commission entered an order directing the surface lines to construct an extension of the Diversey avenue bus line from Narragansett avenue to Harlem avenue. A rehearing, however, has been requested based mainly upon the ground that no funds are available that could be properly used for this purpose. This case will probably come up again within a month and we would be pleased to inform the writer as to the developments.

PROCEDURE UNDER WILL.

Chicago, April 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. How long after a will is filed in probate must one wait before being notified as to the reading of the same? 2. Can a copy of a will be seen by one interested before the reading? 3. Can a will be contested if it is stated in the will any one contesting this will shall be disinherited? 4. If a will is drawn and later changed, there being more than one page to change, is this called a codicil or a new will and must the first will be destroyed by the testator before making another? 5. When a will is to be read must witnesses to the will and those interested be present and who notifies the above, the clerk of the court or the attorney who drew the will? 6. Can a notary public draw a will? 7. Is a petition for the executor legal if those interested signed on Sunday? H. N. S.

1. Our administration statute makes no provision for a formal reading of a will.
2. See No. 1. You can secure a copy from the clerk of the court.

7. Yes, as far as this fact is concerned.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1895

CHEFOO, Feb. 8.—The Japanese landed a force of troops near here with the intention of capturing this city. The landing was made ten miles westward and an immediate advance on the city was ordered. As this dispatch is sent the Japanese are attacking the fort defending the east part of Chefoo. Intense excitement prevails and it is expected a severe battle will occur.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—A dispatch from Chefoo says that the Japanese have carried all the positions at Wei Hai Wei and have captured or sunk the whole of the Chinese northern fleet. On Feb. 4 the Japanese cleared the Wei Hai Wei harbor of all torpedoes and submarine mines by the skillful use of small torpedo boats which grappled with and cut the wires connecting the submarine mines with the shore.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—A dispatch from Yokohama says China has declared her intention to telegraph corrected credentials to her peace envoys to Japan who were instructed to remain at Nagasaki for further instructions following the refusal of the Japanese to receive them. It is probable the peace negotiations will be renewed in March.

YOKOHAMA, Feb. 10.—The Japanese have captured the island of Liu Kung Tao, a strong Chinese position at the entrance of the harbor to Wei Hai Wei. The Chinese demolished the west shore forts before retiring.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 10.—The Chinese have a total of 178,700 troops in Manchuria opposed to 50,000 Japanese.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 12.—A local paper publishes a telegram from Peking saying that the Tsung Li Yamen, after consultation with the foreign minister, telegraphed the Chinese ministers at Nagasaki, ordering them to return home.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

WASHINGTON.—There is a buzz of peaceable intervention among diplomatic people, and the result of more than one whispered conference is the expression of the opinion that forces are being set in motion among the chancelleries of Europe which mean the termination of the war between Japan and Russia without much more bloodshed. It is believed even now the czar and the king of England hold in their hands the threads which are to be woven into an agreement for permanent peace.

LONDON.—A dispatch to the Standard from St. Petersburg says it is reported that while 500 Japanese were crossing the Yalu river on rafts they were attacked by Russians and nearly all were killed. The Russian casualties were heavy.

ST. PETERSBURG.—It is reported that an immense sum of money was lost on the Petropavlovsk. The government, foreseeing the probability of Port Arthur being cut off, thought it necessary to have a big fund there, which was in the hands of the naval commander. The Petropavlovsk happened to be the treasure ship. The sum is placed as high as $12,000,000.

LONDON.—The Daily Telegraph's Brussels correspondent says that agents of the Russian government have signed an agreement to purchase three large men-of-war constructed at Genoa for the Argentine Republic at a price of $18,200,000.

CHICAGO.—Evanston police, with stop watches, yesterday arrested eight automobilists, charged with violating the eight miles an hour speed ordinance. They either pleaded guilty and were given the minimum fine of $10 and costs, or gave bonds.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 25, 1916.

LONDON.—An attempt to stir up a revolution in Ireland was nipped when a German auxiliary cruiser armed by a strong force of German sailors and loaded with vast stores of rifles and ammunition was sunk off the coast of Ireland by British patrol craft, presumably on the night of April 22. Sir Roger Casement, one of the leaders in the Irish home rule struggle who has been in Germany since the early part of the war, was arrested, an admiralty bulletin stated, "while attempting to land arms in Ireland." A number of other prisoners were taken. From the brief bulletin it is not clear whether the German auxiliary cruiser actually had begun to land troops and arms or whether it was sunk off the coast before it could approach shore. The news of the arrest of Sir Roger Casement, on whose head, according to his own story told in Germany a year ago, the British government had set a price of $25,000, caused the greatest sensation throughout England.

BERLIN.—The outcome of the present crisis over the submarine issue depends on what President Wilson and the American government want. Germany is ready to make concessions, but not to give up submarine war, according to the general view of the situation as gleaned from conversations with persons close to official circles.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Further developments in the pursuit of Villa and the relations between the United States and the de facto government of Mexico await personal discussion of these subjects by the senior military advisers of the two governments. A conference between Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the United States army, and Gen. Alvaro Obregon, minister of war of the de facto government, was arranged today to take place soon, probably in Juarez.

Chicago, April 20.—Tell me, has no one pointed out the utter stupidity of legalizing 2.75 beer? Or is it stupidity? It may be the trusted representatives of our so-called glorious country are up to their old tricks of trying to make the progress of any legislation last as long as possible in order that their constitutents might be duped into thinking that constructive work is being done.

All thinking people today realize that nothing less than 4.5 or full 5 beer will solve the problem. Then again it may be that our friends the prohibitionists are behind the movement, having up their sleeves the joy of later saying, "See, we gave them 2.75 beer and still they are not satisfied!"

Of course we won't be! Nobody but insincere politicians and a sprinkling of wide-eyed twelve year old minds ever said he would. KARL PETER KOCH.

THE INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION.

Chicago, April 22.—How bad administration can ruin good laws is aptly illustrated in the Illinois industrial commission. Created for the purpose of expediting litigation where the poor laboring man and his wife or widow and children are involved, the opposite has proven to be the case. Just to call attention to one phase of the commission's misrule, the manner in which the stenographic records of the proceedings before it are handled can be cited.

Any one familiar with the operation of the commission knows that they have to wait from four to six months for a transcript of the stenographic record before they can proceed before the commission for review, while in many instances a widow and her children starve waiting for action on a transcript which can be written up in a week. A case in which there were only two witnesses before the commission has been pending four months, waiting for a transcript of the records of what the two witnesses said. DISGUSTED.

VETERANS RELIEVED.

Chicago, April 21.—In line with J. M. M. and the abuses in veterans' relief, I have heard on the best authority that in one instance a hijacker who, receiving a bullet wound while performing his duties on the highway, brought his discharge papers to the Great Lakes hospital, demanded treatment, and received it.

Another, a case of an applicant for insurance; the company, discovering that he was receiving monthly compensation from the government, refused the policy. The applicant thereupon revealed a small linear scar of no significance, stating that he paid his congressman $1,000 for the compensation. The insurance company reconsidered and accepted the insurance.

SOCIALIST DISCIPLINE.

Lombard, Ill., April 17.—When a Socialist is elected to public office his party retains control of him to the extent that if he fails to walk the straight and narrow path the party will ask his resignation. I was astonished to read that THE TRIBUNE objects to this arrangement, but I can understand the reason for the objection. If the Republicans and Democrats applied the same rule to their members 90 per cent of our elected officials would have to vacate their offices!

JOHN A. DEVOE.

THE MOVING VAN RACKET.

Chicago, April 21.—A new racket—and admitted so! That of certain moving van companies, and I write you hoping that you might caution your readers and spare them the anxiety that my sister is going through right now.

This particular firm agreed to a flat rate of $40. Reaching the new apartment, my sister asked them to please bring up her oriental rug first, so that she might proceed to arrange the parlor. She made this request several times, but it was ignored, and she, in the confusion of moving, thought nothing of it. She presented them with a $40 check. No, they must have cash, so after a great deal of difficulty she finally cashed the check through some hitherto unknown neighbor. They accepted the money and then demanded $14 more, as the work was heavier than they had anticipated. She didn't have the money with her and they calmly took her oriental rug and drove away. Deliberately stealing her rug!

Later that day she got the money and called them to deliver it. "O, yeah?" they sneered at her. "Come down and get it yourself."

Since this incident we have talked to many families who claim to have been the victims of some such unscrupulous concern, and with their belongings at stake they can do nothing but pay. Our advice to moving families is to get the agreement in writing and then fight like the devil against this racket.

F. F.

CHICAGO'S FIRST TAXES.

Paris, Ill., April 18.—In her search for a solution to the present tax muddle, Chicago might take a lesson from the dim and distant past. One hundred and eight years ago the settlement that has become the city of Chicago lay within the borders of Edgar county, whose county seat was then, as it is yet, the city of Paris, some 175 miles to the south. Chicago's first taxes were collected by a gentleman of that county seat who by chance happened to be in the vicinity of Chicago, and they amounted to a little over three dollars. The following year the sheriff of Edgar county, in order to save the expenses of the journey, paid the taxes out of his own pocket.

Perhaps some public spirited citizen might be found today who could be persuaded to follow this generous example and solve this great problem.

It is not on record that any of Chicago's citizens undertook the long journey to Paris to exercise their privileges at the polls, and so the elections were probably comparatively quiet.

JOHN C. WILLIAMSON.

THE CALIFORNIA SYSTEM.

Aurora, Ill., April 21.—Why not adopt the primary system in use in California? As the writer understands it, the names of the candidates of all political parties are placed on the same ballot and in asking for a ballot you are not required to disclose your party affiliations. You mark this ballot anywhere you please, so long as you do not double up and vote for two people for the same office. Then when these primary ballots are counted if any candidate receives a majority vote he is elected without having a further balloting in the fall. This in my opinion is the ideal primary system. Why not put it in effect in Illinois?

MIXUP OF RIVAL GRAND JURIES IS STILL A MIXUP

Setback Is Expected for Judge Feinberg.

Cook county's rival grand juries provided legal problems yesterday for which there appeared to be no available solutions. In the absence of a Supreme court decision on whether Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg's special grand jury and special prosecutor are legal the principals in the controversy declined to say yesterday what the public may expect.

DAN SERRITELLA

Attorney Louis E. Hart, appointed special prosecutor by Judge Feinberg, said he had no announcements to make. His grand jury will not meet until tomorrow, he said, although it had been adjourned only until today. Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court, who also has a special grand jury, said his jury would report to him today, but that he would make no public statements regarding the matter except from the bench.

Feinberg Expects Setback.

It was learned, however, that Judge Feinberg and Attorney Hart do not expect a decision validating their grand jury. From a source close to Judge Feinberg it became known that he would not be surprised by a ruling that Feinberg as a circuit judge, had a right to appoint a jury and prosecutor, but that the other judges of the Circuit court had the right, which they exercised, to transfer jurisdiction from him in any given cause.

Such a decision would leave the Fisher jury alive and end the Feinberg jury. Attorney Floyd Thompson, former Supreme court justice, who was named as special state's attorney by Judge Fisher, but declined to accept, said he thought the Supreme court might render a recess opinion on the Cook county jury situation.

Complaints About Primary.

Attorney Hart said he had received complaints regarding the primary election—which he was supposed to investigate—but he would not disclose their nature. Richard Prendergast, who filed a petition with Judge Feinberg stating he had reasons to believe that Capone was trying to control the primary, was defeated for election as Republican ward committeeman of the 42d ward. He and Attorney Hart were associates. Judge Feinberg was also defeated in the primary in which he was a Republican candidate for the nomination for state's attorney.

Courts Swing Into Action.

The Criminal courts are expected to swing into full operation today, after the lull caused by the primary activities. Several important cases are included on the crowded calendar.

The principal interest lies in the case against Dan Serritella, city sealer under the last city administration, and Harry Hochstein, who was his chief deputy. They are expected to go to trial today before Judge James Joseph Kelly on charges of conspiracy to defraud the public.

Attorney Benedict J. Short, defense counsel, stated yesterday that he was ready to proceed. Assistant State's Attorneys Harold M. Keele and Henry Seyfarth, the prosecutors, said they were prepared when they appeared a week ago, at which time the defense was granted a continuance. Arguments on a defense motion to quash the indictments are expected to delay selection of a jury before Judge Kelly.

Serritella, who was reputed to be the Capone representative in the cabinet of the last Republican mayor, and Hochstein, a henchman of Morris Eller in the "bloody 20th" ward, are charged with conspiring with grocers, butchers, icemen, and other dealers to permit the use of short weights and measures.

Sanitary Case on Docket.

Donald R. Joyce, son-in-law of Timothy Crowe, is also scheduled for trial on forgery charges growing out of the sanitary district "whoopee era." He will appear before Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher charged with defrauding the district of approximately $12,000. Joyce, superintendent of transportation maintenance during the Crowe régime, is charged with billing the district for auto accessories never delivered.

He must be tried this term of court under the rule that a case must be heard within four terms after the indictment. Also scheduled for trial before Judge Fisher is Timothy L. Connolly, former purchasing agent of the sanitary district under Crowe. His case may be continued to allow the Joyce case to be heard, prosecutors said.

Ethel Doss, daughter of Bert and Agnes Doss, aerialists in the Sells-Floto circus, came to Chicago yesterday to celebrate her fourth birthday with her parents. She was hostess at a party in the dressing rooms at the Coliseum to Ernie and Katherine Clark, Mary Lou Nelson, and Grace Hannaford, daughters of other circus performers. Fred De Marrs, who appears in the arena as Copo the clown, put on a private performance for the little girls.

The Young Women's Christian association yesterday dedicated its new west side residence for girls at 105 South Ashland avenue, adjoining the old west side branch of the association. Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, president of the Y. W. C. A. of Chicago, presided, and the dedicatory address was delivered by Dr. Albert W. Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological seminary. Miss Florence Spencer, formerly of New York, is secretary of the new residence, which has a swimming pool, gymnasium, clubrooms and living quarters for 115 girls.

WOMEN VOTERS TO CONVENE IN DETROIT TODAY

600 Delegates Expected to Attend.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., April 24.—[Special.]—The tenth convention of the National League of Women Voters, a nonpartisan organization, will open here tomorrow. Members throughout the nation and male politicians as well are expected to bend an attentive ear for possible hints on the trend of feminine choice of platform planks and voting next November.

MISS BELLE SHERWIN.

Physically, the league represents in its membership several hundred thousand women voters, captained by a corps loosely approximating the mental aristocracy in the feminine realm of this country. Politically, its significance lies in the influence it exerts on the women's vote through its searching analysis of problems of city, state, and national import, through its vaunted educational program.

Prominent Women Attend.

Miss Belle Sherwin of Cleveland, for the last eight years president of this group of women, has been in Detroit for the last three days conferring with the board of directors. Other prominent women either here or expected, among the 600 delegates it is estimated will attend, are Miss Katharine Ludington of Old Lyme, Conn.; Miss Ruth Morgan of New York City; Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin of Washington, D. C.; Dr. Mollie Ray Carroll of the University of Chicago; Miss Florence Monahan, managing officer of the Illinois State Training School for Girls, and Miss Gertrude Ely of Bryn Mawr, Pa., who will talk on her travels through Russia with George Bernard Shaw and Lady Astor.

Registration of delegates tomorrow will be followed at once by the opening of a two day series of open conferences and round tables under the auspices of the various departments of the league. This part of the schedule is known as the "little convention," and will be climaxed Tuesday night by a public meeting for the discussion of issues challenging the political party conventions.

Miss Morgan Will Speak.

Speakers for this event will represent various factions, such as labor, business, the press, the women voter, and the banker. Miss Morgan of New York will talk for the feminine voter.

Topics for argument and discussion in the round tables and conferences will be pertinent to the present economic situation, league officials declare with some pride. Unemployment insurance, for instance, is expected to provoke some lively debates. So is the question of establishing a national system of employment service. The married woman worker, labor legislation for women, taxation, and disarmament are also prominent on the schedule.

At the business session of the convention, which begins Wednesday morning, the league will take up its program for the next two years. Between then and Friday the decision will be made as to whether the organization will support federal legislation to establish a system of federal, state, and local unemployment relief, state legislation for unemployment compensation, workmen's compensation, including occupational diseases.

May Run for President.

Much interest attaches to the speculation of members as to whether Miss Sherwin will consent to run again for president. Her capitulation at the last convention was secured only after repeated pleas, and when no one had entered the lists against her.

The Illinois delegation, including scores of Chicago women, is headed by Mrs. Ralph Treadway of Glen Ellyn, state president, and Mrs. Quincy Wright of Chicago, president of the Cook county league.

2,000 BARBERS STRIKE IN NEW YORK TODAY FOR INCREASE IN PAY

New York, April 24.—[Special.]—About 2,000 barbers in upper Manhattan and the Riverdale section of the Bronx are expected to go on strike tomorrow morning for higher wages and better working conditions. More than 1,200 shops in the region are immediately affected by the strike plans, and it is hoped to extend the strike to lower Manhattan.

"Cling to that which endures"

In the panic year when Hannibal's army crossed the Alps, a wise old Roman advised his son and heir: "Be not affected by the temporary shifts of fortune's winds. Be certain that your undertakings are based upon the solid rock of proven worth. In a world of change, cling to that which endures."

The Chicago Tribune endures. For 85 years it has withstood strife, panic, fire, war, relentless enemies. It has won over every obstacle, everlastingly grown from strength to strength. Its foundations are stable and permanent . . . inseparably a part of Chicago and the rich midwestern area that is naturally tributary to Chicago.

The Chicago Tribune has exposed and fought more political corruption, more predatory assaults on public property, more governmental waste, more official shirking, more rackets, than any other Chicago newspaper. At the same time, the Tribune has conceived or supported all worthwhile projects for Chicago's betterment.

The Tribune is literally "of, for and by Chicago," always published by Chicagoans. It is never influenced by remote control, its policies are never subject to financial expediency, it is never used for the personal aggrandizement of its owners.

These are reasons why the Tribune is far ahead of all other papers in the life of Chicago and the midwest . . . why it has the circulation, the reader-responsiveness that make it Chicago's most effective, economical advertising medium.

Today, as always, the Tribune is the safe choice for advertisers in Chicago. The public, in all strata, continues to show its pronounced partiality for the Tribune as evidenced by: more home delivered circulation than all other Chicago papers combined; over 155,000 more daily circulation in Chicago and suburbs than any other daily paper; over 159,000 more Sunday circulation in Chicago and suburbs than any other Sunday paper.

Now is the time to buy stability and to "cling to that which endures." The Tribune can give advertisers community contact of the impressive, permanent kind—it can share with them its own high prestige in this great midwestern market.

"if you're not in the TRIBUNE you're not in CHICAGO"

CLAIMS SOVIETS HOLD AMERICANS BY MARITAL TRAP

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, April 24.—Foreigners who marry Russian women fall into a bolshevik trap, according to John Pelikan, American electrical engineer who was arrested, imprisoned, and forced to sign a document that he would work for the G. P. U. [secret police] before he and his wife were released.

Pelikan, whose home is in Pittsburgh, spent two years in Russia. He estimates that 100 Americans either sent to Russia by American firms or employed by the soviet government as specialists have married Russian women and are unable to obtain permission for their wives to leave Russia.

"I was fortunate to be able to get my wife illegally across the frontier into Riga but many of my friends do not dare to try this method," he said. "Their wives have relatives living in Russia and if they succeeded as I did, these relatives would be arrested and banished to an exile worse than death in the northern timber camps. All of Mrs. Pelikan's relatives live in Poland. The G. P. U. can punish no one for her escape, unless it is the chekists [police] who had her under surveillance.

Says G. P. U. Overrated.

"Before I made the first attempt to leave Russia illegally through Batum I offered the soviet foreign office in Moscow $1,000 for a passport for my wife. They refused. The border runners who brought her out charged me more than that, but it was worth it.

"By keeping the wives of Americans in Moscow the soviet government hopes to force these Americans to remain in Russia and work for them for soviet rubles. The contracts signed by the repesentatives of the bolsheviks in America are not worth the paper they are written on. I know of cases where American engineers' contracts were canceled arbitrarily by the soviets and they did not learn of its until months later.

"The usual contract calls for two-thirds of the salary to be deposited in an American bank, while the remaining third is paid out in rubles. When they cancel the contracts they offer a new one calling for payment in rubles which are now worth about twenty to the dollar and are falling in value every day.

Contracts Voided After Marriage.

"In Moscow now are some American engineers whose contracts were canceled immediately after their marriage to Russian women who have refused to sign new contracts and are making one application after another to the soviet foreign office for permission for their wives to leave the country. These requests are invariably refused. The number of German engineers who are in the same fix must be much larger.

"For every American employed in Russia at the present time there are at least twenty Germans. There are few Americans in the employ of the soviets compared to two years ago. The Americans are being replaced by Germans who are willing to sign contracts for only a small amount of their wages to be paid in marks. Because recognition has not been forthcoming and American firms are not willing to grant more credits Americans have lost much of their popularity in Russia during the last year.

"From what I have seen in Russia and from what I have learned from other American engineers who have worked there for years, the five year plan is the biggest piece of bunk ever devised. Food conditions are much worse now than when I arrived in 1930. Russia is broke and hungry and the country is splotched with famine areas. Russia is one huge insane asylum but it still embodies a terrible threat for the entire world."

VISITED IN CHICAGO.

L. L. Newman Jr., 1208 Jarvis avenue, is a friend of John Pelikan, American engineer who has charged that the soviet government refuses to give passports to wives of American technicians.

"He visited us in February," said Mr. Newman last night. "He is a graduate of an eastern engineering school. Returning to Pittsburgh for equipment, Mr. Pelikan came here to see us. My father still lives in Riga and Mr. Pelikan visited him while in that city. The outline he gave us of Russian conditions was much like Mr. Day's article."

GERMANS HONOR U. S. AMBASSADOR FOR MORATORIUM

U. of Tuebinger Confers Degree on Sackett.

TUEBINGEN, Germany, April 24.—(AP)—Germany's thanks for the Hoover moratorium will find a measure of expression tomorrow and Tuesday at the ancient University of Tuebingen when Frederic M. Sackett, the American ambassador, will be given an honorary degree of doctor of political science.

F. M. SACKETT.

Mr. Sackett left Berlin for Tuebingen tonight in a special car proffered by the government. Radio was installed that the ambassador could hear the election returns from Prussia and other states which are selecting new diets today.

The suggestion for awarding the unusual honor came from Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, who spent a part of his student days at this ancient seat of learning.

The chancellor hit upon Tuebingen, rather than upon Heidelberg, Berlin, Leipsig, or Bonn for two reasons, one because Tuebingen has a well known school of political economy, the other because honorary degrees are rare at Tuebingen.

Bruening sees in Ambassador Sackett the man who first suggested the chancellor's trip to Chequers, Paris, and Rome.

During the weeks which followed, when the economic fate of Germany hung in the balance, the limousine bearing the license number fourteen, which all Berlin knew to be that of the United States ambassador, was seen to park before the chancellor's palace in Wilhelmstrasse more frequently, perhaps, than before the embassy. As Bruening said several months later in the reichstag, "No step throughout our reparations negotiations has been taken without the knowledge of the American government."

MUNCIE BANDITS KILL POLICEMAN, ROB THEATER MAN

Muncie, Ind., April 24.—(AP)—Obie McCracken, 35, Muncie policeman, was shot to death here tonight by one of two holdup men who robbed a theater manager.

The patrolman was accompanying Dean Morton, manager of the Wyson Grand theater, to a bank with the day's receipts. Howard Webster, a friend of Morton, was with them.

In the heart of the business district the two gunmen stepped from a Mulberry street doorway and one of them fired five shots at McCracken. The other seized Webster to prevent him from interfering and at the same time jerked the money satchel from Morton.

McCracken formerly was a pitcher for the Rochester Baseball club of the International league.

'Healer' Faces Court with Doctor Co-defendant.

Six months after his indictment on charges of conspiracy to violate the medical practice act, Old Doc Lester Tilton, self styled cancer healer of Clinton, Ia., is scheduled to go to trial today before Judge Rudolph Desort in Criminal court.

JUDGE DESORT.

On trial with him will be a licensed physician, Dr. Joseph Duffy, 5755 North Clark street, and a professional promoter, Harry de Joannis, 6049 Ridge avenue. The original indictment also named another physician, Dr. Otto Hollinger, and another promoter, James Madison Pace, who have since died.

A number of Tilton's patients, cancer victims who appeared against him before the grand jury and before the medical advisory board, are also dead as a result, the state contends, of the corrosive character of the medicine prescribed for them. Assistant State's Attorney Charles A. Bellows will prosecute the case.

Discovered Own Medicine.

Tilton, a farm hand and a railroad fireman in his youth, claimed to have discovered the curative properties of his medicine two decades ago when he removed a small cyst from his face. The principal ingredient of the medicine, Tilton admitted, was an extract of peat, taken from the bogs of his farm on the Mississippi near Savannah, Ill.

Tilton had been peddling his medicine for fifteen years without interference of authorities, the state avers, and at one time gained such a reputation as a cancer expert that a wealthy Chicago philanthropist was ready to endow a clinic for him. Before committing himself finally, the philanthropist had the Tilton medicine tested and abandoned the project.

Later Tilton conducted his own clinic at the Great Northern hotel, employing a licensed physician, Dr. C. Judson Spruce, as director. Upon a quarrel between himself and Spruce he interested several influential members of the Catholic church in his cures and opened a new clinic in the Felician convent, 3800 Peterson road.

Complaints Reach Cardinal.

It was there that most of the complaints in the present criminal prosecution were treated. He had been operating at the convent for several months when complaints reached Cardinal Mundelein, who instructed the nuns to discontinue the clinic.

OFFICIALS OF FLINT ARE ACQUITTED OF LIQUOR CONSPIRACY

Bay City, Mich., April 24.—William H. McKeighan, mayor of Flint, Mich., Caesar J. Scavarda, chief of police of Flint; Ben F. Baker, police detective of Flint, and Albert Vergo, reputed rum czar of Flint, were declared not guilty of a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act by a jury in federal court this morning.

The jury of six men and six women returned the verdict at 7 o'clock this morning after fifteen hours of deliberation, following the trial, which lasted seven days. Federal Judge Arthur G. Tuttle presided.

McKeighan has been several times a member of the Flint city commission, and four times mayor. He was reelected mayor of Flint by the commission during the progress of the trial. Scavarda, the young police chief, is a protégé of McKeighan's. The indictment of the four was one of several directed against them and nearly a score of other reputed runmers and city officials.

THE WHISPERER

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"The 'Whisperer' Crimes" have held London terrorized for months. Numerous wealthy persons have been kidnaped and held for ransom. The ransom victim is sent a small wireless receiving set, by means of which the "Whisperer" speaks, using his own short wave, and gives directions for delivering the ransom demanded. Police dare not interfere, because death results for the captive if directions are not carried out.

Joyce Merrow, engaged to Roland Blatch, secretary to Sir Henry Glazeborough, M. P., a leading philanthropist, is taken captive. In Roland's keeping are valuable jewels, donated to Sir Henry to be sold for charity. Roland is forced to steal them for the bandit to insure the safe return of his beloved. When Joyce is again safely home, Roland decides to accept an offer from the bandit to join his band and try to recover the jewels. He is sent to an address where a woman named Connie, gives him a facial treatment which alters his appearance. Roland reports every day to Connie, where the Whisperer talks to him through a telephone loud speaker, but remains hidden from view. He is assigned the task of collecting ransom from Lord Whiddon, whose wife is held captive, and is involved in the killing of Lady Whiddon when her husband fails to meet the Whisperer's demands.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

THE MOTHERLY INSTINCT.

There was a man with Joyce, but it was not Glassy. The man opened the door for her. Roland watched them through the glass panel in the rear. The dome light of the car was on and he could see both their faces.

The next moment he had recognized the man. It was the man who had come to see him at the Gulverbury, describing himself as an insurance agent. What on earth could Joyce be doing at Glassy's flat at a quarter to one in the morning in company with a life insurance agent?

"Well, I'll say good-night, Miss Merrow, and thank you," the man was saying. "I have to get back to my office before I go to bed."

It was Joyce's answer that brought light to Roland.

"But I'm sure Sir Henry meant the car to drop you at Scotland Yard—it's very little out of the way," she said. "I'll ask the chauffeur myself."

"What am I to do now? Go on."

Scotland Yard! Not an insurance agent but a detective. A detective—Joyce Glassy. What could it mean? He had a last glimpse of Joyce as the car drove off.

At half past one exactly he walked up to the telephone box at the corner of Bedford row — the spot where he had first agreed to join the Whisperer's organization. Hardly two days ago, and in that short time his whole outlook on life had been changed.

Almost immediately a smart coupé whisked out of Theobald's road and drew up by the curb. He got in and sat beside Connie, who promptly drove off. She turned into a narrow side street, then stopped, waited for about a minute, then started again.

She drove northwards. After a mile or so she again stopped in a side street.

"No one has picked me up," she remarked. "But the chief's orders are always to make sure twice."

"I'm learning," he said indifferently.

"I know. I wish you had never had to learn." She started again.

Five minutes later they were running through the poor quarters of Camden town. She stopped and backed into a garage that had recently been a stable. They got out and he fastened the doors for her.

Then she took him to a side door, up a narrow staircase.

At the top of the staircase was another door, and a moment later Roland found himself in a wide hall tastefully furnished.

"It's not a bad little place, is it? And it's a horrible neighborhood. But a private garage is absolutely necessary."

Her tone was hardly that of a fellow crook to whom he was bound by ties of robbery and murder. It was the casual tone of a hostess. He looked at her in wonder. She had thrown off her cloak and now seemed more striking than ever before in her exquisitely cut evening dress, black with a single silver rose.

"Do you live here?" he asked.

"Yes. And so do you for the present. That is, if you've no objections."

She took him into a wide room, furnished throughout in black and gold. It would have been an irritating room if one had had to sit alone in it. But Connie somehow made it seem normal—the fit and proper setting for her vivid coloring and strange personality.

"I have an objection on your account," he jerked out.

"My reputation?" There was more bitterness than amusement in her laugh. "I haven't any to lose. Nor have you—now."

"That sounds as if the Whisperer has told you that I—that I've been tricked into killing Lady Whiddon."

She turned away and that told him she knew and was sorry. She was a queer creature altogther. He wanted to despise her as the tool of the Whisperer, but it was difficult to do so.

He dropped on to a sofa and discovered that he was physically exhausted. She came close and stood looking down at him.

"I told you once that you were a nice, clean boy and that I was sorry for you."

"What am I now? Go on."

"The same as I am," she answered. "An outcast. A pariah. Utterly cut off from the rest of the world."

He knew that her words were true, but had not yet fully grasped all that they meant to him. Connie went to an ornamental cabinet and presently he heard the hiss of a syphon.

"We shall have to console each other, Roland. The others are pretty awful. They're nearly all mechanics. You'll meet them in due course. Very clever men, but not good companions."

"And the Whisperer?"

"I don't think you'll meet the chief for a long time—if ever." Roland thought differently but said nothing. She handed him a tumbler of whisky and soda. "You've only this—and me!" she said, and there was that in her eyes as she said it that made him afraid.

He took the glass and drained it. Connie sat beside him on the sofa.

"You've always been very pally to me." He took her hand lightly in his. "I feel that I want to tell you something about myself. Listen! On the very night before the Whisperer stuck his claws into me I'd fixed up to get married."

"I know. To Miss Merrow." He started and she went on: "Face it, boy! You can't marry her now."

Slowly that sunk into him. He had been a fool not a realize it before. With a charge of murder hanging over his head, how could he possibly marry Joyce? Even if he were to succeed in handing the Whisperer over to the police—"the law cannot make a bargain with a murderer." He could not ask them to offset this public service against the murder of Lady Whiddon because, in the eyes of the law, he was undoubtedly guilty.

The only woman in the world to whom he could turn was Connie herself. And he, presumably, was the only man in the world to whom she could turn. He had, he told himself, no need of her. But what if she had need of him—if already she were crushed by her loneliness? With something approaching panic he realized the strength of her position.

He took refuge in pretense. He closed his eyes, then slowly opened them.

"Connie, I'm simply dog tired. Let me go and sleep it off somewhere."

"Of course you are, dear boy! How selfish of me to forget it!"

She took him to his room, fussed round him, solicitous for his comfort. It was the genuine motherliness of her that made her so dangerous.

There were difficulties in the way of Connie's keeping servants, so she had none. It was she herself who prepared breakfast for them on the following morning, and did it uncommonly well.

She was a woman of many moods, each one dominating her at the time. Over breakfast she was hospitable and attentive, but her mind was occupied with affairs.

As they sat down to breakfast she gave him a packet of a hundred treasury notes.

That put him at his ease. It was a great deal safer to talk about money.

"I'll get you the fifty at midday," she went on. "Or perhaps we'd better say this evening. I never come back here for lunch."

That meant, he thought, that she would see the Whisperer that morning. He tried to find some opening for the suggestion that he should accompany her but she gave him no chance.

They were sitting in the kitchen. On the dresser was a pile of newspapers and Connie picked one up.

"You're such a modest young man you never tell me what's happened. I'm going to read all about you."

"It isn't like you to gloat over this kind of thing," he returned. "You think it's as abominable as I do."

"Perhaps I do, but not all the time. I do get a bit of fun out of running the gauntlet . . . O, I say! Just look at you." She waved the front sheet with its big headlines right across the page.

He picked up another paper. From the sensational point of view, yesterday's work was the Whisperer's star turn. He tried to keep his eye from the photograph of the unhappy Lady Whiddon. He wanted one thing only, and presently found it.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Master's Voice

Body to Be Brought Here for Burial.

Bishop Frank Milton Bristol of the Methodist Episcopal Church, former Chicagoan and one time pastor of the church which President McKinley attended in Washington, died yesterday at the home of his son, Dr. Leverett D. Bristol of Montclair, N. J. He was 82 years old. Funeral services will be held in Montclair tomorrow. The body will be brought to Chicago for burial in Graceland cemetery.

BISHOP BRISTOL.

Bishop Bristol was born at Jeddo, Orleans county, New York. His parents moved to Kankakee while he was a boy. After his graduation at Garrett Biblical institute his first charge was the First Methodist church of Englewood. Between 1877 and 1893 he served in the Wabash Avenue Methodist church, Trinity Methodist church, and the First Methodist church of Evanston.

Transferred to Washington.

In 1898 he was called from Evanston to Washington, where he became pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist church. His transfer was attributed by some of the personal influence of President McKinley. Another parishioner of his, later, was Vice President Fairbanks.

Dr. Bristol was made a bishop in 1908. Between that year and 1912 he was stationed in Buenos Aires. From 1912 to 1916 he was bishop of the Omaha episcopal area, and from 1916 until his retirement in 1924 he was bishop of the Chattanooga episcopal area.

Noted As an Orator.

He was considered one of the foremost pulpit orators of his church, and was the author of several books.

Bishop Bristol's wife, Mrs. Nellie Frisbie Bristol, died last August. He is survived by three sons: Dr. Bristol of Montclair, Raymond W. Bristol of Washington, and Harlow B. Bristol of Atlanta, Ga.

Franz A. Schumacher, 68, Taken by Death in Florida

Franz Adolph Schumacher, 68 years old, a retired merchant, died on Saturday at his home in Key West, Fla., of heart disease. Mr. Schumacher formerly lived at 2607 Prairie avenue, Evanston, but had been in Key West for the last two and a half years. He is survived by his widow, three daughters, and one son. Funeral services will be held in Key West today.

DIES IN PULPIT

The Rev. Charles S. Medbury.

Des Moines, Ia., April 24.—(AP)—The Rev. Charles S. Medbury, 67, pastor of the University Church of Christ, author and nationally known religious leader, dropped dead in his pulpit today as he closed his sermon.

Mr. Medbury had served as university pastor since 1904. He had previously held posts at El Paso, Ill., and Angola, Ind., following his ordination to the ministry of the Church of Christ [Disciples] in 1894.

He served as president of the Indiana Christian Endeavor union from 1901 to 1903 and as a director of the christian board of publications of St. Louis for several years. He was a member of the Iowa board of the Christian Missionary society from 1915 to 1925. He served as chaplain to the 157th Indiana volunteers in 1898 and as a Y. M. C. A. lecturer in the world war. He was a trustee of Drake university.

Funeral Services Today for Michael O'Brien, 75

Funeral services for Michael O'Brien, 75 years old, for 37 years an employé of the Chicago Surface lines, will be conducted by the Masonic order at 2:30 p. m. today in the home at 4353 Oakenwald avenue. Burial will be in Mount Greenwood cemetery. Mr. O'Brien, who died on Friday, was for many years a motorman and supervisor on the Cottage Grove avenue line, and was known to thousands of south side residents. He retired four years ago. His widow, Mrs. Laura O'Brien, and three children, Mrs. J. J. McGarr and G. Edward and Raymond F. O'Brien, survive.

ANSWER TO SATURDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

F. C. Ebinger Death Is Believed Accident.

Frederick C. Ebinger, churchman, banker and civic leader of Oak Park, was found dead in his garage at 224 South Elmwood avenue, Oak Park, yesterday. Death was caused by carbon monoxide poisoning. Circumstances indicated that the tragedy was accidental.

The body was lying between the rear of the car and the garage door, in a space less than two feet wide. Mr. Ebinger's face lay in a pool of grease and oil and his glasses were shattered, indicating a fall.

Believe He Tripped and Fell.

Oak Park police advanced no theory as to the manner in which Mr. Ebinger died, but friends and banking associates pointed out that he had to stoop to pull up the latch at the bottom of the garage door before backing out the car, and that he might have tripped. He had been working on the car, preparatory to taking his daughter Lois, 16 years old, to Sunday school, and had started the motor.

Mr. Ebinger, who was 59 years old, was vice president, cashier and a director of the Suburban Trust and Savings bank, Oak Park, with which he had been connected since its founding twenty years ago. He was a trustee of the Euclid Avenue Methodist church and until a year ago a member of the village school board.

Planned to Work on Car.

The widow, Mrs. Nellie Ebinger, said her husband ate a hearty breakfast yesterday morning and then put on old clothes and announced that he was going to work on the car and in the garden. When he had not returned in two hours, his daughter went out to inquire and found him dead. A neighbor, George Witty, called police, the fire department, and Dr. W. L. Ruggles, the family physician.

He is survived by another daughter, Ruth, 25 years old, a school teacher, and a son, Frederick Jr., who is an honor student at Oberland college.

MRS. M'CORMICK CUP AWARDED TO JEWISH PLAYERS

Permanent possession of the Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick cup was awarded last night to the Institute Players of the Jewish People's institute in the sixth annual tournament of plays for amateur play producing groups which was held at the Goodman theater under auspices of the Chicago Drama league.

The Institute Players won two other annual tournaments and by winning a third came into permanent possession of the trophy. The play presented was "The Dybbuk," by S. Ansky, and directed by Charles Freeman.

The Chicago College Club players won second place in "The Long Christmas Dinner," by Thornton Wilder, and directed by Charlotte Barrows Chorpenning. Third honor went to the Paquin Players in "The Broken Chord," writen and directed by Lawrence Paquin. Fourth was the Georgian Little theater in "El Cristo," by Margaret Larkin, directed by Mrs. E. Ross MacLaren. The Chicago College Players won first prize for best group diction. Shaindel Kalish of the Institute Players won first individual prize for women, and Rose Skopp of the same group, honorable mention. Carroll W. Johnson of the College Players won first prize for men.

LEO TECKTONIUS, CONCERT PIANIST, DIES IN FRANCE

Racine, Wis., April 24.—[Special.]—Leo Tecktonius, 49, who left Racine 33 years ago to win international recognition as a concert pianist, died today in the American hospital at Paris, France.

He had been ill much of the time since he returned to Paris from Racine more than a year ago, and for the last ten months had been confined to his apartment. He was transferred to the hospital only a few hours before his death, which occurred at noon, Racine time.

Robert Shuette, a wealthy New Yorker, was with Tecktonius when he died and cabled his family here. A brother, Edward, twice talked with the hospital in Paris today and the last time Leo undertook to speak to him over the telephone but was not able.

UNVEIL 2 PLAQUES AT MISSIONARY COLLEGE BUILT BY CHICAGOANS

ROME, April 24.—(AP)—Two marble plaques were unveiled today in the Missionary College of Propaganda Fide [propagation of the faith], one commemorating the pope's visit a year ago today, and the other his words reminding students of the "splendor of their mission." A special mass was said.

Pope Pius left Vatican City last April 24 to inaugurate the college, which was built by a contribution of $1,500,000 from Cardinal Mundelein's Chicago archdiocese. His exit was his second of any pope from Vatican City since 1870. Cardinal Mundelein was present last year.

The plaques were revealed today before a distinguished gathering of prelates, augmented by hundreds of students of the college from forty countries and representing several races. The prelates included Cardinal Van Rossum, prefect of the congregation of Propaganda Fide, and the students included a group from the Chicago diocese whom Cardinal Mundelein sent to Rome to complete their studies.

RITES TOMORROW FOR ROBT. MIEHLE, PRESS INVENTOR

Funeral services for Robert Miehle, inventor of the printing presses bearing his name, will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow in the chapel at 2701 North Clark street. Burial will be in Graceland cemetery. Mr. Miehle, who was 72 years old, died Saturday in St. Luke's hospital. He failed to rally from an operation performed a month ago.

ROBERT MIEHLE.

Mr. Miehle was born in Chicago, and after serving an apprenticeship, began work as a journeyman pressman when he was 21 years old. He told friends in later years that at that time, by observing the defects of the job presses which he operated, he already had worked out the principles of his own press. He took out his first patents on the Miehle press three years later, in 1884.

The press was sturdier and capable of greater speed than the job presses then in use. Because of its precision it played an important part in the development of four color process printing in later years. Mr. Miehle retired from active research work in 1914, and since that time had been connected only in a consulting capacity with the Miehle Printing Press and Manufacturing company, which manufactured the Miehle presses.

His widow, Mrs. Anna Miehle, 429 Surf street, and three children, Mrs. Samuel J. Turnes of New York and Mabel and Robert F. Miehle Jr. of Chicago, survive.

PROFESSOR LAYS DIVORCE GAINS TO LEGAL MAZE

Divorce is gaining on Cupid so rapidly through lax divorce laws that the two will be running neck and neck in America by the end of the century. This was the prediction of Prof. James J. Cherry of the De Paul university college of law in a denunciation of Reno as the symbol of "easy, quick and painless divorce" before the Chi Sigma Delta legal fraternity at the Congress hotel yesterday.

Conflicting state laws on divorce have made the marital status of some individuals a legal maze, rivalling the most difficult puzzles, the professor said. He pointed out that a person can be legally married in one state, single in another, a bigamist in a third and almost anything in a fourth.

"The tangle in recent years has grown greatly and there is today no positive and certain method of figuring the legal, social, financial, religious and other combination of woes that can arise to bedevil a man or woman, who, having entered upon a marriage, seeks to be free again," he said.

Hardin Named Secretary of State Planning Board

C. L. Hardin, in charge of the civic development division of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, was named yesterday as secretary to the Illinois State Planning commission. The announcement was made by Wayne Hummer of La Salle, chairman of the commission. The commission was recently organized by legislative act to coördinate the development of state resources.

Another Book by Radclyffe Hall Out Today

Religious Fervor Marks New Volume.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Master of the House," by Radclyffe Hall [Cape-Ballou]. Published today.

IT is almost comically ironic that "The Master of the House" should be the first book to come from the pen of Radclyffe Hall after "The Well of Loneliness." Without the international furor which the banning of that book received, without the unorthodox social gospel which its author preached in its pages, the world would probably not have been so desperately eager for the next revelation from the pen of its author. That Radclyffe Hall's next book should be a masterpiece of intense, moving religious fervor, that such a book should both suffer and benefit from its predecessor's bizarre "success" is, to me, one of the most ironic situations in recent literary history.

RADCLYFFE HALL.

Radclyffe Hall has done an almost impossible thing in "The Master of the House"—she has written the history, the spiritual and gentle physical life story of a French peasant boy who knew that he was Christ come again to earth—who knew, and yet never shared his knowledge.

Among the simple, devout, truly religious peasants of Provence, Christophe was born. He lived as other boys lived. He throve in body, his spirit burgeoned and was tried by his parents' poverty, their "bad luck," his younger brother's puniness and spoiled arrogance. Christophe was just a boy like any other boy, strong and fine and quarrelsome and brave.

Another's Suffering Is His Suffering.

But when he was a very small child he knew that another's suffering was HIS suffering. He felt such pity as almost rent his body. For an old, sick dog covered with sores he felt such compassion that the reader feels his own heart bursting within his breast as he reads of the small boy's pity, his debate with himself about the sin of stealing, and his spiritual urge to steal an ointment from his mother's cupboard that the dog might be cured. If there is a more beautifully recorded description of human compassion for suffering than is to be found in those pages I have not seen it. In it is all of the futility of compassion giving all that heart and mind can give and faced with the proof that compassion is not enough, that man cannot heal no matter how passionately he yearns to give his strength that another may be whole.

There is incomparable beauty in those pages, tenderness, and tears that are too deep to spill out of the eyes but must tear the heart unshed.

The boy grows up, he is faced with temptation in the form of a beautiful, ardent girl, and he not so much withstands his tempting as he is incapable of yielding to it. Then he goes to war—his heart crying against killing all of the time that he does it. He is finally lost from his scouting party, captured by the Turks, and crucified against a door.

The theme is certainly the most difficult one which any one could possibly choose. Set, only as Miss Hall does set it, among the simple, devout creatures of a Provencal village, where religion is as much of life as love and work, where God and Jesus are household words and household friends, could there be no incongruity about the story of Christophe. There is no possible hint of such a stunt as literary folk have indulged in many times before, the stunt of having Christ return to a new and utterly strange and incomprehensible world bearing his name.

Written in Lovely Spirit.

No one except Christophe himself (unless it be a madman and an incredibly old woman facing death) has any idea of his being a vessel for the spirit of Christ, and it is not impossible that such a boy might feel strange, unexplained yearnings to compassion and interpret them as the soul of Christ in his own soul. The author succeeds in making the boy's conviction a secret almost from his own self.

The book is written in a strangely lovely and reverent spirit. No one could help feeling that. And the more deeply religious its readers the more touched they will be by its tenderness.

But what the book is, aside from its inner significance, is a remarkably fine, brilliantly real picture of village life in a small French coast town. Into its pages the author has put the peace, the infinite reality, the trust of simple folk rooted for generations in their own soil, and at the same time she has made the village folk individually unforgettable as human beings.

To be sure, there is at times a little oversentimentality in the pages, and perhaps the crucifixion at the end is a trifle too symbolic, but readers will remember that the people who populate those pages are themselves oversentimental, hot blooded, primitive passioned folk who find their souls as real as others find their bodies. To the matter of fact the machinery of the body is an actuality which must be kept in repair, which must be fed and kept at the proper heat. To others the soul must have its food and its warmth as well as the body. It must be kept at "soul-heat," or it perish. "The Master of the House" is of such.

That Crowded Feeling After Meals Is Due to Excess Weight

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Do you find yourself complaining about a crowded feeling after each meal? Even when you've thought your meal was lightly chosen?

I've had complaints about this state of feeling, invariably coupled with a state of silhouette that is not desirable. That is, large wads of fat project where there should be a curve-in or, at least, a reasonably flattened line. The pressure to which I refer as felt after meal time is experienced mostly by women with a tendency to enlarged stomachs and bulging diaphragms.

I have an idea that some of this discomfort might be relieved with a larger sized corset. I know of one case, at least, in which a woman was rendered frightfully uncomfortable after each meal, and which was relieved with change to a larger sized corset. The idea this woman had in mind in choosing the smaller sized corset was to get a better waistline. She was one of those persons who naturally had no curve to her waist—a straight up and down sister. She went to extremes in trying to force the needed indented line at sides—and, of course, when she ate she was distressed.

Good corseting, as it is offered us today, calls for no short sizing, no feeling of being pinched in at the waistline. No corset is a good fitting one that makes a woman feel uncomfortable anywhere, or that pulls the flesh in in one place and makes it bulge in another. Extra wads of flesh are taken care of otherwise in the modern type of foundation garment. And a better figure is gained where there is good breathing space left between the individual and her corset.

However, I do know that a number of women have become sufficiently fat conscious through experience with a too tight fitting corset to set about eliminating some of the extra weight, and have succeeded eventually in fitting themselves comfortably inside the former tight garment. So, a tight corset may serve a purpose, after all.

But the point I'm trying to argue is that you cannot expect a corset to do all the relief work, either physically or esthetically. And the need for a waistline grows more and more marked as the season's display of dress patterns unfold. For shirtwaist wear you can't get along very well without a neat line to anchor the belt to.

And there's no fat on the whole human frame so easy to get rid of as that which fastens its hold around the hips and waist. The diaphragm is rarely a thick roll of itself. It's the crowding in of stomach and hips that shoves the fat into prominence on the diaphragmh sector.

Daughters of Veterans Will Plant Elm Tree

As part of the Washington bicentennial celebration the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War will plant an American elm tree, bearing a bronze plate, at the Stephen A. Douglas monument, 35th street and the lake, at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Glennola G. Sill, department president, will have charge of the program, which will consist of music by the Old Glory Drum corps and singing by Mrs. Annabelle Buchan.

Aviatrix Aids Plans for World Meeting of Women

Miss Ruth Nichols, aviatrix, will arrive in Chicago tomorrow to be the guest at a luncheon at the Palmer House on Wednesday in support of the campaign of the National Council of Women petitioning foreign governments to send representatives to Chicago to the World Council of Women. The council will be held in conjunction with the World's fair. It is hoped to gather 1,000,000 signatures to the petitions. Miss Nichols is now at Omaha.

Louise Groody Proves Star in Comedy Piece

"A Church Mouse" Is Good Entertainment.

"A CHURCH MOUSE."

Jackson ..... Ben MacQuarrie
Count Von Talheim ..... Carlton Brickert
Franz Von Ulrich ..... George Blackwood
Susie Sacha ..... Louise Groody

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

HERE is Louise Groody, who used to be everybody's favorite soubrette in the song-and-dance shows, in her debut as an actress with no special employment for her well regarded legs. She is a star in drama, nothing less; and if you think that the lyric little rogue of "No, No, Nanette" may be trying to fly too high when she undertakes a character in worldly Hungarian comedy, you will relieve your doubts by an inspection of "A Church Mouse," at the Adelphi theater. Last night's premiere proved to the jury of first nighters that the Groody girl can act with surprising skill.

The play is a re-staging of a recent Broadway success, and gives Miss Groody a rôle in which Ruth Gordon won high honors. This Chicago production is not a pale, inferior copy of the original, shoveled upon the stage to catch the cut-rate trade; it is, rather, a brisk, alert interpretation in which the metamorphosed Miss Groody is paired off with the able and dynamic Ernest Glendinning, whose record entitles him to stellar insignia. Together and separately they make this brittle and urbane piece of mid-European play writing march merrily along for a satisfactory evening's diversion.

In the decorative, ultra-modern manner of the comedies that come from Budapest, "A Church Mouse" tells a story in the familiar Cinderella pattern. Its heroine is a hungry, homely waif in the beginning, and a fascinating elf who captures a prince chap when the curtain falls. The good old myth is given an up-to-date variation, for the prince is a magnate of the oil fields and the girl is his lowly but efficient private secretary, who gets that job because her poverty has won his sympathy.

The old story is neatly told to this tune, and the author has created a Cinderella rôle that ranks well above the average. She calls herself "a church mouse," and she is as demure and sly and famished as that proverbial creature. She creeps into the swanky office of the oil king, begging for a job; but when she gets it she becomes a demon of commercial energy. She can take dictation at the rate of 150 words a minute and say "Faster, please." When the transformation scene arrives, when she blossoms out in an evening gown as a charmer whose shoulders are invitations to gallantry, she proves that she can be a godsend to oil kings outside of office hours.

In short, this is a rôle that calls for deft characterization, an adroit touch in light comedy and quaint personal charm. Miss Groody answers to its specifications in every detail. So let us register a clean and complete hit as a "straight" comedienne for the girl who sang and danced in "No, No, Nanette" and many other musical shows.

Mr. Glendinning gives a dashing account of himself as the magnificent young financier who has no use for women until after office hours, and he holds the performance of his associates to a rapid pace. Joan Winters, who improves with every rôle in her busy career as a Chicago actress, appears as a playgirl of the business world with excellent effect. The other characters of the short cast are in capable hands.

Wellesley Stresses Science in Changes in Study Courses

Wellesley, Mass., April 24.—[Special.]—Revision of requirements for graduation at Wellesley college were announced today by the administration offices, the change including reduced requirements of study in Biblical history, increased emphasis on science and modern languages, and closer direction of the students' choice of studies.

Candidates for a degree in 1936 and thereafter must spend 21 hours, and at least 12 of this number in one department, on a single "field of concentration." In addition to this requirement the student must do "work for distribution," including six hours of work in each of three fields, roughly classified as the arts, the social sciences, and the physical sciences.

The most notable curricula change is the increase of requirements in science from one year to two. Another revision is the requirement that every candidate for a degree must have a reading knowledge of French or German. The period of study of the Old Testament will be reduced from two semesters to one.

Good morning!

"Why on earth didn't they let John Boles sing more!" will be your impatient exclamation as "Careless Lady" fades from the screen. At least—it was mine.

It does seem such a waste of talent to cast a fine actor—with a glorious voice—in so trivial and carelessly strung together a production as this talker. The least they could have done would have been to write in more scenes providing him with an opportunity to sing, since there are few that offer him—or anybody else—a chance to act.

The story . . . a far-fetched one . . . is about a demure, hand-raised maiden who, craving excitement, calls herself "Mrs." instead of "Miss" when she sails for Europe. She's been told by a sophisticated man-trap of a widow that men prefer countries which have been explored to virgin forest.

The name she adopts is that found in the label of a coat thrown about her shoulders by somebody when a speakeasy—the first she's ever been in—is raided.

You will guess correctly that the coat's owner turns up at an embarrassing moment and that a comedy of errors ensues . . .

The story has possibilities—had it been more cleverly worked out. But the characters are crudely drawn and the things said and done are seldom believable.

On the stage—Bert Lytell. And that's good news to the folks whose favorite movie star he was not so many moons ago!

Jews of America Call World Meeting to Defend Rights

New York, April 24.—(AP)—Plans for a world Jewish congress in 1933 or 1934 "for the defense of Jewish rights and the maintenance of Jewish morale in all countries," were approved today by representatives of more than a hundred Jewish organizations meeting under the auspices of the American Jewish congress.

The American Jewish congress was authorized in a resolution to invite delegates from various countries to participate in a conference in Geneva in July to develop the international meeting.

Miss Durbin Engaged to S. P. Porter

Mrs. Frances Rawson Will Be Wed Today.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MR. AND MRS. FLETCHER M. DURBIN of 1449 Astor street announce the engagement of their daughter, Elinor West Durbin, to Sartell Prentice Porter, son of MrMs. Prentice Porter of Manchester, Vt., and of Henry H. Porter of 1520 State parkway.

Miss Durbin attended the Ethel Walker school at Simsbury, Conn., and was graduated last June from Vassar college. She made her debut in 1928. Mr. Porter is a graduate of the Santa Barbara school and of Yale university, class of 1931.

The marriage of Mrs. Frances Coonley Rawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart Coonley of 1130 Lake Shore drive, to Thomas I. Underwood, son of Mrs. Frederick W. Petersen of Ann Arbor, Mich., will be solemnized at noon today at the residence of the bride's parents. Only the immediate families will be present at the service, which will be read by the Rev. Roy Hamilton of Ann Arbor. A wedding luncheon will follow the service.

After a month's honeymoon in France the couple will reside with Mr. and Mrs. Coonley until they find an apartment of their own.

"Breadline Frolics" to Open Tonight.

The Majestic theater is completely sold out for the opening tonight of "The Breadline Frolics" and there will be numerous informal dinner parties before the show. Mrs. Waller Borden, chief instigator of the benefit for jobless men, will have as her dinner and box guests Mr. and Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor, Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins (Mr. Hutchins has a speaking engagement in Evanston tonight), Radcliffe Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, and Henry H. Porter.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Hinckley (Mrs. Hinckley is co-chairman with Mrs. Borden of the committee in charge) will be hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf and Mr. and Mrs. A. Rosecrans Baldwin at dinner and the theater. Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's guests will be Mrs. John V. Farwell III., Miss Florence Noyes, Augustus S. Peabody, and Edwin D. Krenn.

The Ernest R. Grahams will have as their guests Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mrs. Wirt Morton, Miss Edna Kellogg, and George F. Nixon. Mrs. John Paul Welling and Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Stone will be with the Chauncey McCormicks. Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey will bring Col. Noble B. Judah and Mr. and Mrs. Volney Foster to the theater after dinner at their residence.

Other box hosts and hostesses will include Mrs. Doris L. Chapman, Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Brown, Mrs. Phelps B. Hoyt, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Yager, Mr. and Mrs. Howard O. Edmonds, Walter Byron Smith, James Keeley, Mr. and Mrs. William O. Goodman, Frank McNair, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker.

Programs will be sold by a group of Junior league members including Mrs. James W. Rogers, Mrs. Robert S. Pirie, Mrs. Nathaniel Owings, Emily Batelle, Janet Ayer, Louise Neff, Adelaide and Margot Atkin, Margaret Sinclair, Alice May Dickinson, Lucy Jacobs, Louise Brewer, Pauline Perry, Betty Oldfield, Caroline McNair, Evelyn Bouscaren, Dorothy Dewes, Florence Otis, and Dorothy and Barbara Senn.

No Formal Dress Tonight.

Despite the fact that the first night audience will be attended by most of the city's social leaders, the audience will not wear formal dress. Tomorrow will be American Legion night at the "Frolics." Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, who persuaded the Legion to sponsor the show, is in charge of the sale of tickets. The show is to run at the Majestic theater as long as the public will support it. The theater was donated by Otto W. Lehmann and incidental expenses are being borne by the sponsoring committee.

One of the most intriguing dinner invitations received in several weeks comes from the Association of Arts and Industries. The dinner is to be on Thursday evening, May 5, at the Congress hotel and the attraction will be a symposium on modern architecture and interiors, and on whether the modern is conducive to livable American homes, by Frank Lloyd Wright, Alfred Granger, Ernest A. Grunsfeld Jr., and Irene Sudley. After these four authorities have made their talks, Alfonso Iannelli will conduct an open forum on the subject. Col. William Nelson Pelouze, president of the association, will preside.

Mrs. Richard T. Crane and her daughter, Miss Florence Crane, will arrive in Chicago this morning after having spent the winter in California. They will be at their residence at 1550 Lake Shore drive for about two weeks before going east with Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Crane, who came here from the west about 10 days ago.

Mrs. Mitchell Returns Tomorrow.

Mrs. William H. Mitchell will return to her Lake Forest residence tomorrow and to her desk at the office of the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform. She went to Washington two weeks ago for the meeting of the W. O. N. P. R. After the Washington session she went to Middleburg for the Virginia Hunt Cup race and then to New York for a visit with Mrs. John Stearns Jr. of Long Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey were week-end guests of Col. Noble B. Judah in Lake Forest.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris L. Johnston were to have had a party of guests in their box at "The Breadline Frolics" this evening, but Mrs. Johnston went east on Saturday to be with her niece, Miss Ethel Johnston, who is ill at Dobbs Ferry.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Cathcart of 1367 North State street will close their town apartment on May 1 and move

We are going to play a game of questions and answers this week, for we have received many letters which probably will be of interest to a great number of you. Before continuing, may we again tell you how much we appreciate your splendid letters, and say "thank you"?

Today's querry is from Mrs. M. E. M., and she is asking about strawberry whip. I quote from her letter:

"My recipe for strawberry whip to be used as a cake icing does not make a stiff enough whip. It uses egg whites, crushed strawberries, and sugar, but evidently doesn't use the right proportions. Will you please give a recipe for strawberry whip? I should also appreciate a sure sponge cake recipe to use with the whip, to vary the dessert."

In butter cream and whipped fillings for cakes or desserts, the liquid may be varied slightly, depending on the resultant consistency desired. In summer the liquid should be shortened, for these fillings are affected by the heat. Oftentimes a teaspoonful of gelatin is added, so that the mixture retains its stiffness.

My strawberry whip filling has no egg whites, and it has for its characteristics a soft yet fluffy texture. For weather such as we are experiencing, the gelatin should be added, and be continued until cold weather returns.

Take one teaspoonful of gelatin and soak it in one-fourth cup of cold water. Then place it over hot water and steam it until the gelatin is well dissolved. Cool the gelatin and then add it to one cupful of whipping cream which has been beaten until stiff. Fold the sugar [about one-fourth to one-third cup, depending on the berries] into the stiff cream, very gradually, and lastly three-fourths of a cupful of mashed and crushed strawberries. Spread on the cake.

For a butter cream strawberry filling take any butter cream frosting and omit the liquid, substituting for it the liquid of the sweetened and crushed berries. Cream the butter well, add the sugar gradually, and then cream well together. Add the berries and combine thoroughly with the butter and sugar mixture. If desired, omit the butter and make a simple frosting of just confectioner's sugar and cooked or fresh fruit. Use only enough fruit, crushed, to moisten about two or three cups of sugar.

The proportions for the plain butter cream frosting should be one cupful of confectioner's sugar for every two tablespoonsful of butter, two tablespoonsful of cream, and one-half teaspoonful of flavoring.

You may use either of these, or one of those suggested this spring for cake or charlotte desserts. The last mentioned recipes, however, have not the same excellence of texture or flavor that these more elaborate treatments provide [last fall's and the present one].

SUNSHINE CAKE.

1¼ cups of fine granulated sugar
½ cup of cold water
7 eggs [8 eggs, if eggs are small]
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup of pastry flour, sifted before measuring
1 teaspoon of flavoring

Put the sugar and water in a pan over a low fire and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Turn up the heat and bring to a boil. Test frequently for the "hairing" stage. When the sirup hairs take it from the fire. Have the eggs separated into two mixing bowls. Beat the yolks with a rotary beater until light and thick. Pour the sirup into the beaten yolks, beating continuously with the beater. Do not scrape the sides of the saucepan to get all the sirup. Use only that which can be poured out!

With a wire whip beat the egg whites until half stiff, and then sprinkle over them the cream of tartar; beat until the whites are stiff but not dry. The aim of the cook is to incorporate as much air in the batter as possible, and yet at the same time to retain all the moisture present, for it is the moisture that gives the improved texture.

Preheat your oven to a slow temperature, which is 300 degrees Fahrenheit.

Sift the flour once, measure, and sift three or four times. Add alternately to the yolk mixture with the beaten whites, about one-third the amount each time. Fold in quickly and thoroughly. Add the flavoring. Moisten a tube pan with cold water and shake out the drops of water remaining. Pour the batter into the pan and place the pan on a rack in the center of the oven. Turn the heat on to medium or moderate, which is 350 degrees Fahrenheit, and bake. The baking period should be fifty-five minutes. Remove from the oven and invert on a cake cooling rack, and let hang in the pan until cold.

Swanky Collar and Cuff Sets Are Plentiful

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Somebody should be handsomely decorated with a chestful of medals by collar and cuff collectors, for there are so many new kinds and shapes and sizes—the collar and cuff sets this year are as sophisticated and as cleverly designed as the newest dresses.

When you first joined the white collar night class of collar changers the narrow, demure affairs of fine lawn and lace were just starting out on the upward climb. Nowadays, or nights, you can tie them on, button them on, or snap and pin them on—the usual necessary sewing session is rapidly vanishing into the lavender past.

You may have decided seasons ago that you would never again fuss nightly with this exasperating but effective equipment for dark clothes. You may have deserted the needle and thread hunters that suddenly each evening disrupt entire family circles by the late bedtime flurry to find fresh collar and cuffs for the next day.

But once a collar changer, always a new collar buyer, and before you can remember your rash promises to yourself, these smart new sets around the town will suddenly and surely revive the old appetite and once again you become a new person each morning with a new and different set.

The swankiest new sets are of white piqué—they are so white they positively gleam and glitter, and there's nothing particularly modest or shy about their size, either; most of them spread expansively over the chest, high and wide over the shoulders, and dash way down to the waistline in front—and you gleefully take a minute or two and button them on with buttons that are rarely ever any smaller than a quarter and buttonholes that can be found in the darkest dawn.

The matching cuffs are as generously smart and elbow reaching as would be proper for good company with such collars . . . they, too, button on. Some more of these piquant piqué contrasts look just like the bibs and tuckers of your spinach days . . . and these retain an infantile but labor and time saving device . . . the tiny tapes with which to tie them on. Other designs have been copied from the funny little false fronts, called, for some mystifying reason, dickies . . . while others started out with an ambition to be waistcoats, then gave up the idea along with some of the material and the result is just the long narrow vest effect with a belt, which dresses up any wool or dark cotton frock in the 1932 manner.

Bib effects with a V neckline are new and probably very flattering to most shoppers. You will find them in sheer organdies, nets and laces . . . you can completely transform a businesslike simple, black, silk crêpe dress with one of these lace trimmed V shaped bibs especially if you are lucky enough to know the picture effectiveness of Irish lace against black . . . the matching cuffs are large cavalier splendors with dripping edges of the same Irish lace.

If you like rows and rows of narrow bands cunningly fagoted together you will find all kinds of styles from which to select . . . round, oval and square, also accompanied with cuffs. You will find large, luxurious sets of heavy silk crêpe . . . crisp, cool sets of linen and organdy . . . and many good looking novelty combinations in plaids, checks, dots and checks. A good shopper can fashionably collar and cuff herself for startlingly small sums and with some very spectacular contrasts in this age of efficiency and effectiveness.

Hyde Park Women Voters to Hear Talk on Jobless

The Hyde Park League of Women Voters will meet at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the First Unitarian church house. Paul H. Douglas, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, will speak on "Problems of Unemployment." Mrs. Frank Crowe, chairman of the women in industry committee of the Hyde Park league, will present the league's program in regard to unemployment.

Angry Child Gives Mother Cause to Worry

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Question: "How can I keep my 2 year old son from becoming so impatient when "the bike tips over," or when his block house collapses? Instead of trying to reconstruct the house, he loses interest and also his temper—just stands and stamps. Will he outgrow this trait?"

Answer: Yes, he will, but it is best to help him. First, his ideas may outrun his skill. But the best thing to do right now is to see that he has toys and playthings that do not require too great effort and which do not admit of failure. The big muscles are being developed at this age and the toys must fit this need. They must not be too difficult. The small muscle skill comes along later.

"Our "Play Booklet" gives references that explain this and our "Toy and Plaything" booklet gives toy suggestions for various ages.

Requests of this kind frequently come in:

Question: "I am president of the Parents' Study group this year and I should like to have each of the forty mothers in the group have in their possession copies of your leaflets. Have you any leaflets on reference books for mothers to read in regard to child training? Perhaps you do not distribute so much free literature, but if you do I assure you it will be appreciated."

Answer: Yes, we have several leaflets giving references such as you describe, but we try to keep to our rule that booklets are to be sent out upon individual request, not in quantity. I can send you one each of the booklets that seem to fit the needs of a study group, and then, if interested, the members of your group may obtain their by sending each a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Popular Society Model

Is it any wonder that Mrs. John R. Winterbotham is in demand whenever there is a fashion show in which society women are mannequins? She always is exquisitely gowned and in every costume in which she appears she might serve as a model for a fashion show. In this picture she is wearing a white satin evening gown with a brown taffeta jacket and brown gloves. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

YoungLoveCan Suffer a Lot, Claims 'Maddy'

Object of Her Devotion Can't See Her.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Young love is a grand and glorious thing generally. Sometimes, however, it provides such aches and pains and appetite loss it becomes a question as to whether fate were not kinder to spare one those very early pangs. Still, that would be robbing life of one of its bright experiences, and robbing maturity of one of its most charming and humorous memories.

The pity is that youth cannot see the humorous phase of abstaining from meals because of a crush! Especially where the object of it gets in his most deadly work by that gorgeous indifference that only callow youth can assume toward a female worshiper. In so far as his 16 or 17 year old dignity is concerned, the admiring female may starve to death for all it affects him.

And that's the boy-educational phase through which "Madeline" is passing. For two long high school years she has been "miserable" over this provocative male schoolmate. It's a purely one-sided devotion. The boy knows "Maddy" loves him to distraction, but will not speak to her.

He says he will not have a girl friend in school because news travels so quickly. He grants through an interpreter that "Maddy" is a nice kid, but that's all. The other boys and girls in school try to cheer Maddy, but her attention cannot be diverted.

One boy particularly tried to alleviate thes ufferings of Maddy's young heart, but she had to tell him that the other boy was on her brain, and that you cannot throw true love out of your heart. The Crush is conceited. He's handsome, the handsomest in the school. His dad is the most prosperous. He has the best car to drive.

But OH—those Saturdays and Sundays when Maddy cannot see him! And the long vacation period ahead when for two months her eyes will not feast upon him. It's all pretty hard on Maddy who, with the dramatics of youth, insists she would give up her life for the boy if necessary.

"You may think," she writes, "that all of this is nonsense, but nonsense cannot make a person sick, disgusted, and heartbroken as I am. You will tell me to forget him. How can I when I don't want to?"

It isn't nonsense, Maddy. It's just growing pains! You are coming of age, romantically speaking, but your growth happened to be speeded up too quickly for health. You want the whole feast served you at once. Be a bit patient, darling, and take your fun in smaller gulps. You're acting like the small child crying for the moon though surrounded by a world of playthings upon which he might lay his hands.

Ardanse Buttons on Evening Shawl for Safety's Sake

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Since Spanish shawls went out even long before Spanish royalty, that attractive wrap has been absent from the style picture. But they say dress history repeats itself every seven years, and now Paris designers have unearthed the shawl from its mothy grave. True, it isn't the shawl of yore, but shawl it is, nevertheless.

Waist length jackets, fur capelets, scarf capes, and many other variations of the short evening wrap play their part in the evening mode. But newest of the new is the shawl wrap. Schiaparelli created a sensation this season with her fur edged shawl capes.

If you will look at the sketch accompanying you will see the kind of shawl that Ardanse calls "nouvelle idée." And new idea it surely is—for this is no shawl that will go slipping and sliding off the shoulders. It is kept in its place, and very nicely, too, by transparent buttons circled in strass. The shawl, which is well below hip length, has the corner of the hem at the right side brought up and draped across the bodice, where it fastens on a huge button at the left of the waistline. But to insure its staying on safely Ardanse fastens it just below the left shoulder on the top button.

Those buttons, which you can see are in graduating sizes, trim the dress beneath which, like its shawl, is in that new soft jersey with the peau d'ange finish. It is in the palest blue. The dress itself has that slim look which is the essential of Paris evening chic, and its skirt, cut on the bias, falls into gentle folds. Where the shawl drops off the left shoulder there is a narrow shoulder strap of the dress showing. The rest of the bodice is made in one piece, with a modest U décolleté in back, and soft, draped folds in front.

"Kreuzfahrer" Is Presented by Singverein

Dramatic Cantata Praised by Writer.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

"Die Kreuzfahrer" [The Crusaders] by Gade was the principal number on the program of the Chicago singverein at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon. This organization frequently makes it a point to present a work which for one reason or another is infrequently heard, and for that reason as well as for many others, it justifies its activities.

"Die Kreuzfahrer" is a dramatic cantata which in character belongs to the middle of the nineteenth century, a time when composers were mostly concerned with suave melody, singable progressions, harmonic structures that made little strain on the understanding. Being as singable as it is, it repays study and rehearsal, and the singverein, under the direction of Dr. Sigfrid Prager, gave it an entirely competent and praiseworthy performance.

The soloists were Mari Barova, contralto; Dwight E. Cook, tenor, and Willard Andelin, bass, all warmly applauded for their contributions to the work. The chorus later sang a group of songs and the Polovetzian dance scene from Borodin's opera, "Prince Igor." Dr. Prager, who is a pianist as well as a conductor, played Franck's "Variations Symphoniques" with Stanley E. Seder at the second piano, and Mr. Andelin, a singer of unusual range and quality, sang a group of solos.

Eusebio Concialdi's annual song recital, a bit later this season than customary, took place at the Grand Opera house yesterday afternoon, and promptly classified among the excellent recitals of the year. Mr. Concialdi's voice is of dramatic power and fine, thrilling quality. He is also a musician and a student, all of which characteristics combined to make him sing two extended compositions by Handel in the style of a notable artist. His program continued with operatic arias, a dialect group of songs by Tosti, and two groups of American songs.

Alexander Sebald's string quartet concluded its series of chamber music programs at Kimball hall yesterday afternoon, having achieved both an artistic success and a popular appeal so well marked that another series was promptly announced for next season. The concluding program was entirely by Brahms, numbers 1 and 2 of opus 51 and ending with opus 67. The organization is much worth while. Its members play brilliantly and with fine tone, also with the expert interchange that makes a good ensemble.

Radish First Among Early Garden Crop

BY PAUL POTTER.

Among the first vegetables to be expected from the home garden in a couple of weeks are radishes, lettuce and the first tender sprouts of onions or the enticing small leaves of Swiss chard.

Many gardeners who have more than a passing amount of experience find it a helpful plan in sowing the early garden to mark the rows of sown vegetables wih a bit of radish seed. Since radish seed germinates in four days to a week, it is one of the first plants to show its head above the ground.

By putting an occasional radish seed in the rows of other seed, one will be able to give early cultivation to the garden, keeping down the weeds as they first start, without danger of getting the tools into planted rows. While sticks serve as good markers, the radish plants make an extra safeguard against injury to the early planting.

A new variety of radish that is finding favor this season is the Crimson giant, larger than the scarlet globe of most common use, and not so pithy. Being the first garden product for the table, the radish has quite a bit of sentiment historically, since in the early times any one wearing the blue flower of a radish plant was deemed immune from all evil.

W. B. Ward, horticulturist at Purdue university, cautions that greater yields of potatoes will follow special attention to the cutting of seed. Best results come from using high grade seed [certified seed, if possible] and then using good sized seed pieces.

Potatoes weighing about 8 ounces should be quartered, making the cuts square to reduce exposed surface. Four ounce potatoes should be halved from end to end, while seed potatoes weighing 2 ounces or less should not be cut at all.

In other words, each potato seed should weigh about 2 ounces and be planted from 10 to 14 inches apart in rows that are 32 to 36 inches apart. An acre of ground should take about 25 bushels of seed, on this basis, but the higher yields will more than compensate this initial expense.

New Russian Star Launches English Study

Will Master Language in Three Months.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 24.—Anna Sten, a beautiful Slav who knows no English, arrived today to carry out an American film contract and astonished those who met her at the train and tried to ask her questions by saying [via interpreter], "I now do not know English. Some see me in three months and I will answer all your questions because I expect to know the language in three months."

She's a Russian girl who played in French and German films abroad, and those who met her conceived an instant admiration for her spunk and personality. Zita Johann, a young Hungarian acress, also is launching herself in films. She arrived last night, accompanied by her husband, John Haussman, young French playwright, and expressed pride that she already is a naturalized American. Miss Johann will make pictures for Radio and Miss Sten for Sam Goldwyn, beginning with the rôle opposite Ronald Colman in "Way of the Lancer."

Ann Dvorak has different ambitions from those of most rising film actresses. Ann, who has been Mrs. Leslie Fenton for only a little more than a month, says:

"Just give me two or three years of film work so as to get together a neat bank balance and then a long trip with my husband, maybe to Europe, maybe to the south seas. Lots of people were surprised when Les and I were married. They said he had the wanderlust. My answer is that Ann Dvorak has the wanderlust, too. So we'll wander over the earth together. The pictures will make it possible to satisfy this ambition."

Fenton returned to Hollywood not so long ago after taking a year off to satisfy himself what life on the Balearic islands in the Mediterranean was like.

The board of directors of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Science has had to appoint a special committee including a representative of the producing, writing, acting, directing, and technical branches of the film industry to iron out disagreements over the new so-called "producers agreement," which the magnates recently adopted to prevent "raids" on each others salary rosters.

The "producers' agreement" would prevent any popular actor, writer, or director from being allowed to sign with a second studio within six months after expiration of a contract with a first studio without formal notice of the second studio's offer being transmitted to the first studio. Many film workers feel this would tend to restrict their ability to sign lucrative new contracts, might keep them out of work for extended periods, and would perhaps keep salary levels from being raised.

Helen Twelvetrees, who expects to greet the stork in October, says motherhood will not interfere with her career as an actress. She has just finished "State's Attorney," with John Barrymore and will do one more picture immediately. Barrymore is off on a month's yachting trip down the Mexican west coast, but not with his wife, Dolores Costello, as shipmate this time. The Barrymores expect the stork before Miss Twelvetrees.

Albert Gran, the plump and florid Danish actor won a judgment in Superior court when he defended himself against Director Al Rosen's suit for $4,000 which Rosen asserted he had lent Gran. Gran reached in his pocket and produced 75 cents. "Six bits is my assets. Nothing more to my name," he said.

into the Reginald H. Hardin house on Green Bay road in Lake Forest. Mr. and Mrs. Hardin and their children will spend the summer at their camp in Wisconsin. Mrs. Cathcart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, are not planning to go to Lake Forest this summer.

Leroy Fuller of 209 Lake Shore drive will return May 1 from a visit at Santa Barbara with his son, William Fuller, who has been in the west all winter and probably will remain through the summer.

The group of men and women who usually meet on Monday night for a discussion of international politics with Clifton Utley will meet tomorrow night because practically everybody will be at "The Breadline Frolics" tonight. The meetings are held in the homes of one or another of the 35 members of the group each week. The George A. Ranneys will be hosts tomorrow night.

The week-end mail contained invitations to the Lighthouse Volunteer Aids supper dance to be held at the Bal Tabarin on Saturday evening, May 14. Mrs. Edward A. Fargo Jr. is in charge of tickets and Mrs. Kenneth Templeton is the lady to see or phone concerning table reservations.

Mrs. Jacob Baur will give a tea on Wednesday afternoon at her residence for the box and ticket committees for the Army and Navy ball to be held on Saturday evening at the Stevens hotel. Rehearsals for the tableaux and military and naval pageants planned for the ball will be held on Thursday evening.

Fort Dearborn: A Picture of Early Day Life

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Out on Chicago's man-made land in that interesting replica of her birthplace—Fort Dearborn at 26th and the lake—are furnishings that tell the story of the life lived by some of our forebears a century and half ago. Flint lock muskets, animal skin rugs, calicoes——

"And tin plates, candles and trundle beds—golly, wotta life—glad I wasn't around here then," commented a cab driver who spent a half hour inspecting the old log stronghold.

The fort is not a museum—far from it—as John Manson, guide for the Century of Progress, points out. It's simply fitted up with things like those in the original garrison when, under the command of Capt. John Whistler, it was destroyed by the Indians Aug. 15, 1812,—and this revival has been accomplished, in large part, through the gifts of Chicagoans, the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Colonial Dames of America.

"Now take for instance this trundle bed made from hand hewn walnut logs," said Mr. Manson as he pointed out one piece after another in the officers' barracks. Mr. Manson, familiarly known as "Cap," lends a bit of "color" to the fort, since he traces his ancestry on his mother's side to both Capt. John Whistler and Chicago's first white settler—John Kinzie—Capt is the fourth generation.

"Here is another interesting bed," he continued, "this great four poster made out of walnut logs. It goes back 115 years and is typical of those in the old fort, even to the ropes that held the spring in place, the straw tick, and the buffalo robe for covering."

Primitive as this trundle bed [the inspiration, perhaps, for the apartment day bed] and "four poster" are, more refined versions of each were to be found at the same period and in days previous in the more civilized east and abroad. For the bed, now that Mr. Manson has raised the subject, goes away back to the one made by Ulysses and described by Homer. This is generally conceded to be the oldest account of a bed.

Of course, the term itself includes most any type of resting place—the heap of leaves or animal skins on which the savage lies, the fur bag that serves the Eskimo, and the rug or mattress used by the Oriental. The Japanese go to rest on a strip of matting with a wooden head rest which closely fits the neck, but the Europeans have always demanded more elaboration. And strangely enough their oldest beds are, in most cases, the most ornate.

Babylonian and Assyrian monarchs rested on magnificent couches of iron, gold, and choice woods and in the writings of Herodotus, "The Father of History," mention is made of Persian beds adorned with gold and silver and covered with rare and costly fabrics. Grecian love of the artistic was reflected in bedsteads, the posts of which were usually crowned with the Ionic capital.

More elaborate were those of the Romans—made of bronz, silver, and gold adorned with ivory, tortoise shell, gold, and silver, some so high they could be reached only by means of a footstool. After the fall of the western Roman empire a certain degree of simplicity prevailed in house furnishings of the Europeans, but soon the Crusaders brought back with them from Asia Minor some of the luxurious tastes of the east and in the 12th century beds ornamented with carvings and paintings were introduced.

Still, however, it remained for the couches of the 15th and 16th centuries on which royal heads rested to achieve the greatest splendor. A king in bed holding informal audience. What a formidable sight he must have been in the days when kings were formidable!

The beds designed for these diplomatic occasions were conspicuous in shape and size and impressively ornate.

Here in town is at least one royal bed—a couch slept on by Napoleon and now housed in George F. Harding's castle. In a "retiring" way, Chicago is also fortunate in having at the Historical society Lincoln's old spool bed; that on which the autopsy of the great emancipator was performed; and the heavy walnut lounge slept on by all of our Presidents from Polk to Grant.

Plans Completed for Michigan Maneuvers.

More than 400 high ranking officers of the regular army, National Guard, and reserve corps, the majority of whom have been promoted to higher ranks than they held during the war, will undergo a rigid test of their abilities to perform their duties under war-like conditions in the command post exercise to be held near Camp Custer, Mich., next month.

GEN. FRANK PARKER.

Plans for the command post exercises are virtually completed, Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding the 6th corps area, announced yesterday in an interview, during which he disclosed the details of the maneuvers. The exercise will last four days and nights, from May 23 to 27, he said, with the 400 officers involved on constant active duty.

Object to Teach Officers.

"The primary purpose of the exercise is to teach general officers and their staffs how to fight," Gen. Parker declared. "This applies particularly to the division which, in the United States army, is the smallest tactical unit that combines elements of all arms—infantry, artillery, tanks, the air corps, etc.

"For that reason it is essential that the commanding general of the division and his staff officers be able to perform their duties with the utmost efficiency. The same applies to the commanding general of the corps and his staff officers, and the commanding general of the army and his staff.

"The officers who will participate in this exercise have been trained in field duties, in classrooms, and through correspondence school work in their duties for a number of years. The exercise will require the actual performance of these duties, the theory of which they have been studying, under all the urgency and stress of war."

Chicago Is "Captured."

The command post exercise takes in only a small part of the larger campaign drawn up by Gen. Parker. In the master plan an invading force is supposed to have crossed the Mississippi river last year and to have captured Chicago, all of Illinois, and the southern half of Wisconsin. After holding this territory all winter the invading force is supposed to launch a new drive to the east, centering just south of Chicago.

The defending "Sixth Blue army," with which the 400 regular army, National Guard, and reserve corps officers will function, will bear the brunt of the spring attack. The drive by the enemy is toward the industrial districts around Detroit, Toledo, and Pittsburgh, which the invading army seeks to capture in order to cripple the defending forces, after failing to take the iron ore fields around western Lake Superior.

Parker Controls Both Armies.

As director of the exercise, Gen. Parker will control both the invading army and the general headquarters of the defending forces. In the former capacity he will send to the various divisions of the defending army information that they would actually receive in battle from their front lines, such as enemy attacks, the breaking of a defense line, and information of enemy movements.

In the latter capacity he will transmit information and orders to his commanders, which will include plans for a broad offensive to be launched by the "Blue" forces. The officers on duty at Camp Custer will be required to take action, issue orders, and map their plans in accordance with the situations as they develop exactly as they would in actual war.

The entire battle will take place on maps located in the various command posts of divisions and corps, which will be set up on the ground, spreading fan-shape to the west from Camp Custer. The commanding generals and their staffs will make reconnoissance of the ground over which their units are fighting as they would do in actual battle.

Six Divisions of Infantry.

The "Sixth Blue army" will be composed of two corps of infantry and a cavalry corps; in all, six divisions of infantry and two of cavalry. The six divisions of infantry will be deployed in the front line, four in one corps that is to hold a stretch of open ground, and the other two in another corps, whose area is easier to defend.

The two cavalry divisions, after delaying the enemy advance until May 23, will be moved to reserve positions in the rear, to be employed as tactical units for flanking movements or for support to threatened points in the front line. The cavalry will be employed as mounted infantry, using their mounts to effect quick movements, and dismounting to enter combat as infantry.

A number of observation planes will be assigned to various command posts and will drop messages containing information of the enemy as formulated by the director of the exercise. All other agencies of signal communication will be operated, in order that this service will actually function as in war.

Lieut. Col. Francis A. Ruggles, assistant chief of staff in charge of plans and training, at headquarters, Sixth Corps area, in Chicago, and Capt. J. R. Francis and Lieut. G. S. Smith, his assistants, have worked out the major portion of the details for the exercise, General Parker said. Lieut. Col. J. W. N. Schuls, corps area military intelligence officers; will head the section handling the operations of the invading forces.

PLAN FOR ARMY MANEUVERS

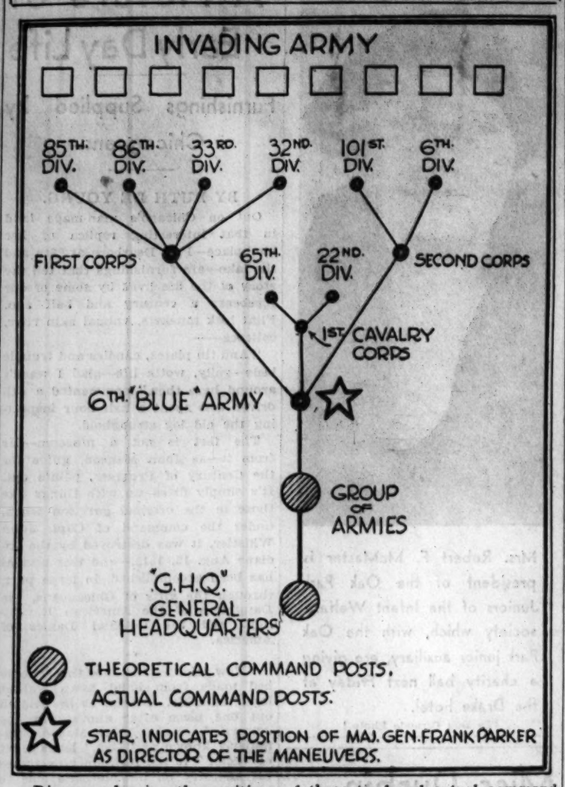

Diagram showing the positions of theoretical and actual command posts of the six divisions of infantry and two of cavalry, constituting the "Blue Army" which is charged with defending the industrial districts around Toledo, Detroit and Pittsburgh against invading army which is supposed to have captured Chicago and beginning an advance to the east. More than 400 high ranking officers of the regular army, National Guard and reserve corps will participate in the maneuvers under the direction of Maj. Gen. Frank L. Parker.

CHINA GIVES U. S. AVIATOR BURIAL AS NATION'S HERO

50,000 Attend Robert Short Services.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, April 25 [Monday].—More than 50,000 Chinese and foreigners, one of Shanghai's largest crowds, lined the ten mile route of the funeral cortegé yesterday of the American aviator, Robert McCawley Short. Short was killed while in the Chinese service in an air fight with a Japanese plane over Soochow in February.

Forty-five motor cars bore the floral tributes. Many were elaborate replicas of Chinese and American flags, while one consisted of an airplane fashioned entirely of red, white and blue corn flowers. About 300 cars carrying high officials of the Chinese government were in the procession. In the first car were Mrs. Elizabeth Short and her son, Edmund, mother and brother of the aviator.

The procession, half a mile long, included three bands, contingents of Chinese Boy Scouts and Girl Guides, nurses of the local military hospitals, students of the local schools, a company of the 19th route army and a company of Chinese mail carriers.

One service was conducted by the local American Masonic organization of which Short was a member. The other was held in the local Chinese Christian church. Loy Chang, an official of the finance ministry, spoke at this service. He stated that the American aviator's action in joining the Chinese aviation service symbolized "the torch of the legion of justice which in all parts of the world is awaiting the signal to spring to the defense of that which humanity holds should be preserved."

Judge John C. H. Wu, formerly exchange lecturer at Harvard university and now an attorney in Shanghai, declared that Short's death was an event that sealed closer the union of China and America.

The pall bearers were four American aviators. Short was buried in the Chinese government's Hungjao aviation field adjacent to the international settlement and now within the Japanese lines. The site of the grave was bombed by Japanese planes during the Sino-Japanese hostilities and it was necessary to fill a number of shell holes to provide a level space.

Acting on the instructions of the state department, local American consular and other officials did not participate in the funeral services, but a company of the American 31st infantry marched for a few blocks in the procession.

LOCKOUT LOOMS FOR DANISH MEAT TRADE WORKMEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, April 24.—Organized labor of coöperative abattoirs today received a serious blow when demands for higher wages were refused and a lockout was threatened.

Peace proposals by the state's mediator were rejected by the men today as a result of a countrywide vote.

Employers replied by declaring that if the men refuse to accept the proposals, work will stop Monday. It is estimated that the lockout will result in a $200,000 loss daily.

Chalmer Cissell, shortstop, purchased by the White Sox from Portland of the Pacific Coast league for $23,000 in 1928, was traded yesterday to the Cleveland Indians with Jim Moore, a pitcher, for Johnny Hodapp, veteran second baseman, and Bob Seeds, an outfielder.

Hodapp and Seeds, now with the Indians in St. Louis, will join the Sox immediately. Hodapp will be placed at second base in the White Sox lineup as soon as he reports to Manager Lew Fonseca in Detroit. Cissell and Moore will join the Indians tomorrow.

Trading of Cissell and Moore is the first step in an effort to bolster the Sox offensive, it was indicated by Secretary Harry Grabiner. Several other trades are in the making, Grabiner said, all of which, if consummated, will give the Chicagoans some of the punch necessary for termination of second division tenancy.

Hodapp Better Hitter.

Hodapp has been a reliable batsman since his purchase from Indianapolis by Cleveland in 1925. His fielding records are virtually identical with Cissell's, but he has an all-time major league batting record of .319 against Cissell's .261. Cissell, however, has stolen 78 bases in his four years as a major leaguer, while Hodapp in five seasons has stolen only 16. Similarly, Hodapp has scored 300 runs in five years, against Cissell's 273 in four.

Placing of Hodapp at second base will give the Sox a good hitting infield, Grabiner pointed out. With Carey Selph at third evincing signs of real batting strength and Blue on first base, only shortstop will be a weak offensive station. Jack Hayes, obtained from Washington in the Carl Reynolds deal last winter, Luke Appling and Gregory Mulleavy will be available as Cissell's successors at shortstop, but none has established himself in a class offensively with Blue, Selph, and Hodapp.

Moore has been a relief pitcher for the Sox for the last two seasons, participating in 33 games, getting credit for no victories and being charged with two defeats.

I. A. C. WATER POLO TEAM CAPTURES NATIONAL TITLE

New York, April 24.—[Special.]—The Illinois Athletic club defeated the New York A., 6 to 2, to win the National A. A. U. water polo championship. The Illinois swimmers were runnerup to the New York A. C. last year.

In the game to determine third place, the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A. defeated the German Swimming club, 5 to 3.

Emulating their fathers, the caddies formed picket lines along the road leading to the club and turned back other boys seeking jobs. Club officials reduced the caddy fee from 40 cents for nine holes to 35 cents.

SOX LEAD TIGERS 9 TO 2 IN EIGHTH; BUT THEN—BANG!

Frasier, Lyons, Faber Wilt Under Fire.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., April 24.—The Chicago White Sox this afternoon staged one of the biggest blow ups in their erratic history to enable Detroit to remain in first place in the American league and extend their own losing streak to seven straight. The Sox led 4 to 0 at the end of the first inning; at the end of the fifth, their advantag was 7 to 0; with two out in the eighth they were ahead 9 to 2, and at the start of the ninth they were in front, 9 to 6. But when the game ended with two out in the ninth, the White Sox had been sunk, again, 10 to 9.

The Tigers' scoring of eight runs during their last three put outs in the game witnessed the folding up of Vic Frasier, who was sent right back after starting yesterday's fade out in St. Louis; of Ted Lyons, the convalescent star, and of Red Faber.

Despite a temperature of 40 degrees at game time, 18,201 paying customers were on hand to see their surprising first place boys march on over the bodies of the hopeless Chicagoans.

It seemed certain that these rugged persons were doomed to disappointment before the game was 10 minutes old. George Uhle, director of two victories this season, walked Cissell and Selph. The pair moved forward on Watwood's sacrifice and came home on Fothergill's single. Then Campbell doubled, putting Fothergill on third, after which Blue cracked a single which scored the pair of 'em and caused groans from all sides. Even then it looked like the miserable Sox had been aroused beyond stopping.

Cissell knocked the first Sox homer of the year, with two out in the second, and after Selph had been thrown out, to end the second, Uhle went away.

They Look Unstoppable.

The crowd had given up and the Tiger management apparently had too, when one Izzy Goldstein was sent in to pitch the third. Watwood greeted Izzy with a single and Fothergill walked and the two runners moved up on a wild pitch. It was beginning to look like a White Sox orgy. Izzy knocked down Campbell's hot one, however, and threw him out. Blue then bounced to Davis, who threw to Ruel, and Muddy ran down Watwood.

LIBERTY LIMITED GOES FULL DERBY ROUTE IN 2:16 2-5

Liberty Limited, the Three D's stable's chief reliance, ran the full Derby distance, a mile and a quarter, in 2:16 2-5. Jockey Jim Mooney held him hard all the way.

The fractional times were: :26 3-5, :52 2-5, 1:17 2-5, 1:46 2-5. Backers of the Limited were favorably impressed by the workout, as it indicated he could perform in the mud as well as on a fast track.

R. M. Eastman's Cathop ran a mile and a quarter in 2:17. Jockey Carl Meyer was forced to pull him up twice to avoid equipment leveling the track. Fractional times were :25 3-5, :52, 1:18, 1:47, 2:17.

Rowdy Boy, another Three D's stable eligible which is expected to start coupled with Liberty Limited, was breezed a mile in 1:48 2-5.

W. F. Knebelkamp's Delivered, just recovered from an ankle injury, was galloped a mile and a quarter. He showed no signs of soreness, and will be given a speed trial tomorrow.

STAGG'S COACH AT YALE IN 1886 TO RETIRE IN JUNE

New Haven, Conn., April 24.—(AP)—Retirement of Dr. William G. Anderson as director of the gymnasium, a post he has held since 1903, was announced today by Yale university in connection with plans for the operation of the new $4,000,000 Payne Whitney gymnasium.

Dr. Anderson, nationally known organizer and educator in physical training, will leave the university next June at the age of 71 years after 40 years' service. His brother, Henry S. Anderson, an instructor in gymnastics and his associate on the gymnasium staff for nearly 30 years, will be retired at the same time.

Before coming to Yale in a permanent capacity, Dr. Anderson served as part time athletic coach at the university in 1886. One of his charges then was Alonzo A. Stagg, veteran football coach at Chicago university and at that time a member of the famous Yale baseball battery of Stagg and Dann.

Boston, Mass., April 24.—(AP)—The Braves made it six in a row by taking the series opener from the Phillies, 2 to 1, today before 12,000 fans. The game was a pitchers' battle between Ed Brandt and Ray Benge, the latter allowing two runs in the sixth to clinch the game for the league leaders. Score:

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 24.—(AP)—The Giants hit Brooklyn pitching hard today to win the first game of the interborough series, 7 to 2. A crowd of 35,000 that packed Ebbets field saw the Dodgers suffer their fifth straight defeat. Brooklyn could get only five hits off Carl Hubbell. Watson Clark was hammered off the mound in the second inning and Hoyt, his successor, passed out under fire in the fifth. Heimach finished the game in good style. Score:

Cincinnati, O., April 24.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Cincinnati Reds, 8 to 3, here today. Rhem held the Reds to three hits until the eighth inning, when they bunched four singles and, aided by an error, scored their three runs. Chick Hafey got three hits in four times at bat against his former mates in his first game as Chicinnati left fielder. Pepper Martin was forced to leave the game in the eighth because of an injury. NOW K'LL DO HIS HITTING WITH A CRUTCH

Merate Wins Madrid Stake in Good Milk Wagon Time

MADRID, April 24. — (AP) — Count Cimera's Merate, a heavy favorite, today won the thirteenth running of the National Produce stakes from a field of ten 3 year olds. Merate ran the mile in the slow time of 1:46 2-5 to earn a major share of the purse of 38,200 pesetas [about $3,056]. Valero Pueyos' Agustina de Aragon was second, and Marquis Loriana's Llodio third.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There'll be no Hazen [Kiki] Cuyler around giving help to the Cubs for the next month. The loss of his services for that length of time was the price the Chicagoans paid yesterday for a 12 to 3 victory over Pittsburgh's Pirates.

Cuyler went out of action with what was thought to be nothing more than a twist given his left ankle when he rounded third base during a first inning blast with which he helped to provide a warm welcome for one Glen Spencer, Pittsburgh pitcher. He remained in the game for another inning, but when the pain in his foot became severe he was hurried to the Masonic Memorial hospital, where an X-ray negative revealed a fracture back of the small toe. Meanwhile his teammates remained close to their work, so as to make it easy for Charley Root to win his second victory of the infant campaign.

Cubs Pile Up 16 Hits.

The Cubs, who have been rather backward in the batting phase of their daily labors, piled up sixteen hits of assorted lengths. Five of these were turned loose in the first inning as a warning for Spencer. But even though the young man's troubles mounted as the game progressed, no effort was made by his own boss to furnish him with relief. Even the Cubs refused to consider the fellow's feelings. They were still at it in the eighth, when they gave him the worst jolt of all—four runs and four hits.

It always happens that somebody's misfortune is another fellow's good luck. So it was in the case of Johnny Moore, who was picked to fill the vacancy caused by Cuyler's injury. Moore bounced out of the oblivion of the dugout in such impressive fashion that the 8,000 in attendance remarked: "Where has this guy been all the time?" All that Moore did was to help the grand total with a single, pass and homer, giving him the honor of driving in two runs and scoring two others himself. He'll be back in center today.

Stevie Produces Three Doubles.

Without Moore on hand Riggs Stephenson would have had the pleasure of demonstrating just how a real hitter should conduct himself. Stevie, in five appearances before Spencer, let go with three doubles, drew one pass and grounded out once. His hits moved two others over the plate and he scored three times himself. And even Bill Jurges contracted the hitting fever to such an extent that he shoved three mates home by doubling twice and singling once.

The surprising fashion in which the Cubs rained base hits on Spencer in the first inning began with Hack's drive close to the third base line. Traynor made a lucky stab with his bare hand and made the throw to first, but it was wild as well as late, so Hack went to second. Herman's fly to right put Hack on third and he scored on Cuyler's single to right. A popup put Barton out of the way, but Stephenson hit a two bagger to left and Cuyler crossed the plate. Stephenson scored when Hartnett singled. Grimm also hit one safely, but Jurges ended the rally by grounding into a force play.

Moore singled to right to open the third. Lloyd Waner had to sprint over to the screen in right center to get Barton's lofter, which, had he pulled it a bit more to the right, would have been an easy homer. Stephenson then hit one that no amount of sprinting could reach. The ball sailed into the corner at the left field bleacher for a double and Moore scored.

Mild Pirate Uprising.

Root kept the Pirates in check for three innings but they got beyond control in the fourth and two runs resulted. Traynor singled with one out and Suhr did the same. Piet's drive caromed off Root's glove and slipped past Jurges for a hit, Traynor scoring and Suhr anchoring on third. Thevenow bounced to Root, who started to throw to second and then decided he had better toss to first. But he made another change when somebody yelled that Suhr was scoring. Root peeped

3 HORSES GO FOR $30; WILL THEY GO IN A RACE?

Anyway, High Cost of Turf Sport Is Getting Lower.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The high cost of horse racing is being gradually battered down. Three race horses [slow horses, perhaps] just sold at public auction in Lexington for $10 a head. They were Green Way, Van o' Day, and Star Title.

Harry Morrisey, the noted starter, will send the fields away at Tanforan [San Francisco] next Saturday afternoon and will be at Aurora in time to dispatch the steeds in the race the following Monday afternoon which opens the Illinois season. He will make the trip by plane in 17 hours, he hopes.

Jockey Jimmy Wallace, ruled off in the Kentucky turf scandal of a half dozen years ago, is around Chicago asking for just one more chance. He was a great jockey when the judges caught up with him. Should have learned his lesson is six years. Talk to him and you will think so, any way.

Martin Nathanson, who admits there will be 71 candles on the cake when he celebrates his birthday not long from now, has moved to Aurora. He will serve as chief steward. He is the greatest racing secretary of all time, say the veteran racegoers, and can still peer out across the infield to the back stretch and determine if a jockey is doing his level best to get his horse up into the contention.

Lots of folks who couldn't stay home and keep quiet any longer lined up along the rails at Aurora and at Sportsmen's Park yesterday to see the thoroughbreds engage in their training gallops. Too bad we won't have an Equipoise, a Questionnaire, a Burning Blaze, a Top Flight, or a Tick On here to help blast the lid off the season. New York, Maryland and Kentucky have 'em. Chicago has to wait until later on in the season for the horses which draw the packed houses.

Tony Pelleteri of New Orleans, who ran a sour apple into a racing stable of 30 horses during an amazing winning streak on Chicago tracks last season, will be on hand for the beginning of the season a week from today. Several of his horses have been successful in Maryland this spring. The others he owns are at Aurora, and Tony expects them to start winning the very first rattle out of the box.

Old Jim Farley, the clocker, confesses that his watch is out of condition. A couple of horses owned by Bill Schmidt, the Chicago undertaker, galloped so fast in a training drill at Aurora that Clocker Farley's timepiece began to do all sorts of strange tricks. Finally it refused to do any tick-tocking at all.

A red hot tip from Sportsmen's Park is to the effect that a horse called Fort Worth will race there and may turn out to be the star of the meeting. Another that can ramble over a half mile track and which is tuning up over the new course is the veteran Valley.

Dick and Pat Nash are not spending much time in Chicago these days. They can't stay away from Churchill Downs, where their Burning Blaze is getting ready for the Derby. Several wise railbirds didn't like the way Burning Blaze worked a mile and a quarter in 2:13 4-5. But the Nash brothers are elated with the move.

After Brother Joe and Burgoo King ran one-two in a race at Lexington, the future bookmakers were confronted with plenty of money on the Bradley entry to be wagered straight and place. Horse folks can't forget Behave Yourself and Black Servant, which finished that way in one Derby, and Bubbling Over and Bagandbaggage, which ran the same way in the Bradley silks in another Derby. But did lightning ever strike three times in the same place?

BOYS COMPETE FOR CUE TITLES AT 14 Y. M. C. A.S

Seventy-five champions will be crowned in the Chicago district Y. M. C. A. junior pocket billiard championship tournaments which now are in progress. More than 600 boys from the ages of 12 to 15 are engaged in the competition which is under the direction of the National Billiard Association of America.

Fourteen Y. M. C. A.s are enrolled. There will be champions for each of the four age classes at each Y. M. C. A., which brings the total to 56. Then each age champion will meet for the championship of each Y. M. C. A., adding 14 to the total. These 14 club champions will clash in the four district semi-finals and four district champions will be crowned, bringing the total to 75. Then the four district titleholders will oppose Nicholas Oliva, last year's Chicago champion, in the five handed final for the district title.

Eddie Anderson Named to C. Y. O. Medical Staff

Dr. Edward W. (Eddie) Anderson, end at Notre Dame in 1921 and for the last few years football coach at De Paul university, has been appointed to the medical staff of the Catholic Youth organization, it was announced yesterday by the Rev. B. J. Shell, bishop of Chicago and director general of the C. Y. O.

MACCABEES AND BRICKIES TIE, 1-1, FOR TRINER CUP

BY OFFSIDE.

Two thousand soccer fans watched the Maccabee All Stars and the Brickies battle to a 1 to 1 tie at Sparta stadium yesterday for the Joseph Triner cup.

The Brickie lineup presented three new faces, but additional strength failed to bring victory. McGowie, North Shore, and Adair of the Carpenters replaced Coutts and Cuthbert, recently suspended. Jim Ferrie, imported from Pawtucket, R. I., was at left full back for the Brickies. These players, with Thomson and Scott, stood out. Ramsay and McDonald led the Maccabee attack.

The first score came after 80 minutes of play when Hubert of the Maccabees converted from a penalty against Ogilvie. Thomson equalized for the Brickies a few minutes later. The cup game will be replayed. The Swedes defeated Sparta in the opening game, 2 to 1.

Buda won the Buda cup at Harvey by defeating the Sunflowers, 2 to 1. The score was tied at the end of 90 minutes. Buda won in the closing minutes of the extra period. Lineups.

U. S. Could Use Alex Wilson, but Canada Has First Call

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Notre Dame will send a star to the 1932 Olympics, but unfortunately for the United States, the young man will be on a rival team.

Alex Wilson, who reached the semi-finals in two races in the 1928 games at Amsterdam, is that Notre Dame star. Wilson, a native of Cana[illegible], who has scored many victories this winter in the middle distances, without doubt, will be at Los Angeles this summer, for he ranks as one of Canada's best.

Wilson, who competed in the long distance events when a high school student in 1926 in Montreal, was started on his long career of middle distance victories by John Nicholson, now track coach at Notre Dame. And Wilson, quite naturally, followed Nicholson to Notre Dame when he sought a college education.

Sets American Record.

His career was climaxed this winter when he raced to a new American indoor record for the 440 yards in the time of 49.3 seconds, breaking a mark which had existed since 1915. This last winter he also gained permanent possession of the Wannamaker trophy in the Millrose A. C. games by winning, for the second time, the 600 yard event.

Ben Eastman of Stanford university, who recently broke the world's outdoor record for the 440 yards, will be an outstanding favorite in the Olympic 400 meter event, but Wilson looms as a serious threat. Incidentally Eastman's time of 46.4 seconds now is the official mark of the National A. A. U.

Will Race at Drake.

Wilson will compete in the twenty-third annual Drake relays this weekend at Des Moines, Ia. He also will be in the National Collegiate A. A. meet at Stagg field in June.

Wilson is 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighs 145 pounds. He is most versatile, being a strong competitor in all races from 220 yards to ten miles.

Distance Star

ALEX WILSON.

KAMPFER MAY HAVE TO THROW KAMPFER, DOC

Other German heavyweight wrestlers appear content to let Hans Kampfer claim the mat championship of the Fatherland. Promoter Doc Krone has Kampfer signed to wrestle at the Coliseum on the night of May 3 for the German championship, but he may have to wrestle himself.

Krone dispatched offers to three other German bone crushers—Ray Steele, Dick Shikat and Hans Steinke, but Steele didn't even bother to answer, while both Shikat and Steinke wired that they would not consider a match under the new system here of only one fall.

WHAT'S IN NAME? ONLY $71,000 FOR FISH PEDDLER!

Naive Cognomen Builds Levinsky Fortune.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Publicity, which every boxer needs and seeks, sometimes is heaped on a fighter in a form which he doesn't particularly like, no matter how well it places his name before the public. In order to obtain news space, the advertising men of the boxing business have popularized phrases which rival slogans of manufacturers who pay for dissemination of information concerning their products at so much a page.

The author of the catch phrase, wild bull of the pampas, was unwittingly father to later ideas, including the man mountain of Italy and the Basque wood chopper. Fighters have been celebrated for ferocious expressions and for their night life. All adds fuel to the ballyhoo.

Has Never Said Nay.

King Levinsky, who fights Micky Walker Friday night, probably has been called fish peddler in many languages and by many authors. And we can't say that Levinsky, which isn't the King's correct name any more than it is King, ever has voiced objection. Neither has he denied any of the score or more stories which purport to prove a naïve childishness in a big boy bewildered by fortune and huge buildings. You have heard, of course, of how the King wore two left shoes and complained his feet hurt. Or you may have been regaled by how he tossed a $100 bill on the counter in payment for a ten cent cigar and was affronted because the clerk couldn't make change.

But from this publicity made possible, of course, by a wildly flung right hand which has knocked out opponents, Levinsky has made money. Financially he has done so well, in fact, that the humorists, complacent in their own superiority in matters polite, cannot laugh it off.

Levinsky, Inc., Bank Balance.

Since Sept. 11, 1930, King Levinsky has fought 13 times in Chicago. He has drawn gross receipts of more than $500,000. One hundred and sixty thousand Chicagoans have seen him fight. Add to these figures the thousands who have seen Levinsky in Detroit, Pittsburgh, Boston and New York and the point has been proved that the King, in the last 15 months, has fought before more people and drawn more money than all others of the profession, not excepting the heavyweight champion, Max Schmeling.

WEAVER PITCHES SENATORS TO 8-2 WIN OVER MACKS

Earnshaw Yields 6 Runs in First Two Innings.

Washington, D. C., April 24.—(AP)—Monte Weaver, Washington's rookie right hander, today slammed down the Philadelphia Athletics, 8-2, for his third consecutive victory.

Weaver allowed the Athletics seven hits, when they didn't hurt. Big George Earnshaw was found for 11 safeties when they did hurt, and Bowman, who went in for him in the eighth, was pounded for three more.

INDIANS ROUT BROWNS, 14-3.

St. Louis, Mo., April 24.—(AP)—The work of Earl Averill of the Cleveland Indians, who drove in seven runs with two homers and a double, enabled his team to run away with the St. Louis Browns here today, 14 to 3. Yesterday the teams were tied for fourth place in the standings, but the Indians pushed the Browns into fifth with today's game.

How I Got My Start in Baseball

PAT MALONE.

It was back in 1916 that I thought I was an outfielder and happened to cut loose with a throw from left field to first base that changed me into a pitcher.

I was playing for the Altoona, Pa., team in an industrial league. There was a man on first base and the batter hit a fly ball to left field. The man on first didn't think I would catch the ball and was on his way to second. But I caught it and let loose with a peg to first with such speed that George Quinn, the manager, immediately decided a fellow with an arm like that ought to be a pitcher. In the next game I was on the mound and fanned nine batters. I've been a pitcher ever since.

After my industrial league experience, I was a student in Juanita college. A fellow named Pat Blake saw me pitch there. He was a professional and in 1921 asked me if I would go to Knoxville if he could get me a job. I was willing and he got the job for me. I had a fair summer with Knoxville, which was in a class D league.

I was sold that fall to the Giants. They farmed me out in 1922 to Waterbury, brought me back in 1923 and sent me to Toledo. They recalled me in 1924 and sent me to Minneapolis and Minneapolis sent me to Shreveport in 1925 and to Des Moines in 1926. It was in Des Moines that I won 29 and lost 13 games. The next year I pitched for Minneapolis. They sold me to the Cubs, the club which gave me my second big league chance in 1928.

AN EXPERT PITCHES—SO DOES DUBB

So You Slice, Eh? Elmer Can Correct That

BY ELMER DUBB.

Success; I went out to Glen Oak yesterday and passed the pitching test. I don't know what mark Teacher Cooper will give me, but he at least told me I wouldn't have to worry about flunking.

Harry began the lesson as usual with a résumé of what had gone before, starting with pitch shots thirty-forty, and fifty yards from the green, which had been covered in the preceding class. He counseled me again to keep my eye on the ball, to shift my weight to the right foot on the back swing, and then gradually to the left on the downswing, to use the right hand only as a guide for the left, and to follow through always.

Then we dropped the mashie niblick and went over to the practice tee. I figured this might turn into a driving lesson, but Harry dispatched a caddy about 110 yards down the fairway and handed me a No. 6 iron, the one I had used in the lesson on chip shots. This, he said, was to be more of a lesson on approach shots to the green, although it still came under the head of pitching.

But He Sliced.

"Take the same kind of a stance you used in that first lesson on pitching," Harry said. "Keep your head on the ball. Lengthen your backswing so that the left arm is straight at the top of it, and then start the downswing, following through and shifting your weight to the left foot as you did before. Here, see how many of these balls you can spill around that caddie out there."

The fairway stretched out invitingly, the east wind was with me, and I had every intention of laying the ball right at the caddy's toes, but something went wrong. I hit the ball solidly enough, but it flew off sideways, onto the first fairway, which runs parallel to the practice strip, and endangered a foursome just going up for their second shots.

Dr. Cooper diagnosed this violence as an advanced case of slicelitis, and immediately set about telling me the causes of it. One of them, he pointed out, was that I had neglected to shift my weight during the swing, and consequently was hitting the ball from a flat footed stance.

Give the Club a Chance.

"Don't try to pick a fight with the ball by winding yourself up into a bundle. Just unlimber and give the club a chance to do the work. If you swing in an easy, comfortable fashion, saving the power for the downswing, the club will deliver."

Harry gave me another angle on why so many golfers find their shots going everywhere but the center of the fairway. He said the particular stroke on which we were working was one in which I could begin to learn to groove the swing, and thus obtain decent direction on the flight of the ball. Too many golfers, he said, don't make a perfect arc in their swing, breaking it off by cocking the left arm during the back swing, instead of keeping it straight.

Shadow Guides Swing.

He illustrated this by using the sun for a camera. When he bent his arm at the elbow in making the backswing, the shadow of his arms and the club on the grass showed quite clearly why slicing is such a common ailment. But when he kept the left arm straight as a guide for the length of the backswing and then followed that line through on a couple of shots the ball went straight down the middle of the fairway, straight as the shadow of his swing on the grass at his feet.

Then I tried it and did fairly well, becoming so enthusiastic about driving the ball high and straight that Harry almost had to tear the club away from me when he called class for the day.

AMATEURS' ALBUM By Charles Bartlett

GEORGE DAWSON.

The eldest of the golfing Dawsons—George—is another one of those invitational tournament pirates who make the prize lists unsafe for home club marksmen throughout the district. George is a two stroke player on the Chicago District Golf association's handicap list for 1932, and from the way he's been working out lately at his home club of Glen Oak he'll be right back at scratch in no time. Incidentally, George holds the record of making the best amateur score on the big Glen Ellyn course, a 68.

GEORGE DAWSON.

George has by no means confined his competitive activities to the Chicago district. He has held his own with the best of the country's amateurs for several years. The high point of his career thus far came in the national amateur tournament at Baltusrol in 1926. He had been playing sensational golf prior to the tourney, and vindicated predictions that he would be the dark horse of the meet by going to the semi-finals. There he lost to George Von Elm, who in turn went on to beat Bobby Jones for the championship.

George is a graduate of the University of Illinois, having specialized in football and golf while there. He was a member of the Orange and Blue back field and one year won runner-up honors for the Big Ten golf championship. He also numbers the New York state amateur championship among his winnings.

Quincy Station Bowlers Win Postoffice Meet

Quincy Station, with a total of 3,030, won the five man team championship of the Chicago Postoffice Bowling league yesterday at the Gold Coast alleys. Lakeview took second place with 2,742. Scores of the other contending teams were: Englewood, 2,710; Pilsen, 2,664, and Logan Square 2,642.

Sox Lead, 9-2, in 8th, Then Lose, 10 to 9

Appling walked to fill the bases and Tate walked to force home Fothergill. Much more groaning by the crowd, even though Frasier was called out on strikes. Elon Hogsett started pitching in the fourth. He got Cissell out, but walked Selph. Watwood singled again and Sephh stopped at second. Fothergill fanned, but Campbell singled, scoring Selph. By this time the Sox seemed bored to tears, the picking was so soft.

Of Course, Luke Boots One.

When they started their sixth inning the Tigers had made two singles off Frasier, both by Gerald Walker. Stone opened the sixth with a single to left and Gehringer tapped a setup double play ball to Appling. Luke came up with it, but threw past Cissell to the left field pavilion, Stone scoring and Gehringer reaching third, whence he scored on Rhiel's single to right. There was no more damage in that inning.

The Sox were in command. They were leading, 7 to 2.

In the first of the seventh the score became 8 to 2 in favor of the Sox when Fothergill welcomed Herring into the game with a homer over the left field wall. In the Sox eighth, the score became 9 to 2 when Cissell and Selph produced a run on successive doubles, Cissell ringing up his third counter of the game.

Here Comes the Blood.

And now, neighbors, for the cold, stark tragedy: Rhiel led off the eighth with a pop to Appling and Rogell made it two outs with a fly to Fothergill. Walker scratched a single off Cissell's glove and scored on Hayworth's double. Herring walked. Johnson singled to right, scoring Hayworth and putting Herring on third, then stole second. Davis walked, filling the bases, and when Stone walked, he forced in Herring and brought about the withdrawal of Frasier.

Lyons came in and after throwing a strike to Gehringer threw four wide ones, forcing in Johnson. Rhiel, up the second time in the inning, grounded out to Lyons. The score was Sox 9, Tigers 6.

It Must Be Told, So—

Lawrence batted for Herring and flied to Anderson, the runners deciding to hold their bases until Rogell saw Anderson holding the ball out in center field. Rogell then dashed home. Johnson grounded to Faber, who seemed to have got him at first by a couple of steps, but Umpire Van Grafian apparently was surprised at Red's fielding agility and called Johnson safe, filling the bases. This caused loud yelps from the panicky Sox, but to no avail, of course.

Davis singled to center, scoring Walker and Schuble, who was running for Hayworth, with the tying runs. Stone lined to Campbell, but Gehringer was hit by a pitched ball, again filling the bases. Then Rhiel singled to center, scoring Johnson and sending 18,201 paid customers home singing.

Malone's Rest Is Over; Faces Pirates Today

Pat Malone, who has been living on rest since the Reds' hitting and his mates' errors forced him to abdicate in the home opener last Wednesday, will try to make a fresh start on a winning streak in the second game of the series with the Pirates today. Either Swetonic or Harris will pitch for the enemy.

There must be a serious depression of some kind. The usual flock of Sunday moochers who crash the press box didn't show up.

The Cubs didn't show up in their fancy new uniforms with blue pencil stripes, gold piping, and a different arrangement of the letters, "Cubs." The official unveiling probably will be delayed now until next Sunday.

The rainy weather put a crimp in the day's financial affairs. The paid attendance was in the neighborhood of 8,000.

Remy Kremer, the Pirate veteran who usually gives the Cubs more trouble than they care for, didn't accompany the team here. He was kept at home to have some bothersome molars extracted.

Jurges gave the Sunday crowd an example of his fielding skill in the sixth. Traynor opened the inning with a single and Suhr popped out. Piet grounded sharply to Hack's left and the ex-Coast leaguer, by diving, managed to slow down the drive. Jurges, who was right back of Hack, grabbed the ball and made a bullet-like peg to Herman for a forceout.

Moore may not be the only understudy playing the outfield today. Hornsby is thinking of benching Vin Barton and giving Danny Taylor a chance in right field. Barton has produced only three hits in the last seven games.

As soon as the fracture in Cuyler's foot was revealed the injured extremity was placed in a cast, which will not be removed for three weeks. Meanwhile the athlete will have to hobble around on crutches.

to stop him, but was too late. The next two batters offered no resistance.

Spencer bubbled with generosity in the fifth and the Cubs scored three runs. Moore led off with a walk, Barton got to first in the same way. So did Stephenson. Hartnett ran his string to 3 and 2, but the next one was over and Gabby didn't swing. Grimm made amends for Gabby's neglect by shoving a single through short, Moore and Barton scoring. Jurges drove a two bagger against the fence in right, Stephenson going home.

One for Each in Seventh.

After being more or less docile for a couple of innings, the Pirates broke out with a run in the seventh. This was exclusively a Waner family affair. Floyd Waner sent a two bagger down the left field line. Brother Paul did the same, and the little fellow scored. The Cubs also registered one in their half. Stephenson doubled to left for the third time. Hartnett and Grimm filed out, but Jurges singled to left and Stephenson scored.

The eighth inning eruption in which Moore's homer was a big factor started when Herman singled with one out. Moore brought him in out of the cold with a whack which sailed over the screen at the end of the bleacher in right. Barton walked and went to second on a wild pitch. Stephenson grounded out. Hartnett walked and Grimm singled to score Barton. Hartnett carried home the fourth run of the inning when Jurges dented the right field netting with his second double of the day.

The Chicago Firemen collected 13 hits off three Mills pitchers yesterday to win a semi-pro league ball game, 6 to 1. Dorsey, Firemen's catcher, had a perfect day at bath with three singles. The game was called in the ninth because of rain.

WILLARD LOOKS TO FUTURE FOR MORE TRAFFIC

B. & O. Chief Cites Improved Trains.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Traffic on the railroads appears to have reached a minimum level and there are prospects that both traffic and earnings will show improvement. These opinions are expressed by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, in his annual report, issued last night.

"While traffic continues to show a decrease under that of the preceding year," Mr. Willard says, "since January there has been no further decline in the trend of traffic and through added economies every effort is being made to overcome the effects of the conditions generally prevailing. Furthermore, as the anticipated beneficial results of the constructive measures taken by the government in an effort to stabilize the financial structure of the country become more widely felt, business should improve and railroad traffic return to more normal conditions."

Calls Wage Cut Helpful.

In commenting on the voluntary agreement of the union to a 10 per cent reduction in wages, Mr. Willard says this "will be most helpful in meeting the conditions brought about by the prolonged period of depression and afford opportunity for a sustained and possibly more liberal maintenance program, with increased employment." He estimates that the emergency increase in freight rates granted by the interstate commerce commission "may cause an increase of roundly 3½ per cent in the freight revenues of the company."

Plans to increase passenger traffic by offering more comfortable travel are explained in the report.

"To sustain and invite long distance passenger traffic," Mr. Willard says, "experiments were begun a few years ago to develop an even greater degree of comfort for patrons and it was the privilege of the company to install and operate the first completely air conditioned train in the history of railroading. The innovation was well received by the traveling public and plans were perfected whereby a second train was equipped and placed in operation. The patronage of these trains, particularly during the summer months, has been gratifying and with the experience gained and further study it is contemplated to improve and expand this service."

Operating Revenue Declines.

The traffic and financial details of the report conform closely to earlier estimates. Total operating revenues for 1931 were $158,474,628, compared with $206,660,436 in 1930, a decline of 23.32 per cent. Railway operating expenses were $119,944,440, compared with $153,142,375, a decline of 21.6 per cent. Net income was $3,802,978, equivalent, after preferred dividends of 4 per cent, to 57 cents a share on the common stock. Dividends of 3½ per cent on the common stock took $8,970,341, which necessitated drawing on surplus for $7,521,891. Consolidated surplus on Dec. 31, 1931, was $101,985,578. Net income for 1930 was $21,423,770, equivalent to $7.51 a share on the common stock.

The Baltimore and Ohio handled 68,244,961 tons of revenue freight last year, compared with 91,907,620 tons in 1930. Revenue passengers totaled 5,188,855, compared with 7,143,358. Average rates per ton and passenger mile declined.

NIAGARA HUDSON 1ST QUARTER NET PUT AT $3,643,482

New York, April 24.—(AP)—The Niagara Hudson Power corporation reports consolidated net earnings for the three months ended March 31 of $3,643,482, as compared with $3,659,394 in the first quarter of 1931.

For the twelve months ended March 31 net earnings were $13,393,952, equivalent to 51 cents a share on the 26,152,465 shares of common stock outstanding. This compares with net for the preceding twelve months of $14,428,905, or 55 cents a share on a slightly smaller amount of stock.

Electric power generated and purchased totaled 1,419,926,561 kilowatt hours in the first quarter, against 1,603,322,575 in the first three months of last year. For the twelve months period the figures were 5,727,134,784 and 6,640,218,445 kilowatt hours respectively.

Brazil Finance Ministry Acts to Halt Capital Flight

RIO DE JANEIRO.—(AP)—Brazil's finance ministry, to prevent the flight of capital and increase the exchange value of the milreis, has restricted the exportation of money to the equivalent of $125 in any one month by one individual. The Banco do Brasil, the country's central bank, has taken over all exchange operations. As a result of these measures some large companies have petitioned the finance minister for permission to remit abroad, several North American oil companies recently asking for more than $700,000 to pay for purchases.

Borg Warner First Quarter Earning 9 Cents a Share

Consolidated net income of the Borg-Warner corporation for the three months ended March 31, 1932, was $170,220 after all charges, including depreciation, interest, minority interest, and federal taxes. This was equal after preferred dividends to 9 cents a share on 1,168,694 shares of $10 par common stock outstanding in the hands of the public. This compares with consolidated net income of $329,792, equal after preferred dividends to 21 cents a share on 1,230,802 common shares in the corresponding period of last year.

Bank Attacks Federal Tax Plan as Fatal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 24.—[Special.]—Perhaps at no other time during the last few years, with the possible exception of the confused period immediately following the crash of 1929, has there been greater need for a cool appraisal of trade and financial fundamentals than there is at present, says the Guaranty Trust company in its current review of conditions, published today.

"The unsettled tax controversy," it declares, "and other suggested legislation in congress, the failure of the usual seasonal improvement to materialize, and the lack of any outstanding betterment in industry following the corrective legislation of the last few months have dampened such optimism as had developed since the beginning of this year."

Growing Tax Burdens.

"Apparently," the review adds, "we are facing a similar problem to that which, because it was not solved, brought disaster to the financial systems of many other countries during this period. In those countries the governing bodies, under the pressure of popular demand and political greed, increased public expenses and services beyond the capacity of their economic structures to pay, with inevitable disastrous results.

"Unless the American people can be made to realize that money for governmental expenditure can come only from the pockets of American taxpayers, with a restrictive effect on both individual effort and general business, there is an imminent threat that we may be forced to meet the difficulties that have so seriously handicapped other countries.

"The combined expenditures of federal, state, and local governments in the United States in 1929 were 347 per cent larger than in 1913.

Incomes Increase Slower.

"During the same period the national income increased only 148 per cent and the population only 25.9 per cent. Governmental expenditures, according to the national industrial conference board, increased twice as fast as national income and more than three times as fast as population. Preliminary estimates from unofficial sources place the national income in 1931 at about $52,500,000,000 and the total governmental expenditures at $14,000,000,000. If these figures are correct, they mean that more than one-fourth of every person's time last year was spent in earning money to be paid out in taxes.

"As far as the federal government is concerned, the situation has reached a point where neither more borrowing nor more taxation can be resorted to without a threat of disastrous results. The American people in general do not realize to what extent the scale of federal government costs has increased in the last few years. For some time after the end of the world war economy was practiced; the public debt was reduced and federal tax rates were lowered. Now the situation is reversed, and the federal government has joined state and local governments in the list of excessive spenders.

Costs Mount as Incomes Fall.

"It is so anomalous that in the depression year of 1932 it is costing approximately a billion and a quarter dollars more to run the government than in the relatively prosperous year of 1927. The difference between the levels of federal government expenditures in 1932 and in 1927 is slightly more than the amount to be raised by additional federal taxes under the new revenue bill to balance the budget in 1933. If the rate of expenditure could be restored to the 1927 level, it would be unnecessary to impose any new federal taxes whatever.

"It is true that congress has somewhat obscured the situation in the public mind by threatening to pass a tax bill that would place unnecessary burdens on the economic system of the country.

"The fact remains that under no conceivable set of tax rates could such an increase in governmental expenditures be supported without imposing a crushing burden on American business. The question is not primarily one of paring government salaries or shaving budgets but of curtailing government activities for which we cannot afford to pay. The assumption that money for these mounting extravagances can be raised by following the slogan 'Soak the rich' is utterly fallacious, for such a policy will simply exterminate 'the rich' and eliminate the very sources of revenue.

Considering Business Sources.

"A useful source of information," the review adds, "regarding the conditions under which business is done in the United States is offered in the annual report of the commissioner of internal revenue on 'statistics of income.' The unique value of the report lies in the fact that it is practically all-inclusive, since every corporation in the country, unless exempted by law, is required to file a return.

"The figures indicate that a surprisingly small proportion of American corporations earn a net income in any given year. Never has this proportion exceeded two-thirds of all the corporations reporting, and in no year since 1919 has it equaled 60 per cent. The general experience during the prosperous periods of the last decade was that only slightly more than half of the corporations in the country earned a net income in any single year. In 1929 the proportion showing a net income was 53 per cent; in 1930 on the basis of returns filed prior to Aug. 31, 1931, there was an abrupt drop to 43 per cent.

Billions in Deficits.

"Undoubtedly the most striking feature of the report is the rather indifferent showing made by the large majority of the country's corporations, even in comparatively prosperous years. In every year since 1919 total deficits approximating or exceeding $2,000,000,000 have been reported. The magnitude of this figure can be readily appreciated in view of the fact that the total net income has never exceeded $11,654,000,000."

GOOD OUTLOOK ON CROP CUTS PRICE OF WHEAT

Farm Board Called Seller of May.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Improved wheat crop reports from the southwest, where there were good rains, brought liquidation. There also were reports of liberal rains all over the American and Canadian northwest. These factors and further declines in stock market prices had a depressing influence on grain and provision futures.

The close was at practically the lowest of the week. Net losses on wheat were 3@3¼c; on corn, 1⅞@2c; on oats, 1⅝@1½c; on rye, 3⅜@4¼c. Lard, however, lost only 2½@5c, and bellies, 22½@25c, compared with a week ago.

Bullish Influence Wanes.

Crop reports have lost their bullish influence on wheat despite the fact that late advices from Kansas City and local interests indicate a lowering of crop estimates in the southwest as compared with the government figures.

One estimate made by Adolph Kempner of the Rosenbaum Grain corporation gives the five southwestern states 189 million bu, against 207 million bu by the government's April report. The five year average is 272 million bu.

Despite rains over a large part of the best sections in Kansas and other southwestern states which improved prospects, there is a large area in both Kansas and Nebraska that is regarded as almost past redemption.

The northwest had good rains at the close of the week on both sides of the international line. More growing weather is needed there to give the spring wheat a good crop. Advices came from Europe that there will be fair to possibly good crops.

At the same time there is said to be a movement on to give the federal farm board 100 million dollars to be used in financing wheat to be sold on credit to foreign countries. Leaders in the grain trade, however, oppose this measure on the ground that, as foreigners refuse to pay their present obligations, or at least until they do, further credit should not be extended.

Recent Buyers Have to Sell.

Speculators who lately have bought grains, expecting a good advance on the winter wheat crop scare, have been forced out by the decline in prices. May liquidation was heavy, particularly in wheat, and at the close was well under way in the coarse grains. It is believed that the farm board interests have sold the bulk of their May wheat holdings and that was largely what had a depressing influence. At the same time that board is said to have been a good buyer of July and September wheat.

George S. Milnor, president of the Grain Stabilization corporation, is expected back from Europe today or tomorrow. Possibly he may have something interesting to tell the trade about the foreign situation.

The farm board was a free seller of hard winter wheat for export throughout the week, Greece buying a number of cargoes.

The Red Cross has taken about 13,000,000 bu of its allotment of 40,000,000 bu of farm board wheat, and has about 1,750,000 families on its list who are being supplied with flour. It would not be surprising to see that owing to the heavy consumption of flour and feed, another allotment of farm board wheat will be necessary.

A marked change in the world wheat situation as a result of the poor winter wheat crop in the United States was noted in a recent government report that estimated that total wheat supplies in the United States during 1932-'33 will be about 150,000,000 bu less than in 1931-'32.

Wheat Market Details.

Wheat prices have declined practically 7c from the recent high point. May wheat closed Saturday at 56@56½c, July 58¾@58¾c, September 61¼@61½c. December wheat trading will start today. Prices for the week follow:

Corn Prices Depressed.

Corn prices dropped to the lowest since October, 1899, on liquidating sales, and the market was weak. Holders were said to be well out at the finish. Elevator interests have not completed turning over their hedges from May to the deferred months. Country holders of cash corn were moderate sellers, but eastern and general consumptive demand has not improved to any extent despite low prices.

There was only a slight recovery from the bottom at the close, with May at 32c, July 35¼@35⅝c, and September 37½@37¾c. Prices for the week follow:

Mild Weather Conditions Seen Reducing Drug Sales

Unseasonably mild weather conditions combined with generally reduced buying power to effect a decrease of about 18 per cent in drug sales for the first quarter of 1932, as compared with the corresponding period of 1931, says the Standard Statistics company.

FRENCH PAPER ASSERTS QUOTAS MAY BE STUDIED

PARIS, April 24.—(AP)—La Journee Industrielle, organ of French business interests, asserts that France would seriously study the possibility of revising the import quotas so American business interests would be given "that importance in France's international commerce to which they are entitled."

The study would be made, the paper said, to avoid all cause for friction and misunderstandings with the United States on the question of the quotas.

Last Thursday it was announced Ambassador Walter E. Edge had induced the French government to revise a number of the quotas fixed for American commodities and that as soon as Premier Tardieu returned from Geneva the discussions would be resumed, covering the whole quota system.

In an election campaign speech Friday, however, Louis Rollin, minister of commerce, warmly defended the quota scheme on the ground it served to keep unwanted imports out of the country and to prevent danger of dumping by foreign producers. At the same time he hinted there might be further developments in the economic policy of the Tardieu administration, should it be returned to power in the coming elections. The quota had reduced imports into the country, he said, but the scheme should be completed by a network of agreements between the great industries.

GEN'L THEATERS PLAN ACCEPTED BY 2 COMMITTEES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 24.—Agreement in principle upon a plan for the reorganization of General Theaters Equipment, Inc., which went into receivership on March 1, has been reached by the two protective committees recently formed in the interests of the company's security holders. The committees have agreed to merge their efforts under the chairmanship of Arthur W. Loasby and to collaborate upon the working out of the details of their plan.

In a letter to holders of the company's ten year 6 per cent convertible debentures sent out today by the consolidated committee it is disclosed that the Chase National bank, which holds $19,700,000 of the company's notes secured by Fox Film corporation stock as collateral, has given assurance of its willingness to coöperate. It has agreed in principle to participate in a plan under which, among other things, the Chase and the debenture holders who participate would receive, on pro rata basis, in exchange for the obligations they hold preferred stock of a reorganized company which would acquire the principle assets of General Theaters Equipment, Inc. This includes voting trust certificates for upwards of 1,000,000 shares of class A stock of Fox Film corporation now pledged as collateral.

The preferences, dividends and voting rights of such preferred stock, the letter sets forth, would be alike except that the preferred stock which would be issued in exchange for money which was borrowed in 1931 for the purpose of acquiring preferred stock of Film Securities corporation would have these last named securities set aside for its prior benefit.

Timken-Detroit Reports Profit for 1931 of $328,328

Report of the Timken-Detroit Axle company and subsidiaries for the year ended Dec. 31, 1931, shows net profit of $328,328 after depreciation, interest, and taxes. This is equivalent, after 7 per cent preferred dividends, to 13c a share on 992,096 shares of common stock of $10 par value, and compares with net profit of $842,237, or 62c a common share, in 1930. Current assets as of Dec. 31 last, including $3,487,842 cash and marketable securities, amounted to $8,658,316 and current liabilities were $1,094,927. This compares with cash and marketable securities of $3,401,404, current assets of $8,447,052, and current liabilities of $509,806 at the close of the preceding year.

Trade in Bankers' Bills Remains Small in Gotham

New York, April 24.—(AP)—Despite numerous recent advances in price of bankers' acceptances, the supply continues small. Business stagnation keeps down the volume of new bills, while banks which hold large amounts of acceptances are indisposed to sell, perhaps because they think prices will be forced higher.

PROFITS HOLDING UP DESPITE VOLUME DROP SURVEY HERE SHOWS

Despite a 29 per cent drop in volume of business for the first quarter of 1932 as compared with last year, the Chicago Association of Credit Men reports that 41.6 per cent of Chicago manufacturers and wholesalers realized the same or a greater margin of profit on that volume.

J. F. O'Keefe, secretary of the association, said the survey indicated greater efficiency.

"More than two-fifths of the businesses reporting on the survey show that they have been able to maintain either the same margin of profit or a greater margin during a less active quarter," he said. "A new stability is entering the business world. The dreams of high profits have been fairly well dissipated."

The survey showed 21 per cent of the companies interviewed had larger orders on hand April 1 than a year ago. The rest had a smaller volume of orders. The consensus of opinion of Chicago business houses was that the second quarter would hold to the level of the first quarter and the balance of the year would bring a gradual improvement.

PUBLISHERS SEE SIGNS OF SLOWLY REVIVING TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 24.—Optimistic reports of slowly reviving business in every section of the country were brought here today by the vanguard of more than 500 publishers or their representatives who are arriving for the thirty-third annual meeting of the Associated Press, opening tomorrow, and the forty-sixth annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' association beginning Tuesday at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Some of the publishers asserted that the slight improvement in business had been first reflected in their circulation. Others stated that the upturn, though of small proportions, was general. Some expected to see a more marked improvement following the presidential election, others held that the election would not make any difference. They were unanimous in their praise of remedies undertaken by congress and the administration in Washington.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, president and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was not as encouraging as some of his colleagues. He said:

"I don't think there can be any revival of business until we reduce the burden of taxation. I think that with the tax legislation they are passing in congress there can be no hope of a business revival."

GREECE TO DELAY LOAN PAYMENT DUE ON MAY 5

ATHENS, Greece, April 24.—(AP)—The government today decided to postpone for one year repayment due on May 5 of an advance of $7,500,000 on a loan for productive works made by Speyer and Seligman company.

It was announced that difficulty had been encountered in finding sufficient foreign exchange, but that interest of $300,000 on the loan would be paid.

A semi-official message said Premier Venizelos tomorrow would announce the abandonment of the gold standard by Greece.

Sears Community State Bank Deposits Increase

An optimistic note for merchants on the west side is sounded in a letter sent out by the Sears Community State bank. The letter, signed by J. Louis Kohn, president, states in part:

"There probably is no more accurate indicator of current business trends than the movement of deposits in banks. At each of the last three bank calls we have shown an increase in deposits, with the result that our statement of March 30, 1932, shows our deposits to be over $1,000,000 more than we had on hand at the bank call of June 30, 1931. We are happy to point to our record of steady growth under present conditions of business. However, we believe it is a reflection of improvement of business in the community during the last few months."

French Trade Balance Shows $80,000,000 Deficit

PARIS, April 24.—(AP)—The French trade balance for the first three months of 1932 shows a deficit of more than 2,000,000,000 francs ($80,000,000) in figures compiled by the customs service. Imports were 7,357,765,009 francs ($294,310,600) and exports 5,294,793,000 francs ($211,791,720).

New York Bond Mart Trade Moves Along Narrow Trail

New York, April 24.—(AP)—The bond market plodded along a narrow trail during the last week. After a series of practically featureless sessions the average for 60 corporate securities showed a net loss of only four-tenths of a point.

The hesitancy displayed by listed loans generally was attributed to various uncertainties connected with the budget balancing performances at Washington, the discouraging movement of stocks, business and industrial conditions, and the European situation.

Boston Edison Sets Pace.

That confidence still exists in high grade issues was shown by the oversubscription of two note offerings of the Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston aggregating $30,000,000. These notes were sold to yield 4.45 and 5.44 per cent on maturities ranging from one to three years.

This week's offerings are expected to be comparatively light, embracing principally municipals aggregating $10,567,313. New municipal bonds were easily disposed of last week.

The United States government group, which recently has exhibited conspicuous buoyancy, stood on the side lines during most of the six days' transactions. The net decline of the federals, however, was fractional. Considerable profit taking came into this department and, at the same time, there was a disposition of traders and investors to wait for the treasury announcement of its new financing terms.

Hoped for Lower Rate.

Traders were somewhat disappointed because the federal reserve bank failed to shave its rediscount rate on Thursday. A reduction had been forecast, especially when the Bank of England cut its rate. It is still felt, though, that a lower rate here is only a matter of short time. The reserve system during the week continued its easy money policy by purchasing some $93,000,000 of federal obligations.

Of the various corporate classes the railroads exhibited the most strength and, after backing and filling, ended the week with only one-tenth of a point loss for the average. The utilities were under pressure most of the time, as were a number of the industrials, but they managed to maintain a fairly respectable position.

Foreign bonds were irregular throughout. French government 7s and 7½s were the feature of this section, both registering new highs for 1932. The Germans were easy at times, as were the Argentines and Australians. British loans were steady and Japanese loans held their own. The Scandinavians were inclined to softness.

DRUG STORE BODY TO STUDY SALES PROBLEMS OF 1932

Meeting 1932 sales problems in a 1932 way will be the general problem to be studied by the Illinois Rexall convention which opens this morning at the La Salle hotel. H. M. Ehrlicher of Pekin, president of the Illinois Rexall club, will open the meeting.

The speakers for the convention are: S. S. McCully, Chicago, vice president of the L. K. Liggett company; George C. Frolich, Boston, vice president and general sales manager of the United Drug company; Clyde De Vere McKinley, Mason City, first vice president of the Illinois Rexall club; George A. Wilson, Boston, secretary, International Association of the Illinois Rexall clubs; George P. Sargent, Boston, manager of the toilet goods department; S. H. Crawford, Boston, manager of the agency department; R. J. Glinas, Boston, manager of the stationery department; W. F. JAPAN'S STATE CONTROL OF SILK ENDS WITH LOSS

TOKIO, April 24.—Cutting its loss by approximately 100,000,000 yen, the Japanese government has ended another unlucky experiment in state control of products by selling 107,380 bales of raw silk to Paolino Gerli of New York, president of the Silk association.

The deal is the largest and the price the lowest ever recorded. The exact figure was not disclosed but it is understood to be between 430 and 440 yen per bale. When the experiment began the price approximated 1,000 yen per bale. The government that day guaranteed 30,000,000 yen as an identity fund. By new legislation it is expected that the amount will be increased to 50,000,000 yen, the remainder being borne by bankers and reelers.

NEW YORK CENT'L SEEKING STATUS OF LACKAWANNA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 24.—A desire by the New York Central to learn as soon as possible the status of its position in respect to control of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad caused the former road to file its own consolidation brief with the interstate commerce commission last week, and examination of the brief reveals. The New York Central holds 10 per cent control directly in the Lackawanna and controls directly in the hands have enough stocks in friendly between 20 and 30 per cent.

The Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, and Chesapeake and Ohio filed a joint consolidation brief with the commission last Monday. It had been the intention of counsel for the New York Central to file but unexpected developments prevented this. The New York Central's brief asserts a desire that no "unwarranted inferences" should be drawn from its action in presenting a separate brief.

Bogota Mortgage Bank May 1 Coupons to Be Paid

New York, April 24.—(AP)—The Guaranty Trust company, trustee of the 20 year 7 per cent gold bonds of the Mortgage bank of Bogota, announced today that full payment of May 1 coupons will be made from funds held in the "special fund." The trustee has been informed by the Mortgage bank that special deposit with the control of the exchange board has been made with the refused its authorization to make the necessary remittance to cover the May 1 coupons.

Expect Steel Preferred Rate Will Be Maintained

New York, April 23.—(AP)—Although Wall street expects that United States Steel's directors may omit the dividend on the common stock at next Tuesday's meeting, authoritative quarters assert that there will be no change in the $7 rate on the cumulative preferred issue. The preference shares assumed a more prominent position in the capital structure when the corporation, late in 1929, retired its bonds.

FORD MAKING LARGE PURCHASES OF STEEL; OTHER FIRMS BUYING

Cleveland, O., April 24.—(AP)—Ford has started steel purchases for volume production, the magazine Steel said today, with the bulk of the business going to mills at Youngstown, Pittsburgh, Detroit, and Cleveland.

A schedule of about 42,000 eights has been adopted for May by Ford, the magazine said, and sheets, strip, fender stock, and practically all the required steel products except those rolled in the Ford steel works were ordered. The amount was believed to have been about 35,000 tons.

While other districts were unchanged last week, northern Ohio mills put the national steel making pace up one point to 23 per cent. Staggered operations at Buffalo indicate a recession there this week and some capacity is being dropped at Chicago, but the automobile business promises at least to hold last week's improvement.

"Ford is not alone in heartening Detroit," the magazine continued. "General Motors is understood to have achieved close to 80 per cent of its objective in its recent sales drive and Chrysler, especially in the Plymouth and De Soto lines, is moderately strong. Chevrolet has scheduled 60,000 cars for May, 15,000 more than in April."

Bids go in June 15 on 50,000 tons of plate steel outlet pipe for the Hoover dam project. A fresh inquiry for 5,000 tons for barges has been made at Pittsburgh and 18,000 tons of steel are pending for a postoffice at Philadelphia. The New York Central railroad took bids on its track fastening requirements and formal allocation of 28,000 tons of rails may be near. The Pennsylvania rail requirement, not believed imminent, will be for 25,000 tons, the magazine said.

EXPECT NEW YORK STATE TO ISSUE $75,000,000 NOTES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 24. — New York state will enter the market in a few days with a new issue of short-term notes, probably $75,000,000. Controller Tremaine marketed on March 31 an issue of $50,000,000 3¾ per cent notes, due on Jan. 15, 1933, at par, in anticipation of taxes and revenues. In view of the fact that these notes are currently quoted in the open market at prices to yield little more than 2 per cent, it is expected that the state will be able to borrow cheaper than it did last month.

The new financing is planned to take care of the needs of the state for the remainder of this year. The exact amount to be borrowed will be determined by the tabulation of the state income taxes. This tabulation is now being completed. From these collections the controller will retire the issue of $25,000,000 4½ per cent notes, due on May 1, which he sold on Jan. 26.

British Shipping Industry Gets Some Cheerful News

LONDON, April 24.—The first cheerful news in many months reached Great Britain's hard hit shipping industry today with publications of quarterly returns of chamber shipping. The figures showed an 8.5 per cent less tonnage lying idle in British ports on April 1 than on January 1 and 6.2 per cent less than April a year ago. The decrease is partly explained by a number of idle ships being used for pleasure cruisers this year. There are still 734 vessels of 1,800,000 net tons lying idle in British ports, representing enormous totals of 2,750,000 gross tons and 4,250,000 tons deadweight.

FORMER CRISES OFFER SURETY OF "WAY OUT"

Depression Also Offers Remedies.

BY ALEXANDER D. NOYES.

[Financial Editor New York Times.]

New York, April 23.—All periods of severe financial depression present a series of successive phases, differing in outward semblance from one another, yet perfectly logical in their sequence. The exact phenomena of one depression will not always duplicate those of another.

The characteristic circumstances in the aftermath of 1893 were the desperate struggles of the treasury to maintain its credit, pay its bills, and prevent default on the national currency. In the two or three years after both 1893 and 1873 there was the virtual insurrection of labor.

Offers Peculiar Problems.

Neither complication has been witnessed in the present episode of economic reaction, but it has had its own complicating circumstances, from some of which these older depression periods seemed to be reasonably free.

Of these later factors the European difficulties, with the resultant entanglement of international finance and commerce, are beyond question the most impressive. They are no doubt primarily the legacy of the most costly, wasteful, and destructive war in history, involving both an accumulation of indebtedness quite without precedent and an equally excessive derangement of costs and prices, the inevitable post-war readjustment from which was painful and in certain quarters disastrous.

What the character of the depression period would have been in this respect and in many others if, as was widely expected five years ago, the world's post-war expansion had been abruptly terminated in 1927, is a matter of conjecture.

Changes Nature of Shock.

The shock at least would have come when American capital still was supplying Europe's needs and not, as it did in 1929, after two years in which the creditor nation of the world, because of its own rash speculation, already had been pulling out the props from the debtor states. We should not have had the perpendicular deflation of a structure of Wall street prices in which the whole of America was caught. We should probably have missed the prodigious pecuniary losses which turned a whole community from paper wealth into very actual financial straits, and there would have been a chance for gradual reduction of staple prices, instead of the precipitous decline that followed the excessively violent shrinkage in American purchasing power after 1929.

Events Prove Otherwise.

These things, however, have happened as they have happened, and the phase of depression into which the community has now entered is the chapter of stolid discouragement, of obstinate hopelessness about even the longer future, which is familiar at about this time in all great economic reactions. In this country that particular state of the depression invariably has been marked by a rising clamor at Washington to tinker with the currency. On all occasions the

SAYS IGNORANCE OF LAW CAUSES FORECLOSURES

Mortgage Banker Talks on Situation.

BY AL CHASE.

More and more families are losing their homes through ignorance of mortgage law or as a result of placing reliance on misinformation, according to George Dovenmuehle, vice president of Dovenmuehle, Inc. This, of course, doesn't apply to the person who knows mortgage conditions but just hasn't the funds to meet his interest payments and has to suffer the loss of his home, perhaps after he's paid down several thousand dollars. It does apply, however, to the person who ignorantly thinks he can do certain things contrary to law and thereby plunges the property into a costly foreclosure and receivership.

Dovenmuehle, Inc., has been identified with mortgage banking in the Chicago area for more than three-quarters of a century, has made many thousands of loans on individual homes and at present has well over 5,000 loans of this type outstanding. Consequently, comments by Mr. Dovenmuehle are made with authority and should be of interest to the average home owner who has a mortgage on his property.

"Many costly foreclosures could be avoided if the borrowers—especially the owners of small homes—had a clear understanding of foreclosure laws," said Mr. Dovenmuehle. "Undoubtedly many home owners have become discouraged in these troublesome times, due to high taxes and dwindling incomes. In many cases they've failed to pay their taxes and have neglected their properties to such an extent that their equities over and above the mortgage have become quite small.

Act on Misinformation.

"At such a time they're in a receptive frame of mind to follow the advice of those who are ignorant of the law. Acting on misinformation, they inform the mortgage man that they'll make no further payments on their obligation, saying: 'I can live here for a year and a half or two years, rent free, and you can't put me out. I'll live out my equity in rent.'

"Such, of course, is not the case. But this mistaken idea which has become quite prevalent in borrowers' minds, has created many unnecessary foreclosures.

"The ordinary form of trust deed and mortgage note is a very powerful and effective weapon. It can be used to dispossess a home owner almost immediately and further to obtain a judgment against him which will tie up any other properties he may own.

"The borrower, in signing a mortgage, usually signs away his homestead rights and also assigns to the lender all the rents and profits of his property. Legally, therefore, the lender is entitled to immediate possession and immediate rents, even from the owner of a home.

Makes a Receiver Necessary.

"As a matter of practice, however, the courts will not usually grant immediate possession unless the lender can show that the property has depreciated to such an extent that a deficiency will result in a master's sale. Such a sale generally can be held within ninety days. Here the lender almost invariably bids in the property for less than the amount of the mortgage, making it necessary for the court to appoint a receiver.

"The receiver takes immediate possession and the owner must then pay a fair rental or get out. The thing that apparently is not clear in the minds of those who deliberately default their debts is that in the ordinary foreclosure they'll be forced to pay rent within ninety days at the most.

Faces Additional Penalty.

"Furthermore, if the price bid at the sale is not a sufficient one, the individual owner faces the additional penalty of a judgment which will garnishee his salary and attach his other possessions. He, of course, is left the right to redeem his property by paying off the total amount of his debt, plus all fees and costs, within twelve months after the date of sale.

"Most lenders don't like to foreclose, but are frequently forced into such action by stubbornness on the part of ignorant borrowers. It's my belief that if these borrowers are told the truth and made to see the seriousness of defaulting their payments, many unnecessary and foolish foreclosures can be avoided.

"After all, it should be borne in mind that these lenders are either insurance companies who need mortgage interest with which to pay death claims and other losses, or trust estates, with widows and orphans dependent on the proceeds, or individual investors, who themselves have suffered severe losses and very likely are dependent on the return from their investments as a means of livelihood."

CASH LARD NEAR 4 CENTS

Cash lard in Chicago was down to $4.30 per 100 lbs on Saturday, the lowest in recent years. Pork products generally are selling at lower prices than the average consumer of the present day has known. As a result consumption is at a fair rate. Hog supplies are liberal, and the top at Chicago on Saturday was $3.90, around a record level. Stocks of lard have increased of late and are ample for all requirements. Prices for the week follow:

CITES GLASS BILL AS LACKING IN BANKING REMEDY

Writer Calls Abuse of Credit Real Peril.

New York, April 24.—(AP)—Criticisms of the Glass banking bill, as favorably reported by the senate committee on banking and currency, are expressed by Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson Jr., economist of the Chase National bank, in the current issue of the bank's Economic Bulletin, published today.

The revised bill, in Dr. Anderson's opinion, "still retains the essentially wrong point of view of the original measure," since it is "aimed at symptoms rather than causes."

"Designed to prevent a repetition of the speculative orgy of 1928-29, and the abuse of bank credit and financial machinery which that speculative orgy involved, it actually contains no provision which, had they been in effect in 1928-29 and in the preceding period when the unsound situation was created, would have prevented the main evils of that period.

Results of Evolution.

"The earlier Glass bill was designed to sweep away a great eddy of financial practices which have grown up by an evolutionary process in the country, and which have, on the whole, worked well. The new bill is less sweeping in its scope, but is unchanged in spirit. In the years 1928-29, these normal financial practices obviously and notoriously worked very badly, with results which have been disastrous for the country and for the world. Less obviously, but demonstrably, they were being perverted and poised in the years which preceded.

"The remedy is not to be found in striking at the financial practices and institutions which were thus perverted and poisoned. The remedy is rather to eliminate for the future the poison which perverted them.

Says Credit Was Abused.

"That poison is a general excess of bank credit at artificially low rates, growing out of excessive bank reserves, the control of which rests with the open market and discount policy of the federal reserve system. The original Glass bill contained some provisions aimed at preventing over rapid expansion of bank credit in the future. The present measure contains practically nothing that would work in this direction.

"The new bill does contain, however, many important provisions which would make a great deal of unnecessary disturbance.

"Among these may be especially mentioned: The provision designed to force branch banking on states which do not want it; those aimed at abolishing the security affiliates of chartered banks; those drastically limiting the ability of banks to engage in buying and selling bonds; the provision restricting bank loans to consolidated businesses; the provision dealing with brokers' loans 'for the account of others'; and the provision taxing solvent banks for the purpose of liquidating insolvent banks, which is apparently an opening wedge for the permanent adoption by the federal government of the policy, already proved unsound by various states, of bank deposit guaranty."

Would Control Credits.

The "real remedy" for the cheap money and excessive credit which he believes created the evils at which the Glass bill is aimed lies, Dr. Anderson asserts, "in control of the money market by sound federal reserve policy."

"If credit is not excessive, most of the abuses will disappear. It is desirable that good bankers should have freedom of action to use their best judgment. Bad bankers get their inning when funds are excessive and when the speculative spirit runs wild. The commercial customers of banks have first call on loan funds. If the total of loan funds is not excessive, the stock market will not get too much."

Business Notes

Albert Frank & Co., national advertising agency, will observe the sixtieth anniversary of its organization by formally opening new offices today in the Sixty Wall Tower building, 70 Pine street, New York. While specializing in financial and transportation advertising since 1872, the firm has added a number of important commercial accounts to its list during the last few years. The company has its second largest office in Chicago.

Ralph M. Roosevelt, vice president of the Eagle Picher Lead company in charge of its New York office, has been reelected president of the American Zinc institute for his fifth consecutive time.

OILS, UTILITIES CURB FEATURES FOR THE WEEK

New York, April 24.—(AP)—A technical rally now and then varies the monotony of sagging prices in the curb market, but advances are feebly held. On the other hand, resistance levels established a fortnight or so ago appear to be rather durable and liquidation has slowed down.

With leaders selling at substantial discounts from even this year's highs, many stocks are being currenly quoted at nominal prices, a situation which probably helps slacken offerings. Early reactions last week found the supply considerably smaller and some issues rallied a point or two on Thursday, only to sag again on Friday. Saturday's market was dull and uninteresting.

DRYNESS HELPS FARMERS TO RUSH SPRING PLOWING

Downstate's Fruit Crops Hit by Frost.

BY PAUL POTTER.

While there were showers over the weekend in the Central states, with more rain forecast for today, the rainfall for April has been nearly two inches below normal so far, enabling farmers of the middle west to do their spring plowing and seeding earlier than usual.

Truck gardeners in Cook and nearby counties reported much of their seeding and transplanting already completed. On the sunny side of city and farm homes the jonquils, crocus, hepatica and other spring flowers were blooming as the buds started bursting on trees and shrubs. Motorists began seeking the dogtooth violets, pussy willows and Dutchman's breeches, now opening in the woods.

Temperatures Near Normal.

Official weather bureau records showed that April temperatures here had returned almost to normal yesterday. Cool nights in southern Illinois last week caused damage to strawberries. Oat seeding continued throughout the state, and as far north as Madison, Wis. Although April 16 is regarded as the last date of a probable freeze in the Chicago area, frost was reported in Indiana five mornings in the last ten days, though without serious injury to vegetation. Serious freezes, which pared to almost nothing the peach and pear crop prospects in southern Illinois, were found last week to have done less injury to winter wheat than farmers at first believed.

The condition of winter wheat in Illinois early this month was rated at 81 per cent of normal, compared with 91 per cent last December and 88 per cent a year ago. The rye crop is rated at about average, with pasture conditions somewhat better than those a year ago.

Fruit and vegetable growers in Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and Indiana saw hope for an improved market for their crops after reports last week that frost had cut the fruit crop in southern states to about one-third of the normal. Early potato prospects in 10 southern states were reported on April 1 the poorest in nine years.

Live Stock Feeding Increases.

While feeding of live stock for the meat market, especially cattle and sheep, has fallen off sharply in the northwest and southwest states, government reports during the week indicated feeding in the midwest states this month to be from 110 to 125 per cent of last year's meat production.

One Illinois farmer last week brought three carloads of fat cattle to the Chicago market from his 650 acre farm and returned home with a check for more than $4,500 for his winter's work.

Farmers pointed out that the mild winter had enabled them to keep live stock foraging in the fields most of the time. Because of this favorable condition grain and hay stocks on farms this spring are above normal.

Dairymen are expecting an unusual increase in milk production in May and June, in the face of lowest butter and milk prices in two decades. Fresh eggs are selling in some Iowa country towns for 7 to 9 cents a dozen.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST
